END OF THE FORESTS

Timber Supply of Canada and United States Rapidly Decreasing

In a report by the United States forestry service it is predicted that "the whole United States lumber crop will be harvested by 1930." This startling prediction brings home a sense of the nearness of timber exhaustion. The lumbermen of the United States are cutting timber at three times the rate of natural growth. If the United States forests will be so soon reduced to commercial impotence, unless new and sweeping conservation measures are undertaken, what of the tremendous extra drain thereafter upon Canadian timber reserves? Already more merchantable timber is burned every year in Canada in forest fires than is cut.

It is clear that the United States having drawn on its timber reserves with a prodigal hand, must turn to Canada for lumber, as it has already done for pulp. The forestry officials estimate the area of our commercial timber at 275,000,000 acres, and the reserves are 140,000,000 acres, of which 110,000,000 acres are in Quebec. The United States has 187,000,000 acres of reserves. But these are of particular value on water-sheds for flood prevention, and consequently are not destined for the market. Likewise in Canada, the reserves are in most cases as much for the protection of land and the conservation of water supply as for anticipating a shortage of timber. What is specially necessary is that a check should be placed upon too rapid exploitation of the standing timber. We should constantly seek to guard ourselves against the predicament of France, which is spending $250,000,000 in setting out young trees at the Alpine border—to control floods. Every Provincial Government with control over large forest resources should have a profit-sharing policy by which the people get a percentage of the sale price of lumber, as British Columbia now does. Too much of the value of public timber has been going into private hands.

REGAINS VOICE THROUGH SHOCK

Men, Dumb For Years, Given Power to Speak in Marvelous Manner

The recent case of a young woman in England who, after being deaf and dumb for twenty-one years, is slowly recovering both hearing and speech—the shock of the tragic end of her brother, who drowned himself in the Stour, being regarded as responsible for the miraculous example of shock succeeding where doctors have failed—recalls similar instances, says Charles Lewis in "Tit-Bits."

Some time ago the narrow escape of a boy from drowning off North Shields fish quay had a remarkable sequel. While efforts were being made to restore the apparently drowned boy to consciousness by means of artificial respiration, a man who had been deprived of speech two years earlier as the result of an accident pushed through the crowd merely out of curiosity. As soon as he saw the prostrate boy, although not in any way related to him, the sight gave him such a shock that his speech suddenly returned and he fell to the ground in a state of collapse. Upon recovering he continued to speak freely, and has suffered no further impediment since.

It is not many years since a remarkable case of dumbness excited great interest in medical circles in Germany. Twelve months earlier a Bavarian cattle-dealer had been kicked by a horse, with the result that he completely lost the use of his voice. A year later he was riding a doomed horse to the knacker's yard, when the animal, who clearly had plenty of life in him, began to kick and plunge in a dangerous manner. The man, we are told, lost his head completely in wild excitement, and after a few minutes began to talk, regaining his speech to the boundless astonishment of his friends.

Wholesale smuggling of horses, cattle and grain across the Canadian border, amounting to thousands of dollars was unearthed by Collector of Customs Judson La Moure, Jr., of the district of North and South Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. According to information from Hallock, Minn. near the centre of the smuggling district the operations were carried on along the border between St. Vincent and Warren, Minn. There is no customs port between these two points, which are about 100 miles apart.

BUTTER MAKING

1. Cool the cream from the separator as soon as possible to 55 degrees F. or lower.

2. Never mix warm cream with cool cream.

3. Mix all the cream to be churned in one vat or can at least 18 hours before churning.

4. Ripen at a temperature of 70 to 75 degrees F. from six to eight hours stirring frequently during this period.

5. Cool cream to churning temperature as soon as ripe.

6. Let cream stand eight hours or more (over night) at the churning temperature.

7. The temperature of churning should be such as to make the butter come in from 35 to 40 minutes, usually 55 to 60 degrees F.

8. If it is desired to use artificial coloring, it should be added to the cream just before churning.

9. Stop churning when the granules are about the size of peas, varying to wheat, and draw off the buttermilk.

10. Wash the butter once with pure water at the churning temperature, agitating three or four times, and drain.

11. Wash a second time with water about four degrees above churning temperature, agitating seven or eight times, and drain.

12. Add the salt wet while the butter is in granular form, using about one to one-and-one-half ounce for each pound of butter, according to the demands of the market.

13. Work the butter just enough to distribute the salt evenly.

14. If the butter is to go on the market it should be put up in neat attractive packages.

REFORESTATION PROFITABLE

The Only City Forest in Canada Situated at Guelph

City forests are not, as yet, in vogue in this country. Perhaps the only city forest in Canada is that at Guelph, Ont., where a small area has been planted surrounding the springs which furnish the city's water supply, states a bulletin of the forestry branch of the department of the interior. In many of the counties of eastern Canada, however, are large areas of waste land, originally forested, and capable only of producing forests. Ontario has a counties reforestation act making possible the acquisition of such waste land for reforestation purposes by municipal councils, but up to the present time only one county has availed itself of this opportunity. Quebec and the Dominion government have also passed legislation to encourage tree planting, and the Dominion forestry branch recently distributed nearly 4,000,000 trees from the nurseries at Indian Head for woodlot planting in western Canada. The growing of forest trees on waste land can in most cases be made a profitable under taking, besides providing labor to a considerable number of men, yet no extensive reforestation has as yet been done in eastern Canada.

SPORT SACRIFICED

Money the Only Consideration in Profession Baseball

Organized baseball seems to be on the verge of losing its last vestige of sport for sport's sake, according to W. J. MacBeth, a New York sporting writer. The commercial end of the enterprise overshadows all else. The magnates are out for the money and make no bones of the fact. The lust for gold is as deeply rooted in the minor leagues as in the major organizations.

The two big circuits depend upon patronage for financial gains. Because of this it is necessary for them to secure the very best talent to display before the public. Thousands upon thousands of dollars are expended every season by each club in the National and American Leagues for the sole purpose of fortifying for the future. Every club owner has several highly paid scouts beating all around the country in search of likely looking "bush" timber. Some have as many as six sleuths under salary. Besides these, there is a grand army of amateur sharps who do business on a commission basis. This policy of

CANADIAN LIVE STOCK

Statistics of live stock in Canada published by the Dominion Government, throw interesting light on the state of the beef and dairy industries. In the six-year interval, 1908-14, there was a decrease of 244,460 in milch cows; in "other cattle," beef cattle chiefly, the falling off was 1,366,306. The decrease in sheep was 778,359 and this finds an inadequate set-off in the increase of 64,408 in the number of swine. To make the case worse, the decreases were steady, while the single increase was due only to a spurt for 1914. The inference to be drawn from these statistics is obvious, and the lesson the yconvey is equally so. In the face of frequently reiterated warnings the farmers of Canada, and especially of Ontario, have persistently ignored the signs of the times, have continued growing grain for export in the old way, and have sold themselves so short of live stock that it will take years to fill up the vacuum which has been allowed to occur. While the meat-eating population has been steadily increasing the supply of meat has been steadily and rapidly decreasing, and, worst of all, the falling off in milch cows means inevitably a continued, perhaps an increasing, scarcity of calves. There are no sure indications observable that any stay has taken place in the downward trend, and the farmers who might be making a handsome profit out of live stock appear to be still bent on taking chances with the cultivation of grain.—The Globe.

Tiny Driver of Big Mogul

W. H. HOLLOBAUGH

William H. Hollobaugh, aged 42, of Pittsburg, thinks he is the lightest "iron horse jockey" in the world. When he mounts his 72-ton steed in his jumpers, he weighs in at 103 pounds. Hollobaugh has been an engineer for 19 years. He drives a huge locomotive on the Union railroad. "Weight doesn't count," he says.

MANY WARS IN SIXTY YEARS

One is Precipitated Every Three Years—A Partial List

In spite of the progress of civilization man remains a fighting animal. Peace societies begin to think they are making progress toward taming his instincts, and they are confronted by another war. Here is a partial list of the wars of the Northern Hemisphere in the last 60 years, exclusive of the minor revolts in Northern South America, in Central America and the West Indies, and in Africa:

Crimean war, 1854-56.
Sepoy mutiny, 1857.
Italy and France against Austria 1859.
Civil war in America, 1860-65.
Mexico invaded by Austria and Allies, 1861-67.
Prussia and Austria against Denmark, 1864.
Seven weeks' war, Austria-Prussia, 1866.
Franco-Prussian, 1870.
Russo-Turkish, 1877-78.
Servo-Bulgarian, 1885.
Japanese-Chinese, 1894-95.
Greco-Turkish, 1897.
Spanish-American, 1898.
Filipino-American, 1899.
China against the allies, 1900.
Boer war, 1899-1902.
Russo-Japanese, 1904.
Balkan States against Turkey, 1912.
Balkan States against Bulgaria, 1913.

This, as has been said, is only a partial list. England has had several small wars, including the important conquest of the Soudan, which are not included, and there have been numerous minor disturbances of one sort and another. But the list includes 20 fair-sized wars, or one every three years. There has been no falling off in recent years. Take the last two decades, for instance, and there have been 10 wars, or one every two years.

Our Point of View

Americans returning from Europe agree that no troops of the warring nations can charge as recklessly as the Swiss hotelkeepers.

The conspicuous absence of the love of peace is causing many persons to believe that it has sought refuge in Andrew Carnegie's whiskers.

There are times when we suspect that the Chefoo liar has established headquarters in Paris, and runs a branch office in Brussels.

There are some men whose names fit their callings in life. We have in mind the Rev. Joseph Dippem, who is a Baptist preacher in Joplin, Mo.

Some day when the Brotherhood of Man is an established fact we will be able to borrow some other fellow's shirt when the buttons are off our own. This will be one of the many blessings of such a union.

It was the intention of our old friend, Vic Huerta to reside in France, but things are happening there which remind him too much of home and he has decided to live in Spain.

According to the plans of the general staff, the German army was to have arrived in Lille, France, on August 5, but it is nearly two weeks overdue. The delay is probably due to a serious washout on the line.

After Liege comes Namur and we have one Julius Caesar as authority for the statement that the town is "admirably fortified by nature." When Kaiser Bill gets there, if he ever does, he will realize that Julius knew what he was talking about.

In a confidential communication which we have received from our old friend, Vic Emmanuel of Italy he says: "It is my intention to remain neutral if possible, but I would like very much to have a chance to give Austria a wallop on the nose."

In The Far East

There are several viewpoints on the relations of the kaiser with Japan. It is taken for granted now, although it was not at first, that the kaiser, will put up a vigorous resistane at Kiao-Chow. The one theory takes it that Germany must do this. For if the German territory in China is given up only after a severe fight and after the silencing of the forts, it is possible that the peace makers who will meet to decide the results of the war with respect to territorial possessions might return the port to Germany. We are free to confess that this contains some mystery of international law or war that we cannot grasp, except if it merely means that Germany will claim that the port of Kiao-Chow was taken from it by force by Japan with whom it had no quarrel. Japan's reasons, as given in the press, that it could not afford to wait until Germany had its trans-continental railroad built through China and its forts at Kiao-Chow impregnable, sounds fanciful though it is of a piece with the high-falutin of the kaiser about the menace of the Slav. On the other hand there is the theory that Japan would be much disappointed if Germany did not put up a good fight at Kiao-Chow. The announcement of the determination to hold the forts must have been received with smiles in Japan. For what Japan wants is the need of throwing a large Japanese force into Chinese territory. If there were practically no resistance, Japan would have no excuse to do this. A really stubborn resistance and the compulsion of a long siege of Kiao-Chow would justify the Japanese in having a large army in China. The idea is, of course, that large armies are quickly sent but not so quickly withdrawn. So, under the circumstances, our military sages and wiseacres find it to the advantage both of Japan and of Germany to have some really truly war in the Far East.

Lame Back Strengthened, Stiffness Taken Right Out

Was Relieved in An Hour, and Cured in a Night

A lame back? Quite unnecessary. All you have to do is to rub on Nerviline. It's simply a wonder for backache—relieves after one rubbing. "Nothing possibly could cure an aching back faster than Nerviline," writes Mrs. Arthur Kobar, of Lower Chelsea, N.S. "I caught cold and was so prostrated with pain I could not bend over. We always have Nerviline at home, and I had the painful region rubbed thoroughly with this grand liniment. At once the pain departed. The lameness was rapidly reduced and in an hour I was able to be about my housework. I was rubbed again just before retiring, and awoke as usual in the morning without a sign of my back trouble."

There is no sort of muscular pain that Nerviline won't cure quickly. Thousands swear by it for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. It sinks to the core of the pain—right through muscle, tissue and nerve—it penetrates where no oily, greasy liniment can go and invariably cures quickly. If you have an ache or a pain anywhere—use Nerviline—it will cure you. Family size bottle, very large 50c; trial size 25c. at all dealers.

BONDON BOBBY TURNS JOKE ON ACTRESS

London, Aug. 24.—Two young actresses, yearning for excitement after long weeks of "resting," determined the other night to wash the face of Sir Henry Irving's statue, which stands behind the National Gallery. Armed with soft soap and a bucket of water, and accompanied by a photographer, they started operations on Sir Henry at 2 o'clock in the morning. They were so confident that a policeman would stop them that they had brought the photographer along to immortalize the scene. Just as Sir Henry's face was beginning to take a nice polish, the expected policeman strolled up. The statue scrubbers tried to look unconcerned, and the photographer primed his flash lamp.

"What are you doing?" inquired the policeman. "Washing Sir Henry's face," came the defiant reply simultaneously from both the workers.

"Capital, capital, just what it wanted!" was the unexpected reply. The policeman went his way whistling and two saddened young women and one embittered photographer went silently home.

LONDON GLOBE SEES DANGER IN SHIP BILL

London, Aug. 24.—Commenting on the bill passed by the Congress of the United States extending to American registry of foreign built ships, the Globe says:

"The situation is fraught with difficulty, if not danger, to our relations with the United States. This might conceivably arise if large numbers of German merchantment should temporarily adopt the American flag apart from an out-and-out sale, such as is now being discussed. During the war of 1870 the North German Lloyd and other lines flew the British ensign and changed the names of their ships. The French fleet scrupulously respected the British flag and searched in vain for German vessels. At the end of the war the German flag again was run up and the German ownership was resumed.

"It is of the utmost importance for the foreign office and the admiralty to see to it that this transportation fraud is not repeated on the present occasion. The danger of our being tricked is a real one, for the authorities have up against them the brains of Herr Ballin and those who make the German mercantile marine; men who will not scruple to use any dodge to escape the penalty of war; and we may be sure the German foreign office will do everything in its power which occasion offers to embroil us with the United States."

SALEM WOMANS JEWELS STOLEN

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 22.—The annual epidemic of jewelry robberies is on once more, with reports from a number of the summer residents that they have been robbed of property valued at many thousands of dollars.

The thefts have been kept comparatively quiet until to-day, but it is known that Mrs. Daniel A. Donahue, wife of a Salem, Mass., merchant, who arrived only Friday, the night of the annual fancy dress ball at the Casino, was robbed of a mesh bag of gold containing a collection of jewels.

The bag contained, it is said, two checks for small amounts, a diamond salitaire valued at $800, a ring studded with 32 large diamonds on a platinum setting and a sum of money. The value of the whole is estimated variously at between $2000 and $5000.

Another victim of the thieves is Miss Dorothy Dickason of Chicago. She is said to be but one of a number of cottagers who have complained to the authorities, and whose cases are being investigated with the usual Narragansett Pier secrecy.

BOSTON POLES DEFINE POSITION IN RESOLUTION

Boston, Aug., 22.—Boston Poles have protested against the present war being represented as a conflict between Teutons and Slavs, Russia being represented as the champion of the Slavs. The Polish National Council of the Hyde Park district in recent resolutions declares that "for more than a century Russia together with Germany has persecuted the Slavs, namely, Poles, Ruthenians and White Ruthenians." They say "the Slavs are in no way identified with the despotic Russian government and its autocratic Czar."

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,600 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows:

In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,885 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,850 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,885 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

"LAZY" MAN'S AD BRINGS ANSWERS

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 24.—"Young man, unequaled for laziness, unqualified for work, wants place to hang around and draw salary; steady. Call Max. 1842 J."

The advertiser, George A. Quick, a recent arrival in Spokane from St. Cloud, Minn., has been offered many positions, ranging from a scarecrow to the custodian of two children of the wife of a traveling man. More than 150 replies were reported the morning following the appearance of this unusual advertisement in the "want" columns of the Spokane Daily Chronicle.

Quick tried to obtain an easy job with an ordinary want ad. and failed. He thought of a new scheme to attract attention, so he described himself as "unequaled for laziness and unqualified for work." It brought the desired result.

"I have had more than 150 calls, many of which were from women," said Mr. Quick. "One man wanted me to sit on his front steps and keep agents away. Another said he would give me a job as scarecrow in his cornfield north of the city.

"One woman wanted me to take care of two children. She said she was the wife of a traveling man. One girl called and told me to take a Hillyard car and ride to the end of the line, walk one block west and ask for Miss Hunt. One woman said she would like to have me come out to her farm and watch the lawn and shrubbery grow. Another offered me a place as chaffeur of a baby carriage.

"One man promised me a real job and I am going to see him right away about it."

BOOSTERS OF FOOD PRICES ARE TO BE INDICTED AT ONCE

Washington, Aug. 24.—Attorney General McReynolds expects several indictments to be returned within the next few days as the result of the investigation ordered by President Wilson of the increase in food prices, since the outbreak of war in Europe.

Government officials would not say today in what cities the indictments would be sought. Mr. McReynolds has been in frequent communication with the White House since the investigation was started and expects to make his formal report soon. The President has directed that prosecutions be pressed vigorously.

KILLED STEALIG RIDE ON CAR ROOF

Boston, Aug. 24.—John McInnes, 22 years old, of 224 C street, South Boston, was killed yesterday while trying to steal a ride to New London on the roof of a car. With a companion, he boarded the train at the South station, and when the train reached Providence his dead body was found. His companion named Powers, was arrested at Providence, charged with attempting to evade payment of car fare.

McInnes was formerly employed as a clerk in a steamship office in Boston, but lost his place because of conditions brought on by the war.

CANADA'S NEW PARK

Old Trading Post Stood in Midst of Beautiful Forest Tract

Forty-seven years ago two adventurous young Englishmen, Viscount Milton and Dr. Cheadle, after passing the winter in a Saskatchewan forest set out from Edmonton to cross the Rocky Mountains and to reach the Pacific coast by the overland route. After a most laborious journey, attended with much hardship and often much danger, they accomplished their purpose. They crossed the Rockies by way of the Yellowhead Pass, which accurate surveys have since determined to be the easiest passage through the mountains, and is the route followed by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway on its passage over the great divide. On their journey they arrived at Jasper House, an ancient landmark, even at that time, in the geography of this part of Canada. One hundred years ago Jasper House was one of the most important trading posts of the Hudson Bay Company in all the far North-west. It was built in the year 1800 by Jasper Hawes, who is frequently referred to by the early explorers of the upper Rockies.

SPRAINS AND FRACTURES

What Can Be Done Until the Doctor Comes

A sprain is due to the stretching and tearing of the ligaments around a joint. It is usually accompanied by great pain and swelling. Hot water applications are the best to relieve the pain and to reduce the swelling. The joint should be kept absolutely at rest. A very good way to secure this is to strap the joint for some distance above and below, with adhesive plaster, layer upon layer. If there is a weak spot in the dressing it can be strengthened by an extra layer or two. Care should be taken that the strapping is not so tight as to interfere with the circulation. It is comparatively easy to determine this by noting whether the part below the strapping remains warm. If it does not, you may know the circulation has been seriously interfered with. Loosen the bandage sufficiently to allow the blood to move. Remember that a severe sprain often takes longer than a fracture to heal and at best is a difficult thing to treat satisfactorily.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. The Size of the Waves

The most experienced sons of the sea are apt to have very exaggerated ideas of the size of towering waves which break over the vessels during sea storms, and frequently waves are reported as having reached an almost impossible height.

As a matter of fact it is extraordinary for a wave to attain a height of seventy feet, while the average size of great waves is considerably less. The mountainous seas often encountered by liners in the North Atlantic usually measure about forty feet, though the upward-shooting, quick-falling water attains a greater altitude. The big waves of the North Pacific rarely measure more than thirty feet, while the highest wave ever met by an Australian bound liner in the South Pacific reached fifty feet.

The big waves of mid-ocean are much larger than those encountered elsewhere, and it is very rare that a height of even twenty feet is reached by a wave in the Mediterranean.

A Cure For Warts

The Budapest correspondent of the "Lancet" states that Dr. Felix Szontagh, of that city, has discovered a new and simple way of treating warts. It consists in covering the wart and the surrounding skin with ordinary caoutchouc plaster, and leaving it so covered for weeks—even, if necessary, for two or three months. Whenever the plaster becomes loose it must be removed and replaced by a new piece. As a rule the plaster is to be changed once in three or four days. Any adherent residue of the caoutchouc is to be removed with ether or petrol, care being taken that the wart or surrounding skin shall not be rubbed energetically, because irritation of the skin is not conducive to the disappearing of the wart.

THE GRACE OF PUNCTUALITY

Text: "A time to keep."—Ecclesiastes 3:6.

Some Canadian teachers, on a holiday at Washington, D.C., missed meeting President Wilson because they were not at the White House on time! "The door was shut." The foolish virgins were told that they would not hear the bridegroom's voice. The great nuisance of the business, the professional, the social and the religious world is the laggard who will not keep his engagements. I know a dentist who will solemnly make an engagement with you for to-morrow at nine. He would make it even earlier were he permitted. Will he be there on time? Never. At nine-fifteen he comes rushing in, violently denouncing the street car company. In every committee meeting, however important, there will be the late-comer who delays the work of six others by his tardiness. The same people are late at church, at the theatre, at dinner.

As with other bad habits, tardiness is usually a species of selfishness. Unconsciously laggards say: "Let others wait for me; I do not mind disturbing them." Even at recitals where artists are peculiarly disturbed by late-comers, these sinners against the public weal are not thoughtful enough to break their miserable rule. At nearly every wedding, some guests rush in while the ceremony is proceeding. I have even heard of people telephoning the bride to request a quarter-hour's delay for their dear sakes. Did you ever see a Sunday School excursion get away on time? You may delay the embarking five, ten or fifteen minutes, but just as sure as you get ten yards away from the wharf you will see three or four women, half a dozen children, and a few baskets shooting down the platform, late! And they will be late next year also. Indeed the habit grows like the taking of drugs. Many a preacher who berates other bad habits is guilty of this heinous offence. He enters the pulpit a few minutes late, or delays the opening of the concert until 8.30 o'clock, keeping the faithful waiting for the unfaithful, fining the punctual ones for the tardy. John Wesley, prince of preachers and organizers, was one of the most punctual of men. He expected his carriage at the door to the minute. "When I must prepare for a journey, I dress early," said he; "then I have the remaining time for work without being hurried." Punctuality, somebody said, enabled Wesley to do a great amount of work with perfect composure.

Punctuality is such a prudent thing. A young man who asked counsel of Sir Walter Scott was given this unique advice: "When a regiment is under march, the rear is often thrown into great confusion because the front does not move on time." Punctuality makes work easy; tardiness enslaves. A late train is laid out at every junction point. A train on time is anticipated by every despatcher and every switchman. Did you ever take a ride on the Empire State express? There is something in the very jerk of the conductor's hand as he pulls out his watch and yells, "All aboard!" that warns you against expecting any mercy for late-comers. On time to the seconds the wheels turn and the giant locomotive bounds ahead, through the suburbs and out into the country; past hamlets and through fairly pretentious cities; slighting country towns galore, and not even hesitating at time-honored junction points; on, on we fly, for the great metropolis must be reached on schedule time, and there is not a minute's margin anywhere. The road is clear, and there is not a minute's margin anywhere. The road is clear, switches are turned for us; accommodation trains are side-tracked; relay engines are waiting for us; everybody along the road seems bent on giving us the right-of-way.

As with trains, so with men. He who is on time always gets the right-of-way. Switches are turned for punctual people, but semaphores are raised against tardy folks.

Punctuality makes work easy. It is the prompt man who can stop for recreation here and there. Those who are punctual get through their work, do something, reach a decision. Their recreation is sweet because unfinished tasks do not haunt their leisure hours. Only he can rest whose work is done. Pleasure taken before our tasks are finished is like a nightmare; the unkept engagement always stares us in the face. The student knows it; the travelling salesman knows it; all who have great responsibilities have experienced the difference between rest taken after conscientious fulfilment of duty, and a pastime indulged in while work is uncompleted.

Tardiness is either a moral limitation or a mental one. In either case, one must make a prodigious effort in order to get the victory over it. With some people the trouble lies in making a great ordeal out of the preparation for keeping an appointment. They simply put off getting ready because of disinclination. These must bring themselves to confront the unpleasant task bravely. Others are not on time because they do not practice foresight. They do not lay out their time methodically—so much in which to dress, so much for the journey, and a fair margin for possible delays.

HEALTHOGRAMS

Pneumonia begins rather suddenly often with a severe chill, headache and general pains like grippe. In a few hours cough begins, short and dry, with violent stabbing pain in one side of the chest. Breathing is rapid, with expanding nostrils. The face is anxious and often flushed. The temperature is high.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor!

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

ALL ARE WELCOME

MILK PER ACRE

Individual Records Should be Kept For Best Results

If it may be assumed that the farm of the average factory patron is fairly well adapted to dairying, that the patron himself is inclined towards dairying, rather than other lines, and that his cows are fairly good, then it will be of interest to note how the farm is made to respond to this dairy inclination.

There are frequently noticed yields as low as 250 pounds of milk per acre cultivated including pasture, but some good patrons obtain 750 and 800 pounds per acre. Even this is little enough, for there are plenty of authentic records of 1,100 and 2,100 pounds of milk per acre. It should not be extremely difficult to obtain more than this, even 2,500 or 3,000 pounds.

This latter figure is a long, long way ahead of the yields already mentioned of only 250 pounds which may be found on many so-called dairy farms in Canada, and is indicative of the possibilities in reach of the factory patron who is really anxious to attain first rank.

It is questionable if the average yield per acre in Ontario is much more than 600 pounds of milk. If loyal, whole-hearted support is given to the local factory and to our national industry of dairying, the farm and the dairy herd will be made far more productive. Great help will be derived by keeping individual records of each cow, because the old established, complacent "average" cow has no intention whatever of assisting the average patron to get 2,000 pounds of milk from the average acre. The first necessary step is to know for certain that each cow is a good producer, then one may aim with more hope at $30 or $40 per acre.

The Tabooed Tango

There is nothing new either in the tango or the opposition to it. As long ago as the December of 1637, the Archbishop of Buenos Ayres excommunicated one Senor de la Cueva y Benavides, governor of the city, for dancing the tango in public. Even then the dance was anything but new. An authority in the Argentine states that the tango is named after a province in Indo-China, and that it originated there more than two thousand years ago. It was the gipsies who took the dance to Spain, from whence it reached the Argentine. One definition of the tango—given in a glossary of South American Spanish—is "Gathering of dance of gipsies." The dance has not been improved by being civilised or modernised. As danced by the up-country Argentines and the Spanish gipsies it is exceedingly graceful, which is more than can be said for it as performed in many places in Canada.

MRS. GRACE WILBUR TROUT

This woman is devoting all her spare time to instructing other women how to vote and why to vote, but not what to vote.

She says the business of suffragists, just now, is to make women familiar with all phases of registration and election day; in other words, the curriculum of voting. "If we make them understand why they need to vote and then familiarise them with the system so that they will not have any hesitancy when the time comes, we can safely leave the matter of what they vote to their own intelligence and good sense," says Mrs. Trout.

She is the president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association.

SECRET OF LONG LIFE

From Japan comes the secret of long life. It is in the form of twelve commandments, as follows:

1. Arise and retire early.
2. Sleep six to seven hours daily in a room perfectly dark with open windows.
3. Spend as much time as possible in the open air.
4. Eat meat only once a day.
5. Drink moderately tea and coffee, and do not smoke or drink.
8. Rest one day a week and in that day do not even read or write.
9. Avoid warm places, especially those heated artificially.
10. Re-establish your exhausted organs with identical animal's organs.
11. Avoid getting excited and do not fatigue your intellect.

And the twelfth commandment is the most interesting one:

12. If you are a bachelor get married without delay; if you are a widower, contract a second marriage immediately.

WHERE FIRE-FLIES MAKE FLASHLIGHTS

Men and Women Wear Them While Travelling Through the Forests

Travellers and tourists in Mexico are invariably attracted by the wonderful skill and ingenuity displayed by the Indians in the making of miniature objects which they offer for sale. The little dolls, for instance, of Cuernavaca, half-inch tall, and dressed in finely embroidered raiment, are the admiration of everyone who sees them.

But perhaps the most wonderful of all are the tiny dressed fleas which may be bought in Mexico City. They are all mounted in small boxes, which are little more than quarter-inch in dimension. Here are a bride and bridegroom, the former with her bridal veil and orange blossoms, and the latter with his Prince Albert coat and silk hat. Ballet dancers dressed in true Spanish dancing costumes, bull fighters in full regalia, and water-carriers with their water jugs are also represented among the dressed fleas of Mexico City.

Some further interesting facts regarding Mexican insects are related in the "National Geographic Magazine." It appears that many of the Indian colors are made from Mexican insects, while one of the most remarkable of the many curious foods eaten by the natives is made from the eggs of a species of marsh fly. This fly deposits its eggs in incredible quantities upon flags and rushes. The eggs are then gathered and made into cakes which are sold in the markets. These little cakes are somewhat like brickbats, and the Indians enjoy a meal of them with as good a stomach as white people enjoy cheese. The eggs resemble the fine fish roe, and when mixed with corn meal and fowl eggs form a staple article of diet, particularly during Lent.

The insects themselves, which are about the size of a housefly, are captured, pounded into a paste, boiled in corn husks, and in this form are eaten.

Another remarkable insect found in Mexico is the Elater fire-fly, which the Indians use as miniature torches. The men fasten them to their ankles in going through the forest, and the women wear them in their hair under a thin gauze veil.

Tiny little cages are constructed in which three or four are kept for lighting purposes. The insects congregate by the thousands in many forest trees, and, as if by preconcerted agreement, simultaneously flash their lights, then darken them and flash them again.

Pharoah's Serpents

A cone of mercuric sulpho-cyanate, when ignited, burns with the development of a tremendous amount of ash. The cone seems to swell and writhe away like a serpent, hence the name. Any boy can make the cones at little expense. To a solution of corrosive sublimate, add a few drops of ferric chloride. Dissolve potassium sulphocyanate in water, and slowly add this to the other solution, until, after stirring, a red color remains. Filter through a sheet of muslin and form the white curds into little balls or cones. Dry, and you need only touch a match to produce Pharoah's serpents. Do not breathe the vapors.

Ostrich Feather Plucking

During the course of the sitting of the Dominions Royal Commission at Port Elizabeth, the question of the supposed cruelty attending the plucking of ostrich feathers, as affecting the market, was raised, when a witness, Mr. Evans, stated that while in London he delivered a lecture with lantern slides showing the method of plucking. After the lecture a lady told him she had not bought feathers for three years on account of the cruelty she supposed was involved in the plucking, but after the explanation which had been given, she expressed her intention to purchase some next day.

COPPER
MILLIONS OF TONS OF PAY ORE

Copper is one of the world's chief necessities, and the demand for it is constantly increasing. Growth of the electrical industry largely accounts for this. Telegraph and Telephone Wire—Trolley Wire—Trolley Wheels and the multitude of other Electrical Machines and Parts—Power Transmission Wire and the use of the metal in various valuable Alloys—these are some of the places where copper is consumed, and while its production is enormous it is used about as rapidly as it can be mined and made ready. THIS IS WHY OWNERSHIP IN A COPPER MINE IS ONE OF THE MOST SATISFACTORY SOURCES OF INCOME POSSIBLE TO IMAGINE.

TIME TO START

Naturally the time to secure an interest in any sort of enterprise is at the start, because it is then that money for development and equipment is needed and this is, of course, the reason why shares in the project are released! When these necessities are provided for the Opportunity passes.

For years we have been spending time, effort and money in getting together one of the largest known copper deposits, and we now own and control thousands of acres of land, covering veins of copper, ore carrying gold and silver values, extensive veins of coal, iron and lime.

The geology is so well defined as to make identifications of size and location of the copper bearing veins a perfect definite matter. In addition to this the estate has been thoroughly prospected by some 4,000 feet of work, there being more than 100 shafts, pits, cuts and tunnels, every one of which shows copper in paying quantities. The dumps of these openings run from 2 to 8 per cent in copper metal.

Facilities for economically winning the copper from its ores are remarkably fine. In the company's own ground are five known coal beds, insuring a perpetual supply of cheap fuel, easily accessible and located within a very short distance of the site chosen for its furnaces. Water and timber are also abundant and easy of access.

One of Colorado's most eminent mining engineers, after thoroughly examining this property, states in his report that the net profits resulting from operation of this property should range from $250,000 to $1,000,000 each year.

There is no uncertainty, no guesswork, about this project. Applied to it, a definite cause will inevitably produce an equally definite effect. Equipment for mining these immense bodies of ore and reducing the metal in them to bullion means dividends—it can't mean anything else—and it is to provide this equipment and the funds required for its installation and the preliminary operating expenses of the estate that an interest in the project is offered to you.

It is YOUR OPPORTUNITY to join in a well planned, conservative, and exceptionally profitable business undertaking. The foundations are laid, the property is acquired and the next step—providing the equipment—is now being taken. So soon as this is accomplished your chance to secure a share in the enterprise will be gone.

Reckless Shooting.

There was a lot of rifle shooting on the Pigeon Lake Wednesday and rifle shooting should not be permitted on the lakes. About six weeks ago the Thurstons, whose farm runs to the lake shore, had a mare killed by a stray rifle ball of the lake. The mare had a foal a few weeks ago.—Lindsay Post.

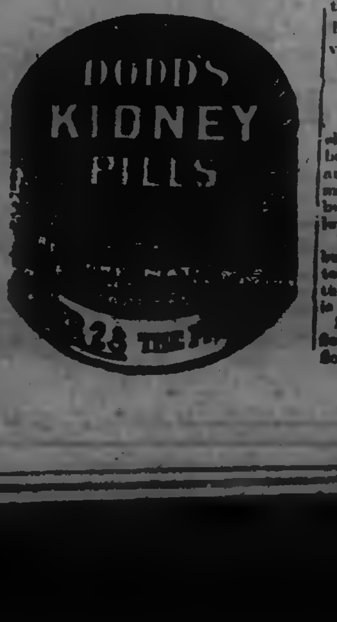
Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The D[illegible] of Militia [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] that the Canadian expeditionary force will go on garrison duty to relieve British troops, either in Great Britain, Egypt, or elsewhere. The department has received no word from the War Department as to where the Canadian force will be used, but it is confident asserted that they will be on the firing line and not kept in reserve for garrison duty.

Local Deserter in the City?

A few days ago a young man went to Cobourg for the local battery. A friend of his met him in Cobourg. Hilarity followed and now the first mentioned young man is back in the city and kept by his people in the house. Of course he is liable to arrest for desertion whilst his seducer is liable on a most serious charge. It is to be hoped that the young man, who was sworn in, will realize his error and return to the colors.



More Local Patriotism

Dr. Robinson has kindly placed the Empire Theatre and staff at the disposal of the City Committee of the Hospital Ship and General War Fund both afternoon and evening of tomorrow. Special war films will be shown and the entire proceeds go to the funds. A box will be placed at the entrance, into which any sum from 10c upwards may be placed.

A Near Accident.

Lindsay, Aug. 23.—An accident happened on the Mackenzie yacht when it was passing north, after leaving Count de Lesseps at Lakefield. The yacht was off Cottage Point, when people on shore heard the men on the yacht shouting as in alarm. Mr. Smithers jumped into his skiff, to see what was the trouble. He saw another boat rowing from the other shore, and saw the occupant of the other boat pulling a man on board. It seems that the gangway railing in the yacht had not been securely fastened, and one of the hands sitting on it, gave way and let him drop drop into the lake.

Last Contingent Gone

There is possibly no more patriotic corps in the city than the 24th Field Battery who, pro rata as to numbers, sent more men to the front than any body of local troops. Last night the third contingent of the battery boys left for Cobourg, escorted by the 57th and Salvation Army bands. It is to be hoped that not only the battery boys but all the local troops who have gone to serve the Empire will return safely and wearing the laurels of victory. Last night a detachment of the Boy Scouts, headed by a member of the Salvation Army carrying the Union Jack, led the procession. The crowds lining the streets cheered vociferously.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

Wednesday morning at 9.30 sharp the members of the boys department will go on a bike and fishing trip up the canal. Every member is requested to be at the building sharp on time; bring your lunch and a chum.

The employed boys will meet at the building Wednesday evening at 7.30 to organize an athletic club. A large turn out of the employed boys club is asked for.

Saturday, September 5th will be flower day. The Y. boys will carry flowers to the sick of the city. The boys are asked to make arrangements for their flowers as soon as possible.

Two members of the boys department left with the 57th for the front Saturday, Charlie Mongour and Harold Saunders. Charlie and Harold will be missed very much by the boys, but we know that they will give a good account of themselves as they are physically fit for the work that is before them. Fifteen senior members have also left for the front.

FISHERMAN FACES CHARGE OF WOMAN

New Orleans, Aug. 23.—Choked into insensibility and kicked and robbed, Mrs. James Leonard, aged 31 years, of 6120 Annunciation street, lay unconscious all of Sunday afternoon and night, according to the story she told her husband and the police Monday morning.

Richard Heatherton, aged 41 years, a fisherman who lives in a boat at the head of Henry Clay avenue, was arrested at 8.30 o'clock by Patrolman Jacob Schorr. Heatherton was charged in the first City Criminal Court with attempted assault and robbery.

Mrs. Leonard displayed a number of scratches on her neck, which she said Heatherton inflicted. She said she fought desperately but finally became so weak and faint from the pressure of the man's fingers on her throat, that she lapsed into unconsciousness.

When confronted by Heatherton, about two hours after regaining consciousness Monday morning, she at once positively identified him as her assailant. Mrs. Leonard missed her wedding ring, valued at $5, which, she claims, was forced from her finger. Several coins amounting to $1.10 which were in a dresser drawer in the first room, were also missing, she says.

"I was sitting on the back stoop—it must have been a few minutes before noon—when I heard foot steps behind me in the kitchen.

"When I asked him what he want-

British Troops Repulse German Horde With Traditional Courage. Twenty-Five Thousand Germans Surrounded. Muelhausen Still French

The Loss to the British Is Estimated at 2000

New York, Aug. 26.—A report here from London says that Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that Field Marshall Sir John French, commander of the British expeditionary forces on the continent, estimates the British loss in the battle in south-western Belgium at 2,000.

UNITY AND CONFIDENCE

It is too much to expect that we can have only good news from the field and sea. There must be reverses and disasters. In war and in industry the Germans are bold, resolute and efficient. They have challenged the world and defeat may invoke the destruction of the German Empire and the overthrow of the Hohenzollern dynasty. Hence they must be beaten to their knees before they are likely to submit.

But it is impossible to doubt the ultimate result. The British, the Belgians and the French are fighting at least as bravely as the Germans. They are fighting to preserve the institutions they cherish, and the freedom of Europe. The whole conduct of the war by Great Britain has revealed steadiness, energy and resource, and remarkable capacity for organization. Lord Kitchener at the War Office is worth an army. There is no greater soldier living and no more superb organizer in Europe. He is trusted by France and Russia and inspires universal confidence throughout the British Empire.

GERMAN FLANKING MOVEMENT FAILS, CHECKED BY BRITISH

Critics Say Germans Are Getting So Far Away From Thier Base That They Will Soon be Faced With Hurger--Englise and Prussians Fight to a Finish

London, Aug. 25.—5.22 p.m.—Lord Kitchener made his first speech as Minister of War, in the House of Lords to-day. He told his hearers that this war undoubtedly would strain the forces of the Empire and entail big sacrifices. He lay emphasis on the fact that his position in the Cabinet involved adherence to neither party. He said:

"The terms on which I am serving are the same as those under which some of the finest portions of our manhood now so willingly stepping forward to join the colors, are engaging.

"That is to say, my term of office is for the duration of the war, or for three years if the war should last longer than that.

"It has been asked why this period has been limited. It is because if this disastrous war be prolonged, and no one can foretell for a certainty its duration, that after three years of war, others will take our places and see this matter through.

Shared by Dominions

"There will be serious conflicts, which undoubtedly will strain the forces of our Empire, and undoubtedly considerable sacrifices to our people will be entailed. These will willingly be borne for our honor and for the preservation of our position in the world, and they will be shared by our Dominions, who are now sending over contingents and giving assistance of every kind to the Mother Country.

"Our expeditionary force has taken the field on the French north-west frontier and advanced to the neighborhood of Mons (in Belgium). Our troops already have been for 36 hours in contact with the superior forces of the German invader. During that time they maintained the best traditions of the British soldier and behaved with with the utmost gallantry! The movements which they have been called upon to execute have been those which demanded the greatest steadiness of a soldier and skill in the commanders." (Applause).

German Offensive Movement in The North Checked by Allies

The Report of Recapture of Muelhausen is Without Foundation--British and French Filled With Dogged Determination to Free Europe From Prussian Militarism--Another Russian Victory

PARIS, AUG. 25.—THE FOLLOWING OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT WAS MADE HERE TO-DAY :—

"THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT IN THE NORTH, WHICH WAS STOPPED YESTERDAY, APPEARS TO-DAY TO HAVE BEEN RESUMED.

"THE ENEMY IS, HOWEVER, BEING HELD BACK BY A FRENCH ARMY ACTING IN CONJUNCTION WITH AN ENGLISH ARMY AND A BELGIAN ARMY.

"THE ARMIES OF THE ALLIES SURPRISED THE ENEMY AND DROVE BACK THEIR ADVANCE DETACHMENTS. THE ALLIES HAVE GONE BEYOND MALINES.

"THE BELGIAN ARMY CAME FROM ANTWERP.

MUELHAUSEN STILL FRENCH

"IN ALSACE, FRENCH TROOPS REPULSED A NUMBER OF GERMAN ATTACKS DIRECTED AGAINST COLMAR.

"THE REPORT OF THE RECAPTURE OF MUELHAUSEN BY THE GERMANS IS WITHOUT FOUNDATION. MOREOVER, THE THEATRE OF OPERATIONS IN ALSACE IS BECOMING OF SECONDARY IMPORTANCE.

FAIL TO DISLODGE BRITISH

LONDON, AUG. 25., 12.35 p.m.,—"Yesterday was a day of bad news, and we fear more must follow." The London Times says to-day in an editorial article on the fall of Namur. "In the first phase of the great battle," the paper continues, "the Germans seem to have won ground all along the line save in the area held by the British. We were prepared for the ebb and flow of conflict, but not for the fall of Namur.

"We have to face this situation with unshaken confidence. We have to remember that the battle is not yet over

NOT YET IN FRANCE

"The Germans have not yet burst their way through to France.

"We have to remember that this is only the first great encounter of a war which plainly is destined to be a long one. For the allies it is a phase; for the Germans it is vital. They are dealing their blows with tremendous vigor, but the issue in Belgium still hangs in the balance, in spite of the events at Namur.

DOGGED DETERMINATION

"Whatever be the upshot, Great Britain and her allies will face the outlook with dogged determination and continue the war until the spirit of Prussian militarism is routed out of Europe.

"Time fights on the side of the allies. With the Germans it is neck or nothing. But the French and British have everything to gain by waging a delaying war.

"While the issue remains uncertain, we may still maintain the stoutest hope. Should it go against us, we may remember that the allies have not, like Germany, staked all on their first venture. Our ultimate success is certain, and we will never sheath our swords until Germany has been finally beaten to her knees."

RUSSIANS WIN IN GALICIA

PARIS, August 25.—A despatch received here from St. Petersburg, sets forth that Russian troops, following up their advantages in Galicia, have captured several passes south of Tarnopol, on the Sereth River. Tarnopol is 80 miles to the east of Lemberg. A division of Austrian cavalry has been routed in Galicia, at a point close to the frontier. The Russians captured two batteries of artillery and 200 prisoners.

Austrians Parley for Time United States to Look on

Rome, Aug. 25.—A despatch to The Corriera D'Italia from Antivari, Montenegro, says the fortifications of Cattaro, the Austrian seaport in Dalmatia, on the Adriatic, have been completely destroyed, and that the Austrian commander is now parleying for terms of surrender. The bombardment of Cattaro was conducted by a fleet of the allies.

AUSTRIA THREATENS ITALY

Rome, Aug. 25.—(Via Paris)—The Osscolo says that notwithstanding the denials of the Austrian Government, certain Austrian troops are massing on the Italian frontier. The movements were discreet at first, but orders from Vienna in the last forty-eight hours compelled precipitate actions, the effect of which were visible at Trent, where there is an incessant movement of troops. The paper adds that there are also 8,000 Austrian troops at Innsbruck.

LORD KITCHENER ADDRESSES HOUSE OF LORDS ON CRISIS

The War Will Strain Resources of the Empire, But Ultimate Victory is Certain--War Sacrifices Will be Shared By British Dominions--Praises the British Troops and Officers

Word has come from the flanking army of 25,000 men sent north-west by the German commander a few days ago. It is reported at Courtenai. This is the force which seized Brussels and spread outpost parties towards Ostend and Antwerp. Evidently the role of this army was to co-operate with the main attack of Sunday by falling on the flank of the allies' left wing. This was the British army centred on Mons. It looks as if the plan failed. We are told that the British held their ground. If that be true, the flank attack either was repulsed or else was not delivered because the British were prepared. The only other object of this German force might be to threaten Dunkirk and Ostend, two of the ports where the British landed, and which may be considered as a secondary base for the British army. It is certain that these bases are held by the British troops and supported by warships in the harbors. Large French forces are at Lille, and there is every reason to believe that the flanking expedition is surrounded, as the despatches declare.

Namur Partially Lost

Namur, the Belgian fortress, has fallen into German hands, according to an announcement made by the official press bureau in London. Details of the fighting around the fortress were not given, but the English newspapers regard the fall as inexplicable.

Berlin despatches say five of the forts of Namur and the city itself have fallen, and the capture of the remaining four forts is imminent.

A reverse to the forces of the allies is generally admitted by the English and French newspapers, which say to-day's news is decidedly bad. While plainly expressing disappointment at the failure of their forces, they declare the retrograde movement toward the line of strong defensive works near the frontier to have been carried out in good order.

ARGENTINE BEEF REACHES GOTHAM

New York, Aug. 25.—The arrival here today of the steamship Zinel with a cargo of 30,000 quarters of Argentine beef relieved the food situation to a great extent.

At the food price inquiry begun by District Attorney Whitman, James A. Howard, district manager of Sulzberger & Sons, yesterday said there was no arrangement among district managers to determine the price. The law of supply and demand ruled, he declared. Mr. Howard said he believed the reasons for the increase in beef prices were, first a scarcity of cattle; second, that farmers were too busy with other affairs just now to send their cattle to market, and, third, the farmers realizing that conditions are unusual, are holding back their supply.

In Brooklyn, Federal and county authorities continued separate investigations. Before a United States grand jury wholesale dealers testified regarding increased grain and sugar prices, blaming farmers for holding back the former staple, and on the war for preventing normal American imports of sugar.

It was understood at the Federal building that testimony developed by United States Attorney Young recently probably would lead to indictments. The county inquiry, before a supreme court justice, developed that large quantities of sugar have been stored in warehouses by dealers and that many companies have been asked to store sugar indefinitely.

Henry F. Cochran, counsel for the American Sugar Refining Company, several of whose officers have been subpoenaed to appear at the county inquiry, promised to bring the company's books to court.

"We have to depend on foreign countries for our raw material," the attorney said, "and the transportation facilities that have brought it from abroad have been almost entirely destroyed, nearly all raw sugar being imported on foreign bottoms. No ships are now available and the prospect for resumption of importations is problematical."

Wm. W. Gardiner, a sugar expert and statistician, testified that the Cuban crop, which supplies the bulk of raw sugar used in the United States is plentiful this year and that there has been little or no trouble in getting it to this country. Through this witness it was brought out that the local wholesale price of sugar has increased from 4 to 7 1-2 cents a pound since May.

COLLIER STORSTAD BACK IN MOTREAL

Montreal, Aug. 24.—The collier Storstad is back in port as good as ever. This is her first appearance here since she sank the Empress of Ireland off Father Point on May 29th last. She arrived this morning with a load of coal from Sydney, Captain Anderson being in command as formerly.

FORTUNE SALVAGED FROM EMPRESS WRECK

Germans and Oustrians Will be Housed There During the War

New York, Aug. 25.—In addition to the purser's safe, the recovery of which was reported last week, divers have succeeded in raising $250,000 in silver bullion from the hull of the sunken steamship Empress of Ireland. Word to this effect was received by a salvage company here doing the work. All the mail bags also have been found, it is said.

$1,000 LOOT TAKEN THIEVES IN 36 HOURS

New Orleans, Aug. 25.—Property valued at nearly $1,000 was reported stolen from various places during the past thirty-six hours.

Philip Caplan, of 1702 South Rampart street, complained that some time Thursday afternoon a thief stole from his residence a pair of diamond earrings valued at $300.

Harry Hardy, of the Commercial-Germania Trust and Savings Bank, reported that the residence at 1305 St. Mary street, formerly occupied by Dr. H. A. Veazie, had been entered and a lot of medical books, bronze chandeliers and other articles stolen, all valued at $415. The books were found in the possession of James Samuels, the negro arrested Wednesday by Corporal Harry Johnson and Patrolman Patrick Kennedy.

During the absence from home of the family of Antonny J. Bruno, 2923 Banks street, Thursday a thief entered and stole from the piano several pieces of jewelry valued at $48.

Mrs. Frank Cangelosi, of 1113 Bourbon street, was preparing some milk for her sick baby at 3 o'clock Friday morning when she saw a negro burglar ransacking her wardrobe in the second bedroom. The negro beat a hasty retreat when Mrs. Cangelosi screamed. The thief took $12.50 in currency. He gained entrance by putting his hand through the blinds of the front door and pulling back the latch.

FRENCH PUT BAN ON DRINKING OF ABSINTHE

Paris, Aug. 25.—The Academy of Medicine has adopted a resolution congratulating the authorities on forbidding the drinking of absinthe—"A poison which destroys or enfeebles the vitality and intellect."

The streets of Paris are enlivened with occasional war scenes. A large number of foreign volunteers, one of whom carried a big French flag, marched past the Louvre today singing the "Marseillaise." Many of them were youths.

Sweethearts and wives of the men enlisting accompanied them to the trains, and they were cheered along the way.

MAY APPROPRIATE GERMAN PROPERTY

Ottawa, Aug. 25.—The Government has under consideration the question of appropriating the property held in Canada by Germans who are aliens or who are engaged in the war against the allies. It is understood that not only timber lands and farm property on a large scale is in the hands of Germans, who are not citizens of Canada, but also oil lands recently acquired. Two or three years ago a German count purchased 29,000,000 acres of timber lands in British Columbia. This, it is expected, will revert to the Province. Such action would not apply, of course, to Germans who are citizens of Canada.

TROOP TRAINS FROM THE WEST

Calgary Regiment and Army Service Corps en Route to Valcartier

North Bay, Aug. 25.—The 103rd Regiment and 11th Army Service Corps, of Calgary, passed through North Bay to-day en route to Val Cartier. The train consisted of two sections, carrying seven hundred men, under the command of Major Aiken and Captain McLeod. During the next few days it is expected that eighteen trains of soldiers will pass through here, including the Australian and New Zealand contingents. The latter are expected to arrive in Vancouver Friday of this week.

The 98th Regiment sent 42 men from Kenora for Valcartier.

Cottagers at Wasaga Beach sent $38 as a contribution to the Hospital Ship.

PETES TAKE SECOND GAME OF THE SERIES

Yesterday was Ladies' Day at the ball park, and the fanettes were out in large numbers, although the attendance was not as great as usual on this popular day. The Petes took the Red Sox into camp for the second win of the series, getting the big end of a 3—1 score. Chase opposed Schettler in the box, with the odds slightly in favor of the visiting twirler. Both pitchers only allowed seven hits, and both issued only one pass. Chase struck out three men, Schettler four. But at the bat, in three trips to the plate, the Red Sox slab artists got to Louie for two singles and a double, while the local pitcher only secured a single off Chase. A feature of the game was the three bagger by King, and doubles by Kelly and Chase.

The Petes close their series with the Brantford team for the season to-day when Belting will likely be the choice to work in the box. For the last three days of the week the fans will have an opportunity of seeing Doc Reisling's London Cockneys in action.

POPE'S TASTE SMIPLE AND SHOCKED VATICAN

When the quiet Cardinal Sarto entered the Vatican as pontiff he took a look around the papal kitchen and saw cooks fairly falling over each other. The new Pope stood aghast at the size of his culinary staff.

"Surely," he said, "it is not necessary to have seven cooks in order to make me a little soup!"

This little incident characterized the present Pope. He was simplicity itself, and democratic in his every-day relations with other folks.

The Pope's "little soup" was sometimes supplemented by a plate of macaroni, and generally supplemented by a little meat, cheese and fruit. On Fridays he was accustomed to eat a dish of haricot beans or of "polenta," the corn meal mush that is a staple with the Italian peasants.

The Pope's dislike of formality and his scorn of custom and precedent created consternation at the Vatican when he first appeared there. Papal etiquette held that the pontiff should always dine alone, in solitary grandeur. The Popes had dined that way for centuries, hence it was assumed that the Popes would always dine that way. Pius shattered this assumption.

One of the first things he did in the Vatican was to invite his private secretary to dine with him. That was shocking, but when on the following day he had three guests at dinner, the consternation of the papal courtiers knew no bounds. They delicately hinted to him that it wasn't in accord with papal precedents to do such a thing.

His answer was to issue orders for a dinner for five. After that they let him have his way.

In the same off-hand fashion Pius X has abolished the old rule that had it that visitors should genuflect three times upon coming into the presence of the pontiff, and bow themselves out in leaving his presence. Pius was wont to go to meet his visitors in a most informal way and to go to the door with them when they departed.

This simplicity of demeanor characterized the Pope from his earliest youth. It is said that as a boy he was full of fun and mischief, not averse to an occasional lapse into truancy, and not so impeccable that he wouldn't occasionally raid an orchard or a vineyard. However, he was a good student.

A certain senor Parolin, who knew Sarto when they were boys, tells of how he used to come home from school only to be met with a parental order to take the family donkey out to graze.

"Thus I see him yet," says Parolin, "with his Caesar, Herodotus or some book of mathematics, studying and holding the cord with the animal nibbled the delicacies of the roadside."

When Sarto was a bishop he was wont to prepare and serve refreshments for his visitors with his own hands. A Venetian nobleman tells of how he called on the bishop one morning hurrying to the episcopal residence from the railway station and was forced to go into the episcopal kitchen and drink coffee brewed by the bishop's own hand. The count and the bishop ate breakfast together on the kitchen table.

PORTRAIT POSING

Amateur photographers do not, in many cases, pay sufficient attention to the composition of the picture they are taking, particularly when the photograph is a portrait taken indoors. A quite plain person will often make a charming picture if suitably and gracefully posed against a good background.

Most amateur indoor photographs show too much furniture. As a matter of fact, a better picture is invariably obtained when a greater part of the furniture is moved out of range of the camera. It does away with that crowded appearance seen in so many otherwise good photographs, and gives, instead, a sense of space and proportion.

Amateurs may obtain excellent effects by posing their subjects before a mirror. The portrait, which should always have a dark, hanging background, may be taken in profile with the full face reflected in the mirror. Or the position may be reversed, the profile outlined in the mirror, and the full, or three-quarter, face looking at the camera.

PASSAGES SHOWING TREND OF SOME RECENT BOOKS

What an asset, this inherited instinct to work! I inherited an instinct as strong to shoot and ride to hounds. I know heaps of things which are darkest mystery to you. You know absolutely nothing about the most interesting subject on earth—woman.—From "Loot," by Horace Annesley Vachell.

You've made a new man out of me maybe the stuff isn't much, but there is a soul in it somewhere. You've given that soul something to get a grip on.—From Randall Parrish's "Gordon Craig, Soldier of Fortune."

If a horse thief knows that there's merely a chance the community will get mad enough to hang him, he'll take that chance in hopes it may not be the time. If on the other hand he knows that every time he steals a horse he's going to be caught and fixed even, he thinks a long time before he steals it.—From "Gold," by Stewart Edward White.

"Nothing makes a woman more glad than to have a well-seen husband."—From "Ladies Whose Bright Eyes," by F. M. Hueffer.

My one idea is to make him as happy as I can and when a woman does this for a man I don't think she has time to run around by herself.—From Ellen Glasgow's "Virginia."

Try This at Ottawa

A protest has been raised against the amount of public money which American legislators spend on baths. The sum expended by the House of Representatives last year was $6,200. But the free bath is not the only privilege the representatives of the American people enjoy. They can get a free shave and a free hair-cut as often as they have a mind to. They can even get their faces massaged and their hands manicured at the public cost.

Footrace Decides Rent

An ancient custom of a race deciding the rent was witnessed at Bourne (Lincolnshire) recently. A race was run by two boys during the letting of the Whitebread Meadow, and upon the return of the winning boy the last bidder was returned the tenant for the year. After expenses are paid the rent money is spent in bread, which is distributed to householders in the town.

Reversible Currycomb

The currycomb recently patented is a square plate, each side of which is formed to perform a different duty.

Normal Eye Color

The normal human eye is blue, say scientists, other colors being caused by the presence of different pigments in the iris.

This "Movie" Actor Talks

AL ERNEST GARCIA

who has been everything from the daring Daniel in the lions' den and handsome gladiator in the Roman arena to the gentle hero who woos by moonlight to the accompaniment of the dulcet mandolin. But he depends more upon his vocabulary for, while Garcia's profession is soundless, he is not a silent actor—he talks in very forcible terms during some of the scenes in which he appears. He says it helps to say what you are trying to "put over."

QUEER TASTES OF ANIMALS

Some animals and also birds have very extraordinary tastes for different foods and drinks quite apart from those with which Nature has provided them, and it is in the knowledge of these peculiarities that the skill of the trapper lies.

So marked is a monkey's taste for an intoxicating liquor made from the fermented juice of rice that this drink is invariably used for trapping these creatures. Bears are very partial to alcohol, and many of the performing variety find their highest reward in honey and beer, or rum-and-water mixed with sugar.

Canaries delight in eating lettuce, which is well known for its narcotic properties, and they will eat it to such an extent as to leave themselves stupified for a long time afterwards.

Foxes, ordinarily the most cunning and, consequently, the most difficult to capture of animals, readily succumb to a trap baited with the body of a dead cat.

Stoats, weasels, etc., the bane of the gamekeeper, are seldom proof against a trap sprinkled with oil from fish.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

"WHEN THE MISTS HAVE CLEARED AWAY"

TEXT: "For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face."—I Corinthians 13:12.

I tried it yesterday in the modern sense, for I looked out through a frosted pane. Beyond was a fine stretch of Canadian landscape, the garden spot of a province, with the border-line of lake as a background. But I saw through the glass darkly, for on the pane was frozen mist. A little boy, annoyed at the hindrance, thawed out a little spot with his breath, and kept scraping the edges with his finger nails, to enlarge the transparent area, but the frost king regained his grip almost instantly and my laddie had to content himself with an occasional peep through the wee clear corners. It was the best we could do and we soon turned back to our magazines, where pictures took the place of the real scenery so provokingly withheld from our gaze.

That is the modern picture of the text. The figure is just a bit changed. In Paul's time the glass was of scraped horn, thin enough to admit light and yet so opaque that only the dim contour of things could be seen through it. Now since we no longer have to see through a glass darkly, we change the metaphor to the times. The hymn-writer has spoken of the mists through which we must look, and has sung:

"We shall know each other better
When the mists have rolled away."

COLD CHEERLESS HOMES

Igloos of Eskimos Crowded and Unsanitary

The igloos used by the Eskimos of the bleak north are small in size, necessarily overcrowded, and every crevice is carefully sealed during the long winter months in order to maintain a comfortable temperature within. The different forms of dwellings on the Arctic coast are the sod igloos, which are the standard and are constructed on two different plans.

The first type of igloo, with windows and doors in the walls, is a frame structure of logs or lumber. The walls and roof are covered thickly with sod, and one or two windows are set into the walls. The home contains two separate compartments, which are connected by a small door, the living room proper and the entry or shed. The shed is somewhat smaller in size than the living quarters and is used as a storeroom for provisions, clothing, sleds, and other articles too numerous to mention. The entrance into the igloo is also constructed of timber, and covered with sod, but the plan of construction differs somewhat from the one just described. This igloo also has two compartments, a living-room and a storeroom, connected by a low passageway. The entrance into the home is through an open hatch in the roof of the entry by means of a ladder. Then by passing through the tunnel one enters the living-room.

The living-room of some of the igloos are curtained off to separate the sleeping quarters from other parts of the household, but the majority have no such arrangements, all the household duties being conducted in the single room. The furniture equipment usually consists of a small stove, a few dishes, and improvised beds. The board floor, which is usually fairly clean, serves the purpose of chairs and tables. A few of the families own sewing machines and occasionally a phonograph.

Javanese Marriages

A marriage among the Javanese is quite a lengthy ordeal. Such a thing as courtship is practically unknown. The parents choose partners for their children, although the latter are consulted and their consent obtained. The parents discuss among themselves the terms of the marriage, and then the girl's parents give a betrothal pledge to those of the bridegroom, who soon after offer the purchase price for the bride in silver, jewels, stocs, food and so on. Each of the girl's parents also receives some special personal gift. On the day when the presents are delivered all the relatives and friends on both sides are invited to a series of festivities and banquets, which last several days, being furnished first by one side and then by the other. The eve of the actual wedding, which usually takes place a week later, is spent by the future husband and wife in a vigil, without which it is thought that great ill-fortune would follow. Next day the happy couple, with their parents and friends, appear before the priest, who duly unites them.

A healthy person must eat healthy food. Do you know how to distinguish healthy from unhealthy food? For instance, a good egg will sink in water. Boiled eggs which adhere to the shell are fresh. The shell of a fresh egg has a lime-like surface.

THE GRACE OF PUNCTUALITY

Text: "A time to keep."—Ecclesiastes 3:6.

Some Canadian teachers, on a holiday at Washington, D.C., missed meeting President Wilson because they were not at the White House on time! "The door was shut." The foolish virgins were told that they would not hear the bridegroom's voice. The great nuisance of the business and professional, the social and the religious world is the laggard who will not keep his engagements. I know a dentist who will solemnly make an engagement with you for to-morrow at nine. He would make it even earlier were he permitted. Will he be there on time? Never! At nine-fifteen he comes rushing in violently denouncing the street car company. In every committee meeting, however important, there will be the late-comer who delays the work of six others by his tardiness. The same people are late at church, at the theatre, at dinner.

As with other bad habits, tardiness is usually a species of selfishness. Unconsciously laggards say: "Let others wait for me; I do not mind disturbing them." Even at recitals where artists are peculiarly disturbed by late-comers, these sinners against the public weal are not thoughtful enough to break their miserable rule. At nearly every wedding, some guests rush in while the ceremony is proceeding. I have even heard of people telephoning the bride to request a quarter-hour's delay for their dear sakes. Did you ever see a Sunday School excursion get away on time? You may delay the embarking five, ten or fifteen minutes, but just as sure as you get ten yards away from the wharf you will see three or four women, half a dozen children, and a few baskets scooting down the platform, late! And they will be late next year also. Indeed the habit grows like the taking of drugs. Many a preacher who berates other bad habits is guilty of this heinous offence. He enters the pulpit a few minutes late, or delays the opening of the concert until 8.30 o'clock, keeping the faithful waiting for the unfaithful, fining the punctual ones for the tardy. John Wesley, prince of preachers and organizers, was one of the most punctual of men. He expected his carriage at the door to the minute. "When I must prepare for a journey, I dress early," said he; "then I have the remaining time for work without being hurried." Punctuality, somebody said, enabled Wesley to do a great amount of work with perfect composure.

Punctuality is such a prudent thing. A young man who asked counsel of Sir Walter Scott was given this unique advice: "When a regiment is under march, the rear is [illegible] thrown into great confusion because the front does not move on time." Punctuality makes work easy; tardiness enslaves. A late train is laid out at every junction point. A train on time is anticipated by every despatcher and every switchman. Did you ever take a ride on the Empire State express? There is something in the very jerk of the conductor's hand as he pulls out his watch and yells, "All aboard!" that warns you against expecting any mercy for late-comers. On time to the seconds the wheels turn and the giant locomotive bounds ahead, through the suburbs and out into the country; past hamlets and through fairly pretentious cities; slighting country towns galore, and not even hesitating at time-honored junction points; on, on we fly, for the great metropolis must be reached on schedule time, and there is not a minute's margin anywhere. The road is clear, and there is not a minute's margin anywhere. The road is clear, switches are turned for us, accep-

Our Point of View

Intoxicated with war the monarchs of Europe are now revelling, but there will be some awful headaches when their spree is over.

—o—

"In the North Sea lives a whale," says the comic opera, but the chances are that it has already bumped into one of the floating mines and doesn't live there any longer.

—o—

Some of the newspapers are publishing bird-eye views of the situation in Belgium, which impress us as having been taken by a bird that is cross-eyed.

Czar Nicholas has promised to grant Poland and the Jews civic and religious liberty. It is obvious that our old friend Nick realizes that this is no time to have a fire in his rear.

—o—

Our young friend Clarence Snodgrass wants to know what the military experts in the newspaper offices do for a living when there is no war in progress. We can assure him that they put in some busy hours slapping paste on press dispatches.

—o—

A news item says Chicago will punish dealers who advance the price of food beyond reason. If Chicago will wire us when any one is published we will celebrate the event by firing a cannon. We have been wanting to do it for a long timme.

—o—

An exchange says: "The American farm furnishes the nation with intelligence as well as good." That may be true, but we have observed that when the "intelligence" from the farm comes to town it generally plunges with shouts of joy into the white light district and the hands of the police.

—o—

What a striking and happy contrast there is between the flapdoodle war poem of Robert Bridges and the inspiring verse of James Bernard Fagan, entitled "The Hour," from which we quote the following:

> "We have shut the gates of the Dover Straits,
> And North, where the tide runs free,
> Cheek by jowl, our watchdogs prowl,
> Gray hulks in a graver sea.
> And the prayer that England prays tonight
> To the lord of our destiny,
> As the foam of our plunging prow is white,
> We have stood for peace and we war for right,
> God give us victory.

Every Stiff Joint Limbered, Rheumatism Cured!

THAT OLD FAMILY REMEDY, "NERVILINE" IS GUARANTEED FOR THE WORST CASES CURES NEURALGIA, BACKACHE, AND LUMBAGO

Rheumatism to-day is unnecessary. It is so well understood and so readily curable that every day we have reports of old chronics being freed of their tormenter.

"I can speak confidently of the Nerviline treatment, for the simple reason that it cured me," writes Albert B. Cornelius, from Kingston. "You can't imagine how stiff and lame and sore I was. Nights at a time I couldn't sleep well. I followed the Nerviline directions carefully—had it rubbed into the sore regions four or five times every day. Every rubbing helped to reduce the pain. The swelling went down. I got a fair measure of relief in a week. I also took two Ferrozone Tablets with my meals. They increased my appetite and spirits, purified my blood and toned up my system generally.

"I am as well to-day as a man could be—in perfect good health. I give Nerviline all the credit."

A large family size bottle of Nerviline costs only 50c., or the trial size 25c., and is useful in a hundred ills in the family. Whether it's toothache, earache, headache, neuralgia, lame back or a cold, Nerviline will cure just as readily as it will cure rheumatism. For family use nothing equals Nerviline.

The Passing Show

The text of the correspondence between Sir Edward Grey and the German Imperial Chancellor, antedating the breach between England and Germany, is to hand by mail. It reveals the highly interesting fact that if the Kaiser had played his cards differently he might have secured a permanent neutrality agreement with England; he might have protected himself against the future hostility of England, France and Russia, or he might have smashed the Triple Entente.

The British Ambassador, telegraphing from Berlin on July 29, said that in an interview the German Chancellor had invited the evening before the latter had said that "ever since he had been Chancellor the object of his policy had been, as Sir Edward was aware, to bring about an understanding with England; he trusted that these assurances might form the basis of that understanding which he so much desired. He had in mind a general neutrality agreement between England and Germany, though it was, of course, at the present moment too early to discuss details, and an assurance of British neutrality in the conflict which the present crisis might possibly produce would enable him to look forward to the realization of his desire."

Sir Edward Grey's response was that England could not bind herself to neutrality on the terms of permitting France to be crushed and become subordinate to German policy or the violation of the Belgium neutrality. But he added:

> If the peace of Europe can be preserved, and the present crisis safely passed, my own endeavor will be to promote some arrangement in which Germany could be a party, by which she could be assured that no aggressive or hostile policy would be pursued against her or her allies by France, Russia, and ourselves jointly or separately.
> I have desired this and worked for it, as far as I could, through the last Balkan war crisis, and Germany, having a corresponding object, our relations sensibly improved. The idea has hitherto been too Utopian to form the subject of definite proposals, but if the present crisis so much more acute than any that Europe has gone through for generations, be safely passed, I am hopeful that the relief and reaction which will follow may make possible some more definite rapprochment between the Powers than has been possible hitherto.

There was no reply from Germany to this overture and on July 31, the day before Germany declared war on Russia, Sir Edward again cabled to the British Ambassador at Berlin in which, after saying that the stumbling block to peace was Austrian mistrust of Servian assurances and Russian mistrust of Austrian intentions with regard to the independence and integrity of Servia, he made this significant proposition to Germany:

> It has occurred to me that, in the event of this mistrust preventing a solution being found by Vienna and St. Petersburg, Germany might sound Vienna and I would undertake to sound St. Petersburg, whether it would be possible for the four disinterested Powers to offer to Austria that they would undertake to see that she obtained full satisfaction of her demands on Servia, provided that they did not impair Servian sovereignty and the integrity of Servian territory.
> I said to the German Ambassador this morning that if Germany would get any reasonable proposal put forward which made it clear that Germany and Austria were striving to preserve European peace, and that Russia and France would be unreasonable if they rejected it, I would support it at St. Petersburg and Paris, and go the length of saying that if Russia and France would not accept it, His Majesty's Government would have nothing more to do with the consequences; but, otherwise, I told the German ambassador that if France became involved we should be drawn in.

Here obviously was a basis on which an agreement would have been assured or Russia and France deprived of the ally who, by reason of her command of the sea, was essential to their plans. But apparently the German government wholly mistrusted the intentions of the Russian mobilization and the Kaiser hastily declared war.

The tremendous tragedy is all the more to be deplored in the light of the knowledge that but for the suddenness with which it broke the incidental causes which led to it might have been made the foundation for enduring peace.

INDICTMENTS AHEAD IN FOOD PRICE PROBE

Washington, Aug. 25.—Attorney General McReynolds expects several indictments to be returned within the next few days as the result of the investigation ordered by President Wilson of the increase in food prices since the outbreak of war in Europe.

Government officials would not say today in what cities the indictments would be sought, but it was declared no effort would be made to localize the prosecutions in any particular part of the country.

Mr. McReynolds has been in frequent communication with the White House since the investigation was started and expects to make his formal report soon. The president has directed that prosecutions be pressed vigorously.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: "In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,806 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,800 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 868 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Wire "Dish-cloth"

Use a wire dish-cloth, which may be bought for a trifle, for cleaning pots. It will save much time.

Stamps Stuck Together

If stamps have become glued together, lay a thin paper over them and run a hot iron over it. Take stamps apart at once.

Making Eyelets

When punching an eyelet, place the material over a piece of white soap. This makes a clean edge, which is easily worked over.

Chopped Cheese

When preparing macaroni and cheese, put the cheese through the food-chopper instead of grating it. Much less time will be required.

To Remove Ink Spots

To remove ink spots from wash materials soak the spot with kerosene. Finally rinse with kerosene, then wash as usual.

Keeping Bread Warm

A good way to keep a pan of bread dough warm over night is to set it on a warm soapstone wrapped in a clean flannel.

Darning Hint

Sew black netting over the hole in stockings and darn in the usual way, but through the meshes, skipping every other one. The result will be a firm, neat darn. If white netting be used, the same idea may be used for knitted underwear.

To Clean a Steel Buckle

Steel buckles and ornaments that have become slightly rusted, may be cleaned as follows: Rub well with sweet oil; let stand for a couple of days, then rub with powdered, unslaked lime, and polish with chamois.

To Test a Broom

When buying a broom, test it by pressing the edge against the floor. If the straws bristle out and bend, the broom is a poor one. They should remain in a solid, firm mass.

To Run Ribbon

To run ribbon through beading, or through a [illegible], fasten a small safety pin to one end of the ribbon and use as though it were a tape-needle, which is seldom to be found when wanted.

Loose Knife Handles

When knife handles loosen, fill the cavity in the handle two-thirds full of mixed resin and brickdust, then heat the shaft of the knife and press it into its place. Hold it till firmly set.

New Telephones

Following are additions and changes in the list of Bell Telephone subscribers since the issue of the last directory. Subscribers should cut this list out and paste it in their directories.

REFORESTATION PROFITABLE

The Only City Forest in Canada Situated at Guelph

City forests are not, as yet, in vogue in this country. Perhaps the only city forest in Canada is that at Guelph, Ont., where a small area has been planted surrounding the springs which furnish the city's water supply, states a bulletin of the forestry branch of the department of the interior. In many of the counties of eastern Canada, however, are large areas of waste land, originally forested, and capable only of producing forests. Ontario has a counties reforestation act making possible the acquisition of such waste land for reforestation purposes by municipal councils, but up to the present time only one county has availed itself of this opportunity. Quebec and the Dominion government have also passed legislation to encourage tree planting, and the Dominion forestry branch recently distributed nearly 4,000,000 trees from the nurseries at Indian Head for woodlot planting in western Canada. The growing of forest trees on waste land can in most cases be made a profitable undertaking, besides providing labor to a considerable number of men, yet no extensive reforestation has as yet been done in eastern Canada.

A Cure For Warts

The Budapest correspondent of the "Lancet" states that Dr. Felix Szontagh, of that city, has discovered a new and simple way of treating warts. It consists in covering the wart and the surrounding skin with ordinary caoutchouc plaster, and leaving it so covered for weeks—even, if necessary, for two or three months. Whenever the plaster becomes loose it must be removed and replaced by a new piece. As a rule the plaster is to be changed once in three or four days. Any adherent residue of the caoutchouc is to be removed with ether or petrol, care being taken that the wart or surrounding skin shall not be rubbed energetically, because irritation of the skin is not conducive to the disappearing of the wart.

This motion was eventually defeated by fifty-two to fifteen. Mr. Evanturel did not vote. Mr. Studholme voted with the Opposition. TWO GERMANS ESCAPE JAIL; HIDE ON SHIP

New York, Aug. 25.—What should be done with two escaped prisoners of war, Germans, who reached this port as stowaways on the United Fruit steamer Almirante (British), raised a problem today for the solution of the Washington government. They are now in the custody of immigration officials at Ellis Island awaiting word from Washington as to their fate.

Formerly members of the Almirante's crew, the pair were put ashore at Kingston, Jamaica, with other German sailors at the order of the British military authorities. In some manner they escaped, boarded the Almirante again and stowed away. The Almirante's captain on the ship's arrival today turned them over to the immigration inspectors as "escaped prisoners." They are described as Frederick Affensculler and Frank Ibe.

AS LIGHT AS LAGER
BUT BETTER FOR YOU

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. The Parsonage Door Bell

The Parsonage Door Bell— I. [illegible]

Text: "Suffer me, that I may boast myself a little."—2nd Corinthians 11:16.

Permit me to boast a little. I want to advertise my wares and not mine only: I speak for my profession. I want to talk to you about people who ring parsonage door bells, or as it oftener happens in this parish, knock at the preacher's office door. Yet I do not want you to regard my words as egotistical. If Eva Booth or Bramwell Booth, or Jane Addams came to Massey Hall and told of their achievements, their callers, their slumming, you would think it glorious, and you would wonder why the average church did not do this work. Yet all the time the preachers of this and every other city have experiences, just as thrilling, about which nothing reaches the public.

The object of this sermon is not to get you to think mine an extraordinary work, but to enlist your active sympathy with the office and struggles of the parish minister, who, too often, is supposed to be a rather idle and somewhat superfluous mortal.

1.—The New Arrival

I can tell him by his clothes. He is fresh from the old land. His suit was made in England, Scotland or Ireland. It is of old country cut, trousers pretty tight and turned up; vest cut high and rounded at the collar. The most eloquent sign I ever saw in a tailor's window read: "Old country clothes altered to Canadian styles." But I am honored to receive the new arrival's first call. He will be worth something to Bond Street Church. Even if he is not, there is a chance to make a life-long friend. The preacher can tell him about the runways for positions and give him some general good advice. I honor him for what he will be to-morrow. He will soon have a lot paid for and a shack built and by and by he will have the mortgage paid off. Do not curl your lip at him. When I joined the Methodist church up in good old Berlin a half dozen other youths of my age, a half-grown girl, two young factory women and three married couples comprised the class of new members. As I was leaving the church that morning I heard a good old class leader remark to a well-dressed lady: "Wasn't that a fine class our pastor received this morning?" The reply was: "Yes, it was all right, but the trouble is that we haven't received one good family into our church this year." Recalling the individuals received that morning after the lapse of twenty-five years, I remark that one is an honored missionary leader in Western China, another a member of the legislature of Saskatchewan; the half-grown girl has become a devoted nurse. One of the young married men is a magistrate in a Western city. The church has held them all. It may be that if the old lady is still alive she would to-day covet the acquaintance of those same people as of tolerably good families.

From the immigration quarantine pen to a new-world aristocracy is a distance so short that it can be traversed between the sunrise and sunset of one generation. In twenty years from now the children of this young fellow who has just gone out of my office will be sitting in their pew while some old-country garbed youth is being received and esteeming him lightly because "he looks like an immigrant."

2.—The Enthusiastic Man

He is a big tall fellow. I forget just what he called for. Maybe to borrow a book or to tell me an incident or to bring me a magazine or to present me with some toothsome morsel of food. He dashes in, stops a minute and out he goes. But he leaves a blaze of enthusiasm behind him. I work better after he is gone. He is a talkative man and for once I do most of the listening. I do not like the silent man, the sphinx, the fellow who looks cunning and wants me to do all the talking. I know it was said of Von Moltke that he could hold his tongue in seven different languages, but I would rather have a man talk in one [illegible]

WHITE LEGHORNS ON FARM

Upon close analysis it will be found that Leghorns are better adapted to artificial conditions of poultry keeping than are most other breeds, says M. A. Jull in Weekly Witness. They are a small, active, breed with a nervous disposition, and they will stand crowding more than will general purpose or meat breeds. Under average conditions they will give better success when artificial conditions of hatching and rearing are employed than with heavier breeds. The chicks are easy to raise. For two years in succession we have raised far more White Leghorn chicks in proportion to the eggs set than can be said of our utility classes of poultry, so that, all things concerned, the White Leghorn will probably stand a little rougher use and more careless treatment than other breeds, although this is not to be considered as a distinct advantage. On the other hand, it is doubtful if the Leghorns will stand our winter weather quite as well as our Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or White Wyandottes. I think they should be given warmer houses, and then they will do practically as well. We have had some White Leghorn cockerels with some Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels in a colony house 8x12 feet, and it dropped to 20 below zero in the house during our cold snap. The Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels had their combs frozen, while the Leghorn cockerels had their combs frozen off almost entirely.

The chief value of the White Leghorn lies in its ability to produce broilers quickly, and more especially to produce a large number of eggs rather cheaply. Leghorn, of course is not a good table bird except as a broiler, and the broiler business must be considered as a side line in poultry keeping. No attempts should be made to fatten Leghorns for roasting purposes, as such attempt usually results in loss of time and money. The great asset of the White Leghorn is its egg laying ability, and this is the factor which should be considered chiefly in keeping of White Leghorns on the farm or on commercial poultry plants. Then, above all, more important than breed is the strain, and by all means great care should be taken to select and breed as good a strain of Single Comb White Leghorns as is possible to obtain.

Fable of a Land-tiller

Once there lived a farmer who worked so hard he was too tired to go to church on Sunday. His hired men refused to stand for the first and last call to breakfast at 3.45 a.m. and left before the end of the week. His wife milked the cows and hoed the garden because help was so hard to keep. The farmer voted against hard roads, and when he was elected to the School Board hired for teacher a young girl just out of High School, because she would take the job for thirty dollars a month. In short, he squeezed the dollars so hard the eagle

ILLUMINATED HOOPS

Suggestion For Making Croquet a Game For Dark Nights

Sometimes a game of croquet has to be curtailed because of the trouble in finding the arches or wickets in the dusk. The wire is so near the color of the ground that as soon as the light of day fades a bit it is necessary to have some one locate each wicket before the player makes his shot. A good way to obviate this difficulty is to get a short length of white rubber tubing and slip it over each arch so that it will cover the top. This will make the arches stand out against the dark background of the earth in the evening. If desired, this tubing or the entire arch can be painted with a phosphorous paint that will glow at night.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND

Don't grumble or fume when tough work lies ahead,
But make up your mind, man, to do it!
Show courage and pluck, don't coward's tears shed,
If quickly you'd see yourself through it.
Should gathering clouds your horizon obscure,
And the storm in its fury burst,
Don't flinch from the ordeal, but bravely endure,
And boldly prepare for the worst.

Be manly, and tackle your duty each day.
Prove you've nerve and the will power to do it.
Help your fellows along, who have dropped by the way.
Give cheerfully; you'll never rue it.
'Tis a kind action here, and a little help there
From a comrade who's willing to give it
That heartens a fellow his trouble to bear,
And finally sees him outlive it.

If e'er you are tempted to whimper and doubt
When the pathway of duty is rough,
Remember the heart that is steadfast and stout
Is the one that withstands a rebuff.
And tackle with confidence, valor, and skill
All hindrances placed in your way.
You'll quick climb the hill if you work with a will.
Make your mind up, and do it "to-day."

MRS. R. WARE

It's not that society women have lost confidence in the police force, but big, ugly dogs have become fashionable in New York. Mrs. Richard Ware, who returned from Europe, brought with her as one of many trophies a big, savage-looking Belgian "police dog." It's a bold highwayman that will attempt to molest Mrs. Ware when Prins is on police duty.

LOGOMOTIVES TOW SHIPS

Forty "Electric Mules" Will Operate at Panama Canal

The forty towing locomotives for hauling vessels through the locks of the Panama Canal weigh 82,500 pounds; measure 32 feet 9½ inches long by 8 feet wide by 9 feet 2 inches the greatest height over the cabs; have an available tractive effort as high as 47,500 pounds, and a windlass rope pull of 25,000 pounds, and four of them, two on each side, will ordinarily propel steamships through the locks. Sometimes six engines will be needed to handle extra large vessels; in every case two astern, acting as a brake on the ship's movements, will give direction to her course. No vessel will be allowed to enter the locks and go through on her own power. The locomotive is propelled by means of a rack rail while towing and while going up or down the steep grades from one level to another at a speed of two miles per hour. While running idle or on return tracks the speed is changed to five miles per hour, and the machine is propelled by the regular traction method, the track pinion being entirely released. This change is effected by manually-operated clutches located in the gear mechanism in connection with a lever in each cab similar to a steam locomotive. The locomotive is driven by two 75 horse-power totally inclosed motors of the mill-type, one being direct connected through reduction to each axle.

HOW DO YOU SLEEP

Most people sleep on their sides, with the knees drawn up.

Elephants always, and horses commonly, sleep standing up.

Birds, with the exception of owls and the hanging parrots of India, sleep with their heads turned tailward over the back and the beak thrust among the feathers between the wing and body.

Storks, gulls, and other long-legged birds sleep standing on one leg.

FUR FARMING INCEASING

Over $10,000,000 a Year Realized in the Sale of Pelts in Canada

The Ontario Department of Lands, Forestry and Mines, which has charge of the administration of Algonquin Park, has announced a policy of wholesale encouragement of fur-farming in Ontario. Since the park, with its magnificent natural retreats, has been a game preserve, fur-bearing animals have muultiplied so numerously in it that they can be trapped alive in large numbers without serious depletion of the colonies in the woods. The department has been selling a few mink and marten, but no effort at providing a systematic supply of animals for domestic breeding has hitherto been undertaken.

In connection with this effort to encourage domestic propagation of these fur animals it is interesting to note that the Commission of Conservation has paid considerable attention to the question. J. Walter Jones, the author of "Fur-farming in Canada," gives some valuable information summarising the status of the fur-raising industry in Canada. He says:

Would it surprise you to learn that the value of the fur skins produced each year in Canada is from three to five times the value of the wool and hides of Canadian sheep? The production of fur pelts on this continent is estimated variously from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000, and Canada's share of this is at least $10,000,000. What part of it comes from Ontario is not ascertainable. But the province is an important producer. The North-west country—the northern parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the vast territory north of the provincial boundaries is one of the richest game areas in the world. For instance, Ernest Seton Thompson estimates the number of caribou in this area at thirty million head, but they are rapidly [illegible] so are also the small fur-bearing animals.

In the United States, Government interest in domestication of the small fur animals has preceded interest in Canada. The Federal Government at Washington ordered in 1912 that experiments in breeding mink and marten be started, and its programme includes Alaska, seals, foxes and other animals. So that in taking up this question for Ontario the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines is working in company with other authorities.

In the past twenty years a great change has taken place in the fur industry. There is a tremendous demand for all kinds of furs, and a large decrease in the supply of high-priced varieties. Ten years ago skunk, muskrat and mink, for instance, were considered of little value, but these are now beginning to find a permanent niche in popular esteem. The rising prices have made the raising of some of the varieties a paying proposition, and this is now the case with mink, marten, fisher and perhaps beaver. There is, of course, no comparison between the commercial prospects in breeding these animals with the silver and black fox industry of Prince Edward Island. The tremendous financial plunging and juggling which has made fortunes overnight for so many fox-farmers on the Island will not be repeated in Ontario. In this province there are now about fifteen fox ranches, and many ranches for other animals. The demand for foundation stock has been keen, and directed principally to the Algonquin Park authorities. Now that a regular scale of prices has been set, and publicity given to the distribution of foundation stock, a lively market is expected.

HAPPY CONVICTS

A Swiss prison appears to be the very place in which to spend a cheap holiday, as you have practically all you want—a comfortable cell, central heating, electricity, good food, a fair quantity of wine or beer and tobacco, and a library. You can learn a trade, have plenty of exercise, and there is little work to do in return for all these advantages. Until a year ago, at Thorberg Prison, good conduct prisoners were even allowed out once a week on "parole," but, though no prisoners escaped, this custom has been suppressed.

Of all the Swiss prisons perhaps the jolliest is that of Kreuzlingen, in the Canton of Thurgau. The inmates have weekly smoking concerts, when the latest music hall songs can be heard, and good music, with the result that at evenings the townspeople—Kreublingen has nearly 6,000 inhabitants—gather enviously under the prison walls and promenade in the street enjoying the free entertainment, especially as some of the convicts have good voices. On these occasions there is no warden to prevent a conversation between the prisoners and their visitors across the wall, and thus the former learn the latest news.

It is noticed that the prisoners are very polite when young women are present. Packets of cigarettes and other small luxuries—not on the regular menu—find their way over the walls, and this custom, though strictly forbidden, is winked at. These pleasant little "soirées musicales" are now threatened with extinction.

It is only fair to the authorities to say that crime is decreasing, as the population increases, in the country.

COPPER
MILLIONS OF TONS OF PAY ORE

Copper is one of the world's chief necessities, and the demand for it is constantly increasing. Growth of the electrical industry largely accounts for this. Telegraph and Telephone Wire—Trolley Wire—Trolley Wheels and the multitude of other Electrical Machines and Parts—Power Transmission Wire and the use of the metal in various valuable Alloys—these are some of the places where copper is consumed, and while its production is enormous it is used about as rapidly as it can be mined and made ready. THIS IS WHY OWNERSHIP IN A COPPER MINE IS ONE OF THE MOST SATISFACTORY SOURCES OF INCOME POSSIBLE TO IMAGINE.

TIME TO START

Naturally the time to secure an interest in any sort of enterprise is at the start, because it is then that money for development and equipment is needed and this is, of course, the reason why shares in the project are released! When these necessities are provided for the Opportunity passes.

For years we have been spending time, effort and money in getting together one of the largest known copper deposits, and we now own and control thousands of acres of land, covering veins of copper, ore carrying gold and silver values, extensive veins of coal, iron and lime.

The geology is so well defined as to make identifications of size and location of the copper bearing veins a perfect definite matter. In addition to this the estate has been thoroughly prospected by some 4,000 feet of work, there being more than 100 shafts, pits, cuts and tunnels, every one of which shows copper in paying quantities. The dumps of these openings run from 2 to 8 per cent in copper metal.

Facilities for economically winning the copper from its ores are remarkably fine. In the company's own ground are five known coal beds, insuring a perpetual supply of cheap fuel, easily accessible and located within a very short distance of the site chosen for its furnaces. Water and timber are also abundant and easy of access.

One of Colorado's most eminent mining engineers, after thoroughly examining this property, states in his report that the net profits resulting from operation of this property should range from $250,000 to $1,000,000 each year.

There is no uncertainty, no guesswork, about this project. Applied to it a definite cause will inevitably produce an equally definite effect. Equipment for mining these immense bodies of ore and reducing the metal in them to bullion means dividends—it can't mean anything else—and it is to provide this equipment and the funds required for its installation and the preliminary operating expenses of the estate that an interest in the project is offered to you.

It is YOUR OPPORTUNITY to join in a well planned, conservative, and exceptionally profitable business undertaking. The foundations are laid, the property is acquired and the next step—providing the equipment—is now being taken. So soon as this is accomplished your chance to secure a share in the enterprise will be gone.

Cheese Factory Destroyed.

Hastings, August 23.—Woodland cheese factory was completely destroyed by being struck by lightning, Mr. William Claffer, cheesemaker, lost nearly all of his household effects, which were in the building, only succeeding in getting his family and a few of his belongings out.

Was Known Here

Conductor McNeilley, one of the conductors arrested at Toronto, was well known in this vicinity as he was in charge of the Toronto-Ottawa train which goes through here en route east at 1.38 a.m., and en route west at 4.22 a.m.

Salvation Army Notes

The Salvation Army is holding a public meeting at Brawley's schoolhouse, North Monaghan, on Thursday night at 8 o'clock, with a view to establishing a Sunday school in that district and doing outpost work this fall and winter, holding a meeting once on Sunday and once or twice during the week.

Lindsay Bridge Guarded.

Lindsay, Aug. 24.—Sergeant Pest[illegible] of Lindsay, has been detailed by the C.P.R. to guard their bridge crossing the Scugog River just north of the town. This bridge is very important because it lies on a very important grain route and any damage done to it would greatly injure the work of the above road and impede all shipments of grain from the wheatfields of the west to eastern ports for transshipment to Europe.

A Modern Miracle.

A local man told a Times scribe yesterday a tale as follows. "You've heard of the miracle of turning water into wine. This was discounted this morning in my individual case. I went into a bar and asked for a glass of ale. When it came, after much pumping by the bartender, it looked kind of thin and tasted thinner. It seems that the hotel keeper, to clear the pipes of hops, had put the end of the beer pipe into a bucket of water and had forgotten to replace it in the ale cask.

A Mother's Love.

Some local mothers seem badly lacking in patriotism. Yesterday the Times learned where a local woman, within the past few days, succeeded in having her son, 24 years old prevented from going to the front after he had enlisted. In olden days a spartan woman used to give her son, going to the wars, a shield inscribed "With it or upon it," meaning he carried back dead in your shield or bring it with you as a conqueror.

Every allowance is made for a mother's love but the Empire is transcendent!

Hoch der Kaiser

As a Times reporter was going to dinner yesterday he was met by a man living on Romaine street. The latter asked "Mr. —, I often see in the papers the words Hoch Der Kaiser. What does that mean?" Our scribe replied "That means to hell with the Kaiser." Thanks, replied the Romaine street man, I'm glad to learn that. There's a German family living two doors from me and I'll spring a little joke on them by saying "Hoch der Kaiser."

The War and Drugs.

Yesterday a local druggist, when asked by the Times, "Has the present war had much effect on drug prices?" replied, "I should say it has. It affects the prices of perfumery from France and drugs we get from Germany. Some lines of drugs are now entirely out of stock and cannot be procured. When asked as to the war's effect on opium and its products such as laudanum, muriate and sulphate of morphine, apo-morphia, etc., the druggist replied, "gum opii, crude opium, is now worth $12 a pound. Most of the gum opium comes from Asia Minor. The producers are now afraid to ship this product for fear it might be seized in transit.

More Lindsay Burglaries.

Another daring burglary was committed sometime during last night or early this morning, when Tressider & Killaby's grocery store on Kent street, was burglarized. It seems that the thieves entered the store by breaking a window pane in the rear, and then reaching through and unfastening a catch on the window. They left the store by means of the back door, which they unlocked from within. This was open when the proprietors came to work this morning. A number of the things taken were 2 quarts of shelled walnuts, 1 dozen packages of Old Chum, 1 dozen plugs of chewing tobacco, considerable amount of biscuits and oranges, 1 package of chewing gum, 2 or 3 lbs. bacon, soap, one cake, 2 bottles of pickles, couple of pounds of butter, and about 40 cents in coppers.—Lindsay Warder.

September in Algonquin Park.

Two thousand feet above the sea level, Algonquin Park is one of the most delightful vacation playgrounds in America. The log cabin camps operated by the Grand Trunk Railway are most attractive and everyone is delighted with the general scheme. They are reached by stage from the Highland Inn, Algonquin Park Station, Ont., and will be kept open until September 15th. Just the out-of-way sort of spot for a delightful summer holiday in the wilderness with city conveniences. Splendid fishing, pure air, unlimited scope for the amateur photographer, and where health and pleasure abound. The period between the 1st and 15th of September are two of the most delightful weeks during the whole year for an outing in Algonquin Park. Handsome descriptive literature may be had on application to Mr. B. A. Ross, City Passenger & Ticket Agent, Grand Trunk Railway, Peterboro, Ont.

A Cheap Attempt at Fraud

Yesterday a well known local citizen went into a Peterboro' grocery store and ordered 50 cents worth of granulated sugar. A tied up bag containing the commodity was handed out. The citizen, partly in earnest and partly in fun, asked: "How many pounds are there in this bag? My reason in asking is that my wife is making preserves, and on your answer depends whether I have to climb the cellar steps to bring up our scales." The grocer replied, "There are supposed to be seven pounds in this package. However, when the grocer put the package on the scales it was nearly half a pound short of the required weight. This is a cheap and contemptible hold up, on the public. And it might be mentioned that the grocer in question is a big religious chanter. Should other stories of such petty attempted fraud occur The Times will welcome and give them publicity.

Red Cross Committee

At a meeting of the Women's Patriotic Association held in the Armouries it was decided to appoint a Red Cross Committee for Peterboro' to receive and forward any hospital supplies which the citizens of Peterboro' might contribute. The articles which the society desire most are: Feather pillows, rubber sheeting, night gowns, bandages, bed socks, sweater coats, toques, mittens, covers for hot water bags, dressing gowns and soft slippers. Contributions of money may be left at Kent's drug store. Other donations from the above list may be taken to Miss Peacock, Y. W. C. A. Those desiring further particulars will receive them from any member of the committee, as follows: Mrs. Rev. J. C. Davidson, convener; Mrs. Walter Roger, Mrs. Aylmer, Mrs. Boucher, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Roy, Mrs. G. J. Scott, Miss Peacock, Miss Davidson.

GERMANS BROKE RANKS AND FLED BEFORE COLD STEEL

Czar's Army in Eastern Prussia Wins Fresh Victories--Austrians Also Repulsed by Prussians--Austrians Claim a Victory

London, Aug. 26.—The Russian Embassy is in receipt of telegrams from the general staff at St. Petersburg, which announce fresh Russian victories against both Germany and Austria.

These messages declare that Russian troops now occupy the whole of the eastern and southern half of Eastern Prussia.

The Victorious Russians

London, Aug. 26.—The Russian general staff asserts that three armies continue offensive operations in an official communication published to-day and its contents telegraphed to Reuter's Telegram Co., by its correspondent in St. Petersburg.

Dated August 25, the communication says:

"Austrian rear guards, supported by artillery, attempted to hamper our march on the River Sereth in the region of Tarnopol, but after a series of fights they were repulsed.

"We continue to act on the offensive. We have taken numerous wagons, two quick-firing guns, and much ammunition. To the south of Gronbeschove we brought down an Austrian aeroplane, killing two officers and wounding a third. Our cavalry destroyed railway communication across the bridge near Kamenka, on the front.

Germans Retreated

"In East Prussia the German army beat a retreat by forced marches. Part of this army is concentrating at the fortress of Konigsberg.

"The Germans abandoned without having fired a shot, a position previously fortified on the River Angerapp. The roads beyond the Angerapp are strewn with cartridges, shells, and knapsacks thrown aside by the enemy with the object of helping their retreat."

COL. CLEGG REPLIES TO THE MAYOR

Mayor Buller is in receipt of the following letter from Col. Clegg, at Val Cartier:—

Val Cartier Camp,
Aug. 23, 1914.

Wm. Buller, Mayor of the City of Peterborough:

Dear Sir.—I wish to take the first opportunity on behalf of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the overseas contingent from the 57th Regiment which left Peterboro' yesterday, to thank you and the city council for your assurance of care and protection to the families of those who volunteered for service and may be sent to the seat of war.

Your patriotic and earnest words were as an encouragement from their fellow citizens to the men of the contingent and will be remembered should they get into the stress of the campaign.

We arrived safely early this morning and found our camp ready and situated in a picturesque valley, flanked on three sides by mountains and about 15 miles north of Quebec.

Letters, etc, to members of the contingent should be addressed till further notice as below.

Yours very truly,
E. B. Clegg, Lt.-Col.

Care Lt.-Col. E. B. Clegg,
1st Batt., 1st Inf. Brigade,
Val Cartier Camp, Quebec.

THE WEATHER

A few local showers, but mostly fair and cool.

Compelled Zeppelin to Retire

London, Aug. 26.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from its Antwerp correspondent says that another raid on the city by a Zeppelin airship was attempted last night. The offensive measures taken by the Belgian military authorities, the correspondent continues, caused the German airship to retire.

British Troops Repulse Six Separate German Forces

German Losses Tremendous--Bodies Piled Up in Huge Masses--French African Troops Had Difficulty in Passing Over Dead to Attack Prussians

PARIS, AUG. 26.—ACCORDING TO ENGLISHMEN ARRIVING FROM MONS, THE BRITISH ARMY WAS ATTACKED SIX TIMES BY SIX DIFFERENT BODIES OF GERMANS AND BEAT THEM ALL OFF. THEY ESTIMATE THE BRITISH CASUALITIES AT 2,000.

THEY REPORT THAT THE ALLIES HAVE MADE A HECATOMB OF THE GERMANS NEAR MONS. CERTAIN PARTS OF THE FIELD, THEY DECLARE, WERE COVERED WITH GERMAN DEAD BODIES, PILED SO HIGH THAT THE TURCOS, THE FRENCH AFRICAN TROOPS, HAD DIFFICULTY GETTING OVER THE BODIES TO ATTACK THE PRUSSIAN GUARDS.

THE PETIT PARISIEN CONFIRMS THE ABOVE, ACCORDING TO REUTER'S. A "HECATOMB" WAS ORIGINALLY A SACRIFICE OF ONE HUNDRED OXEN, AND THE WORD IS, THEREFORE, ADMIRABLY DESCRIPTIVE OF THE SLAUGHTER OF GERMANS NEAR MONS.

PANIC IN BERLIN

COPENHAGEN, (via London), AUGUST 26.—ADVICES FROM BERLIN VIA THE FRONTIER SAY A PANIC IS IMMINENT THERE. THE FEAR OF A RUSSIAN INVASION THAT WILL ONLY END AT THE CAPITAL, HAS GREATLY AROUSED THE POPULACE. MANY WEALTHY GERMANS ARE ALREADY FLEEING TO SCANDINAVIA.

FRENCH BEAT OFF GERMANS

LONDON, AUG. 26.—THE OFFICIAL WAR BUREAU TO-DAY ISSUED THE FOLLOWING: "THE GERMANS ATTACKED THE FRENCH IN FORCE YESTERDAY ALL ALONG THE ALSACE-LORRAINE FRONTIER, BUT WERE REPULSED WITH HEAVY LOSSES ALL ALONG THE LINE. THE FIGHTING STILL CONTINUES, WITH THE FRENCH ADVANCING THEIR ENTRENCHMENTS."

GERMANS LOST 33 STAFF OFFICERS

COPENHAGEN, AUG. 26.—THE SEVEREST LIST OF GERMAN CASUALITIES PUBLISHED IN BERLIN YESTERDAY, ADVICES FROM THE KAISER'S CAPITAL SAY, CONTAINED THE NAMES OF 665 SOLDIERS. INCLUDED IN THE LIST WERE 33 GENERAL STAFF OFFICERS, INDICATING THE ENORMOUS MORTALITY AMONG THE GERMAN OFFICERS, WHO ARE DECLARED TO BE BRANE TO THE POINT OF RASHNESS.

BIG BATTLE PROGRESSING FOVORABLY FOR ALLIES

PARIS, AUG. 26.—THE WAR OFFICE JUST BEFORE NOON TO-DAY ISSUED THE FOLLOWING:—"ADVICES RECEIVED FROM THE FRONT DECLARE THAT THE BIG BATTLE NOW IN PROGRESS IS PROGRESSING FAVORABLY TO THE ALLIED CAUSE."

MAJORITY OF NAMUR FORTS STILL INTACT

LONDON, August 26.—The Belgian legation this afternoon made public the following statement regarding the situation at Namur:—

"We have no official information whether any of the Namur forts have been captured. We feel certain however, that the majority are still intact, and held by the Belgians, although the German troops have undoubtedly traversed the town.

The Paris War Office this afternoon announced that a German cavalry detachment of 2,000 men which had crossed the frontier to raid French territory was ambushed by hidden batteries. The Uhlans were completely routed, being either killed, wounded or taken prisoners.

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co., from Paris, says that the Zrench war office has issued the following communication: "In Lorraine the allied armies have taken up a combined offensive movement. The battle, recommenced yesterday, is still raging at the time the bulletin is issued."

GERMAN COLONY TO SURRENDER

London, Aug. 26.—3.41 p.m.—Premier Asquith in the House of Commons this afternoon, read a communication from the Commander-in-Chief of the forces in British West Africa, saying that the authorities of Togoland, the German colonial possession on the West coast of Africa, had offered to capitulate on terms. In reply the British officer said that the capitulation must be unconditional.

The Premier's statement was as follows:

"The German telegraph installation at Carrima has been destroyed by the enemy and they sent Tuesday afternoon a flag of truce offering, if given all the honors of war, to capitulate and stipulating specific terms. I replied that they were not in aposition to ask terms; that they must surrender unconditionally. a told them that we always readect private property and that they would be as little interference as possible with the trade of the country and private interests abd firms. I advanced and occupied the crossing of the River Amu. The German answer is expected to-night.

BELGIANS REPULSE THREE GERMAN DIVISIONS

Washington, Aug. 26.—The Belgian legation to-day received news of a Belgian victory over the German at Nilvorde, between Brussels gnd antwerp, yesterday. A despatch says that three German divisions were repulsed with heavy losses. (An infantry division is 12,000 men.)

HUNDRED THOUSAND CANADIANS FOR THE FRONT IF NEEDED

British are Not Defeated and do Not Intend to be Beaten--No Trouble in Securing All Recruits Necessary

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Just as soon as the first contingent of 25,000 men of the Canadian Overseas Expeditionary Force leaves Val Cartier, which will probably be about the end of the first week in September, the work will begin of recruiting a second contingent of 25,000 men. Recruiting will in all likelyhood continue until at least 100,000 men have crossed the Atlantic.

There is likely to be a general appeal for troops, it is said to-day, in view of Lord Kitchener's serious view of the war situation and the necessity of Britain and her Dominions making every possible effort. The Val Cartier mobilization camp will likely be made permanent, warmer quarters being erected as the cold weather comes on. The Petawawa camp may also be used, or the buildings of some of the large exhibition associations.

There is no doubt that if real and urgent need of men to fight for the Empire arises, there will be no trouble in securing all the recruits necessary.

Canadians Will Leave Shortly

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—(Later)—It was announced at the Militia Department to-day that owing to the situation at the front the Canadian expeditionary force would be sent from Canada as quickly as possible. The exact date is not given. The force is expected to be completed by the end of the week and about 20 vessels will be required to transport it. They will be convoyed by British cruisers. The Princess Patricias expect to sail on Saturday.

Ottawa, Aug. 26.—Fifteen special trains with six thousand men are steaming from the west towards Nal Cartier camp.

WIFE CHARGES HUSBAND IS A MURDERER

New Orleans, Aug. 26.—A woman's fear for the lives of herself and her seven young children, whom she charges her husband threatened to kill while he was in an alleged drunken rage early Saturday night, caused Mrs. William C. Keith, living at 4223 Bienville street, to disclose to the police that Keith is wanted in St. Clair county, Ala., their former home, for the alleged killing of his father-in-law, Thomas J. Willingham, in December, 1908. The arrest of Keith by Corporal Trenchard and Patrolman Froyder at his home followed shortly after the frightened wife, with her children gathered about her, complaining to the police at headquarters. He was locked up in the first precinct police station, charged with being a fugitive from justice.

The police say that Keith admitted that he is wanted for the killing of his father-in-law, but declared that he killed him in self-defense, after the latter had assaulted him with rocks over some family trouble. According to the police he said he shot him with a shotgun

DIPLOMATS HAD FUN ON VOYAGE

Washington, Aug. 26.—The war in Europe brought two American ambassadors back to Washington today. They are Mr. J. J. Jusserand, the French diplomatic representative, and the dean of the local diplomatic body, and Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice, the ambassador of King George. They were fellow passengers on the Campania which arrived in New York yesterday. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice got here this morning and Mr. Jusserand, who was accompanied by Mme. Jusserand, arrived in Washington tonight.

The official and diplomatic circle, which is unusually large for this season of the year, is chuckling this evening over stories of the experiences of the two distinguished diplomatists on the Campania. The British ambassador, in spite of the discomforts of the translantic voyage on the overcrowded liner, enjoyed himself hu ly. He told those with whom h ly. He told those with whom he talked today that he shared his cabin with another passenger, but, like many of the voyagers, slept on the deck. The French ambassador shared his room with three others.

According to the British representative, nobody on board who who anybody else was, an apparent reference to the fact that Mr. Jusserand and his British colleague travelled incognito, and while there were a few growlers, the great majority of the passengers were good natured and had a very pleasant time.

Hansel Von Haimhausen, the German charge d'affaires, came to Washington today from Newport, where the German embassy has been established for the summer. He spent the day working at the embassy and returned tonight.

"THE WATER OF ETERNAL YOUTH"

The beauties of the Austrian court used a lotion which was so effectual in keeping the face smooth and free from wrinkles, even in the aged, they named it the "water of eternal youth."

Some one recently has divulged the secret of this wonderful, though exceedingly simple, wrinkle lotion, which in her gratitude she has similarly dubbed a preserver of youth: One ounce pure saxolite (powdered), dissolved in a half pint witch hazel—that's all there is to it. Any woman can get these ingredients at her drugstore, put them together, and use the solution with entire safety. To bathe the face in the same brings immediate results, even in case of the deeper wrinkles and furrows. This is also effective for hanging cheeks and double chin.

A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF CANADA

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—H. R. H. The Duke of Connaught, sends the following personal message to Canadians in behalf of the Patriotic Fund:—

"In response to many urgent appeals from many parts of the Dominion, I inaugurated the Canadian Patriotic Fund, the object of which is to provide for the needs of the wives, families and dependent relatives of those who go to the front to fight the battles of Great Britain and her allies. Unless generous-minded citizens come to their aid, there will be, during the coming winter, much hardship in many families owing to the absence of the bread-winner. I have the greatest confidence that those who are in a position to give need but the opportunity of doing so, and that the response will be widespread and generous.

"During the past few days the Canadian Patriotic Fund has been duly organized, a very strong executive representing the whole Dominion has been appointed, and a central bureau established at Ottawa.

"I sincerely hope that in every city and town throughout the Dominion, branches of this organization may be formed, full particulars of which can be had by addressing the Honorary Secretary, H. B. Ames, M. P., Ottawa.

"By coordinating and harmonizing benevolent efforts in this way, the dangers of over-lapping on the one hand, or neglecting deserving communities on the other hand, may be met and overcome.

"I am convinced that all Canadian hearts will go out to these brave fellow citizens who have gone to the front. A prompt and hearty response to this appeal will out all anxiety at rest about those near and dear to them, and will also afford to those who cannot go an opportunity of doing their duty to Canada and the Empire.

"ARTHUR
"President Canadian Patriotic Fund."

90--and Then Some!

"I have a dear friend,"—writes a correspondent—"past 90 who claims to have produced all the flour and meal used in his home for over 50 years grinding them in an old-time stone mortar with a stone pestle. He is an old-school gentleman, but keeps abreast of current events. He expects to live many years yet—never indulges in tea or coffee, and—

"Sticks to Nature's Foods."

That's the secret!—He uses flours made from the entire grain. This means all the nutriment, including the precious phosphates of the grain.

If more people, like this wise old man, used "Nature's Foods," instead of breads made from white flour, robbed, as it is of nearly all its vital phosphates, there would be fewer pale, anemic flabby-muscled, "touchy" folk in the world nowadays.

Grape-Nuts FOOD

is one of Nature's foods. It contains not only the whole nutriment of wheat, but also of barley—together with the mineral salts (phosphate of potash, etc.) so essential for vitality of body, brain and nerve tissues.

Grape-Nuts comes ready to eat from the package—long baked and easy to digest—nourishing, economical, appetizing.

There's a Reason for Grape-Nuts.

SALMON FISHING

Other Fish Are Neglected by the British Columbia Canners

The interest in the British Columbia fishing industry has so far been centered almost entirely in salmon packing, and there is no lack of capital and enterprise in that particular branch, which has been exploited to the neglect of other important features of the business. The reason of the salmon run is short, and the canneries are closed down most of the year while herring can be taken all the year round along the entire coast, although the heavy run is during the winter months. This would enable the factories to continue operations throughout the year and would obviate, to a large extent, the difficulty of securing a sufficient number of hands to handle the business during the high season in the salmon-canning industry. It is only in recent years that halibut have been taken in commercial quantities on the British Columbia coast, and, so far, the packing of sardines is practically an untried enterprise. The herring, which are caught in large quantities, are now mainly used as bait in the halibut fisheries, and for that purpose only the larger fish are kept. Nothing is done with the smaller ones, which could be packed for sardines. There are, along the provincial coast, scores of fine sites for sardine factories, where the fish could be caught in adjacent waters in unlimited quantities and at small expense.

Naming of St. Lawrence River

The St. Lawrence River owes its name to the accidental conjunction of the Festival of Saint Lawrence with the day upon which the first explorer imagined he had discovered the river. Jacques Cartier in 1534 heard from the natives of the Magdalen Islands of a mighty stream threading the continent to an unknown source, and it was while testing this legend that he sailed up the gulf until he could see the land on each side.

HOBBIES OF ROYALTY

The King of Bulgaria Passes Spare Hours Training Elephants

The Sovereigns of Europe have, and have had some curious hobbies. The Kaiser has a distinct penchant for carpentry, while what King Christian does not know about the printer's craft is not worth knowing.

It has remained, however, for King Ferdinand of Bulgaria to take up the strangest pastime of all—animal training. A little while ago the King, tiring of the ordinary methods of relieving his mind from the cares of State invested in four elephants. And now he spends all his spare time teaching his giant pets all that an educated elephant is required to know. The four beasts are housed at a farm on the outskirts of Sofia, and every day King Ferdinand spends an hour or so with them, superintending their toilet and training them.

The King has brought his usual zeal and enthusiasm to bear on his hobby, and the consequence is that his elephants would do credit to a professional trainer. Not only do the pachyderms recognize their Royal master when he visits them, but they can do several simple tricks at his bidding. The King is very proud of his pets, and whenever his Court is visited by anyone of distinction the Royal guest is sure to be taken to the farm to admire the great beasts at their work and play.

Indian Liked Air-trip

TWO GUNS WHITE CALF

Shooting the rapids in a canoe, or skimming the prairie on the back of a wild antelope will be tame and unexciting adventures now to Two Guns White Calf, "big Injun" from Glazier National Park. Two Guns took a flight in an aeroplane at Dobbs Ferry, N.Y. "Heap big bird, fly like eagle! Two Guns give his gun for bird like that," was his comment on the flying machine that took him 1,200 feet in the air.

Lockless Wooden Safe

Mr. I. Shenker, a curio dealer, London, has invented a light wooden safe which has no locks, bolts, or bars of any description, and yet is as safe as, if not safer than, the steel article.

Mr. Shenker offers to put a bank note in his safe and give it to any one, professional cracksman or otherwise, who can get it out without alarming the household. The safe consists of a mahogany cupboard that can be inlaid and made to look like a piece of drawing room furniture if required. By an ingenious electrical contrivance an electric bell rings immediately it is tampered with, and a light appears. The only thing to distinguish the safe from an ordinary cupboard is an electric wire running into the back. Should the burglar cut this, the alarm will ring just the same.

Utopia Sold For $4,500

The "Model Town" on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River, opposite Evansville, Ind., consisting of ten acres of land, a city hall, and electric light and power plant, was sold at auction for back taxes to the only bidder for $4,500.

The property was valued at over $30,000. The town was laid out four or five years ago by a man named Brown, who announced that the town would be run on the Utopian plan. Stores, factories, and all other businesses were to be operated by the people, and all city ordinances were to be framed by the citizens in town meetings. After Brown disappeared the inhabitants left the town.

Laying a Ghost

When we hear of anybody having seen a ghost our first impulse is to explain the matter away. There are more explanations of supernatural visitors than records of their visitations. We are not allowed to believe in ghosts, says the "Medical Press and Circular." A certain house was haunted in the best sense of the word. Horrid shapes and shrieks and sights unholy were its nocturnal lot. The inhabitants enjoyed a pleasantly terrified notoriety, and the reporters exulted. Enter a sanitary inspector. He found a defective flue which flooded the house with a malodorous mixture of sulphurous oxide, carbon monoxide, and other ingredients. The haunted inhabitants were suffering from a chronic intoxication that affected their bodily health and their imagination.

TEETH AND APPLES

The Use of the One as Food Will Preserve the Other

Dr. Sims Wallace, late dental surgeon to the London Hospital, voices the astounding belief that there are some 21,000,000 teeth in Great Britain ruined through eating sweets. He urges the adoption of a diet containing a good quantity of farinaceous food in a form which will stimulate mastication—brown bread, and the eating of fresh fruit with every meal.

The importance of the proper care of teeth during childhood is becoming universally recognized, and the London County Council established a centre for the treatment of dental troubles of schoolchildren with X-rays.

According to investigation it was found that about 39 per cent. of the children of well-to-do parents have bad teeth, as against 27 per cent. from poorer homes. This is probably accounted for by the fact that, as the latter have more coarser food, their teeth have more work to do, and are consequently stronger and cleaner. Their sweets are also fewer, and are mostly of the cheap, boiled sugar variety. These sweets break up cleanly in the mouth, whereas the caramels and chocolates eaten by the children of indulgent parents cling to the teeth and ferment.

Boys and girls should be given fruit in preference to sweets. Nuts and all hard fruits encourage mastication. The best fruit for this purpose is the apple. Eaten at the conclusion of a meal it leaves the teeth and mouth sweet and clean.

Our Debt to Negroes

We gladly gulp down the soothing drug the doctor brings us, but we rarely wonder in what romantic way it first came to light, or who took all the risks of testing it upon himself.

It was Humboldt, the great discoverer, who many years ago brought to light the fact that the South Americans and Indians could bear fatigue and hunger to an extraordinary extent by chewing the leaves of a certain shrub. The name of that shrub was coca, from which we now get the wonderful drug cocaine.

And how many of the millions of invalids who have been indebted to the tonic virtues of quassia know that we owe its discovery and name to one Quassi, a negro slave, who had successfully experimented with it during the terrible fevers in Surinam?

It was in the early part of the seventeenth century that the wife of the Viceroy of Peru was attacked by a severe ague, and the natives induced her to try quinine, with such surprising success that she brought the good news to Europe.

Some Schoolboy Howlers

"The people of India are divided into casts and outcasts."

"The seven great powers of Europe are gravity, electricity, steam, gas, flywheels, motors, and Mr. Lloyd George."

"Tennyson wrote a beautiful poem called 'In Memorandum.'"

"During the interdict in John's reign, births, marriages, and deaths were not allowed to take place."

The following were given as examples of the uses of ships: "To go to teach countries and teach savages how to dress"; "To poets, who can get their living writing about ships"; "To take Mrs. Pankhurst to a lonely island"; "For the god-parents of a child who is to be confirmed to send a letter to him."

COCAINE IS MADE FROM COCA PLANT

Vast Difference Between Coca and Cocoa—The Former Flourishes in South America

Cocoa and coca are two words which are very much alike, so much so, in fact, that they are often confused in the mind of the average person, and perhaps by some thought to be the same thing. The presence of the "o" in the last syllable of the first word, however, makes a portentous difference, for there is absolutely no similarity between the products bearing these names. Cocoa, which is but chocolate with the fat extracted, is the well known drink and food made from the cocoa bean, the fruit of the tree known botanically as theobroma cacao, while coca is the extract of the leaves of the coca plant, or shrub whose technical name is erythroxylon coca, and from which that powerful alkaloid known as cocaine is derived. Both products are indigenous to certain Latin-American countries, both were in common use by the natives of these regions for centuries before a Western world was dreamed of in the Eastern, and both were first introduced into Europe by the returning Spanish explorers. Their place of origin is about the only thing common to both plants.

The medicinal properties of the coca leaves are manifold. That remarkable property possessed by the alkaloid cocaine, of producing local anæsthesia has made the plant a boon to suffering humanity and a wonderfully beneficent agent in the hands of the surgeon, even if there were no other uses for it as a curative. Coca however, has many other uses, and among the Incas of Peru it was known as the "divine plant" because of these varied properties.

The original home of the coca plant is in parts of Colombia, Ecuador, Peru Bolivia and Brazil, while it is now cultivated [illegible] the West Indies Ceylon India, Ja[illegible]. The plant erythroxylon [illegible] resembles the blackthorn [illegible] and grows to a height of six [illegible] feet, according to altitude [illegible] conditions. In South [illegible] at an altitude of [illegible] feet, and in some other sections of the Andes, it occasionally measures 12 feet in height, but as elevation increases the bush degenerates into a small shrub. The tranches are straight and the leaves are green, thin, opaque, oval and tapering at the ends. The pretty little flowers form in clusters on short stems. The flowering season is followed by the production of small red berries. When grown on the coca plantations or cocales the seeds are sown in December and January on small plots of land sheltered from the sun. When the plant reaches a height of two feet it is transplanted to larger spaces, and it becomes productive in about two years and remains so for 40 years or even longer. The leaves are gathered by pluckers who are skilled in their work. Bush hands also used [illegible]

Our Point of View

The two greatest levelers are war war and John Barleycorn.

—o—

We have known some our friends to eagerly embrace a golden opportunity only to find that it contained too much alloy.

—o—

What has become of the old-fashioned but wise girl who concealed her ignorance by keeping out of the general conversation.

—o—

Our young friend, Clarence Snodgrass intended to enlist in the European war, but after a sober second thought decided that it was no place for a minister's son.

—o—

When a married man does the early bird act and stumbles into the house at 4 o'clock in the morning he invariably catches something that is a good deal hotter than a worm.

—o—

We regret to note that the triumphant entry into Mexico City of our friend Von Carranza and his whiskers got only a twenty line notice in the newspapers. How the limelight does shift.

—o—

It is possible that this war will prove that the wonderful German war machine was sadly lacking in the human element

—o—

We are pained by the thought that in the midst of the tumult and excitement caused by the great European conflagration there are some people calm enough to tell us their troubles.

—o—

A news item says the Dutch have flooded Holland in order to prevent their country from being invaded by the Germans. Evidently the work was accomplished by knocking the dam out of Amsterdam.

—o—

Just as the war clouds were rolling away from Mexico and peace was preparing to tinkle on the Shepherd's bells the Hon Joe Bailey broke loose on this side of the Rio Grande.

—o—

It is hoped that the censor will be kind enough to let us know when the Russians begin their rushes. There is a big rumpus, of course, going on behind the scenes, and it is rather trying on the nerves to hear "the sound of heavy firing" and not be able to catch a glimpse of the action.

Chest Colds and Hoarseness Quickly Rubbed Away

"Nerviline" Gives Speedy Relief and Cures Over Night.

Got a cold?

Is your voice raspy—is your chest congested or sore?

If so, you are the very person that Nerviline will cure in a jiffy.

Nerviline is strong and penetrating. It sinks right into the tissues, takes out inflammation and soreness, destroys colds in a truly wonderful way. Rub Nerviline over the chest—rub on lots of it, and watch that tightness disappear. Nerviline won't blister, it sinks in too fast—doesn't simply stay on the surface like a thick, oily liniment would. If the throat is raspy and sore, rub it well outside with Nerviline, and use Nerviline as a gargle diluted with warm water. Just one or two treatments like this and your voice and throat will be quick normal again

Just think of it—for forty years the largest used family medicine in this country Nerviline must be good must quickly relieve and cure a hundred ills that befall every family. Try it for earache, toothache, coughs, colds, sore chest hoarseness and muscular pains in every part of the body. Large family size bottle 50c.; trial size 25c. at all dealers.

Addressing his army before it started on its march to the Paris restaurants, Kaiser Bill said: In crossing Belgium you will traverse a smiling country." That was saying something real nice, and what a shame it was for the Belgians to frown and manhandle his troops the way they did.

Why the Sacrifice

Why did the Belgians fight a pitched battle at all? Was it not evident before the engagements, of Tuesday and Wednesday that the little Belgian army would, in a fight in the open field, be crumpled up by the enveloping masses of the Germans? The contrast between the terrific resistance put up by the forts around Liege, and the gallant but unavailing efforts of the Belgians in the battles of this week, is so marked that it must impress even the casual observer.

The strength of Belgium is in its fortresses, why not have stuck to them? Instead of trying to guess what the Belgian army could do against the Germans in a pitched battle, public attention today is transferred to Namur, a fortified city said to be stronger than Liege, and to Antwerp, where the Belgian King and General Staff now are, which is the point on which the Belgian army which did the open field fighting this week is retreatin and which apparently is getting ready for a protracted defense.

This reliance on the fortresses at first, the return to them now, and the hazard of pitched battles in the interval, suggests that either the Belgian generals must have made an egregious mistake in pitting their forces against the Germans in the open field, or that some deep plan lies beneath this seemingly needless sacrifice. Which of these alternatives is the right one? That can only be shown by the future progress of the campaign.

THE STEAMER MANITA

Will leave the George Street Wharf daily at 8 p.m., (except Saturdays) for Stoney Lake, calling at all the important points, and reaching Peterborough on her return trip at 6.30 p.m. Return tickets 75c. The Brussels Indemnity

The American press has taken a decidedly nonchalant attitude toward Germany's demand of $40,000,000 from Brussels now unhappily confirmed as if we were used to that kind of warfare. What are the facts? No trace of such exactions, the Springfield Republican says, can be found in the Civil War in America, in the Turco-Russian, the Franco-Prussian, or the Russo-Japanese war. It accordingly concludes that the practice has been in desuetude since the Napoleonic era.

The Herald's original incredulousness toward this report was due in part to our recognition of the shortsightedness of such a policy on the part of the conquerors. This war is not yet over. What would be the indemnity on Berlin, for example measured in responsibility, should the allies capture her, with the Brussels precedent before them! Surely Germany must regard the taking of her cities as at least a conceivable hypothesis, with the world in arms against her.

The European masses are desperately poor anyhow. The percentage of the families of Berlin who regularly live in a single room has recently been the subject of alarming statistics. The masses in Belgium are just as poor. Why should they be further impoverished by a tax of $55 a head, unless the purpose of war is to obliterate all traces of civilization? It is not surprising that in the Balkans women and children are put to the sword, harvests burned and every conceivable instinct of savagery given full play.

Somebody will have to call a halt in this war in the interest of civilization. When that time comes, we shall most fervently hope that Germany may be saved from spoliation. No other country has contributed more to the world's progress in science and industry and the fine arts. She should not be crushed under a great indemnity, if she fails in the struggle, nor should Brussels at this early stage be punished by the loss of the wonderful collections of her world famous galleries—as would be the logical sequence of a revival of Napoleonic precedent—for her inability to raise the cash indemnity now demanded.

The neutral world ought to speak out to save Brussels now, and if the occasion arises, to save Germany latter. The war is to the combatants alone. Civilization is at stake in the result.

CONFESSES MURDER

Salinas, Cal., Aug. 26.—George Kodani, a Japanese photographer, under arrest here, confessed to Sheriff Nesbitt today that he had murdered Helena Wood Smith, a New York artist who had been living in the colony of writers and painters at Carmel-by-the Sea. He told conflicting stories of the murder, one version being that he killed Miss Smith in self-defense.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

The well is now down 1,860 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

Prussian Advance Into Germany Is Unchecked

London, Aug. 26.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from St. Petersburg says that the Russian chief of staff announces "that since Sunday the Russian invasion of Galicia and Prussia continued uninterruptedly along a wide front. While the Russian right wing was invading Prussia and the left wing entering Galicia, the Russian centre, composed of the great bulk of the Russian army, is believed to be marching silently but with terrible force on Posen, the correspondent adds.

Vosges Still French

London, Aug. 26.—A Havas Agency despatch from Paris says:

"The situation in the Vosges is unchanged. The battle continues in the region of Luneville, and the French troops are making progress.

"On the Luxemburg frontier and in the district of the Sambre river several unimportant engagements have occurred. The situation in the northern districts gives no cause for anxiety. No Germans were seen to-day, (probably Tuesday) in the neighborhood of Lille or Tourcoing (in the Department of Nord, France) where measures have been taken with a view to subsequent operations."

COMMANDS BIG BATTLE SHIP AT THE AGE OF 25

New England Boy Enters Service of Greece Aboard the Former Mississippi

Washington, Aug. 26.—Louis E. Brown is the commonplace name of a young man, not so commonplace as his name would indicate, perhaps, who nosed out between the Virginia capes in command of the Greek warship Kilkis.

The record is thus made absolutely accurate, because Louis E. Brown may some time figure in history as the hero of great naval achievements. There is no limit to the possibilities of any young man who, at the age of 25, is in charge of a fine battleship and besides has the distinction of being the youngest American soldier of fortune. There may be other American soldiers of fortune just as young as young Brown, but they are in the ranks of the fo'c'sle, not gold-braided and with feet treading the bridge or the quarterdeck. This is his story:

After finishing high in a New England school young Brown decided he would be a sailor. Accordingly he got a congressman in Connecticut to get him an appointment to Annapolis. He took the examination to the naval academy and passed. After finishing his third year in that institution his health failed and he was forced to abandon his contemplated career.

Brown, who had dreams of leading a fleet some day, was almost broken-hearted because of leaving Annapolis. He had to do something, however, so he got a job as a reporter on a one-cylinder, small-town newspaper.

That newspaper job was the making of Brown, although at the time he did not know it. It was not long before he drifted to Washington and became a correspondent on the capital staff of one of New York's greatest dailies.

During the recent Mexican trouble Brown, with a horde of other newspaper men, was dispatched to the state, war and navy departments to take care of the bulletins from Admiral Fletcher at Vera Cruz and other news items that drifted in through that channel. In this way he came in close contact with Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Secretary of Navy to Rescue.

During a lull in the proceedings one day, when bulletins were coming slowly, Brown told the secretary of the navy that he was a near-graduate of the naval academy.

"I came near being one of your employes," was the way Brown put it when telling of his career to the secretary.

It was only a few weeks after that conversation between Brown and the secretary that the Greek government announced its intention of buying some battleships from the United States government. The deal was finally put through which resulted in the Greek government purchasing from Uncle Sam the battleships Idaho and Mississippi. Twelve millions of dollars were involved in the purchase.

When Greece got the American battleships it still had another purchase in mind. The Greek government wanted to buy a retired naval officer or two to take complete charge of these two vessels. This desire was made known to President Wilson, who immediately informed the representatives of Greece that such a thing would be impossible. The Greeks thought that Admiral Dewey or some other notable not in active service at present would take the assignment.

But President Wilson did not dismiss the proposition with his refusal to provide the Greeks with a couple of our retired naval officers to run their battleships.

A Chance For Some Golfer

Golfers may be interested to know of a curious prize awaiting a claimant at the Royal Ashdown Golf Club, Sussex. On the club links there is a hole, called the Island Hole, of such a difficult character that a member hit on the unique idea of endowing it with the sum of $25, the accumulated interest of which sum should go to the competitor who does the hole in one stroke at either the Easter, Whitsuntide, or autumn meetings. That was some years ago, and the interest is still accumulating.

BRITAIN TRIED UP TO THE LAST TO AVERT WAR

Germany Invited to Reply to Paper Giving Diplomatic History of Crisis

New York, Aug. 26.—The Times today accompanies the British White Paper, which it publishes in full, with an editorial comprehensively summarizing and analysing this document, under the title "England the Peacemaker—The Diplomatic History of the War."

This is the Time's editorial:

"Austria putting her quarrel with Servia above the peace of Europe; above all other things, and striving England putting the peace of Europe above all other things and striving through the tireless efforts of Sir Edward Grey to avert war; France, Russia and Italy joining England in the tender of good offices for the preservation of peace, and Germany assenting in principle to the exercise of a joint mediating influence, but leaving upon the minds of the diplomats of the other powers the impression that her appeals to Vienna were perfunctory and something less than half-hearted—this is the picture presented to the view in the British White Paper embodying the diplomatic correspondence during the two weeks preceding the outbreak of the European war.

"The Times this morning republishes the contents of the White Paper entire. Perhaps it has never been the privilege of a newspaper to put before its readers a chronicle of events of higher importance or more enduring historical interest, for these documents will be studied as long as history is read, just as the great volumes of British foreign and state papers must be examined by every writer of history.

"In these diplomatic interchanges we see history in the making, the history of half the civilized world and we are put in a position to judge the motives of men and the policies of nations almost at the very moment when negotiation gives place to action and the pen is laid aside for the sword.

"We hope that the British example in prompt publication will be followed by the other powers, and in particular it will be to the interest of Germany to use some present speed in letting the world know her part in the attempt to preserve the peace of Europe. The White Paper makes it plain beyond the possibility of question that England did her utmost to prevent war, that her appeals for peaceful conference and compromise were continued even after declarations of war had gone forth and troops were moving; it clearly appears that France and Italy were of one mind and one aim with her.

Question Germany's Sincerity.

"Doubt lingers as to Germany's attitude, for the writers of these dispatches regard her response to their overtures as unsatisfactory, and some of them impute insincerity to her and declare that she backed up Austria in her mad purpose to make war on Servia when it was plain that a general war would follow. This correspondence, it should be kept in mind, presents the English phase chiefly, but also much of the French case and Russia's case.

The death has occurred of Mr. Richard Pugh, of Oswestry, a well-known Shropshire and border district journalist.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. SAMSON AND DELILAH—

The Old Testament Version of "A Fool There Was."

Text: "And she said, the Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, I will go out as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that the Lord was departed from him."—Judges 16: 20-21.

The story of this Biblical Hercules I cannot at all understand. When I read it as a literal biography, I stagger in unbelief. The fantastic capers of this middle-aged boy, his wild adventures, his reckless going in and out among enemies, flirting foolishly with the women of his nation's foes; his queer weapon for slaying a thousand men, his going to the trouble of catching three hundred foxes and tying fire brands to their tails to do what could have been more easily accomplished with less trouble and danger, his final overthrow of what must have been a veritable Colosseum—all these unlikely incidents prompt me to look beyond the exact literal story and try to see in it the picture of some great spiritual truth. And this is what I conceive to be the lesson of the story: THE CATASTROPHE OF THE UNBALANCED CAREER OF A SPIRITUAL GENIUS.

Samson is the eccentric genius of the Bible. Emerson says that genius is a ship afire at sea for the diversion of the people on the shore. Genius is lawlessness in talent, brilliance with a blemish, a comet without an orbit, a ship without a rudder, an engine without a governor, a train without a time-table, a locomotive without an engineer.

You can never be quite sure of a Samson's next move. He is not conventionalised. You cannot study one day of his life and then anticipate all the curves and straight lines he will take during the rest of the week. Conventionalised people have a pattern in their make-up, like the wall-paper of your dining room. You know with mathematical certainty what they are going to do to-day. A Macaulay will write so many words in the forenoon, walk just so many miles in the afternoon and play exactly so many games of whist at night. But you can never tell what a Lord Byron will do to-morrow, whether he will be in Scotland or in Greece, in exultation or depression. The Samsons are uncertain character.

And yet there are so many things about this big fellow that we cannot help liking. He is of good parentage for instance. His father and mother were God-fearing people. Before her child's birth Manoah's wife did not drink wine nor strong drink. An angel taught the couple the much-neglected theory of pre-natal influence. Then too what a great big giant he was physically and, I think, mentally. I warrant he could get up his lessons with a lick and a brush, make a note or two concerning his chapter in history and rattle it off in a class the next morning, spending the rest of his time in playing pranks. Like a robust Beattie Nesbitt he could have divested himself of his clothing and on a zero night run a block or two around the college campus on a wager. It is to be noted too that he kept up his youthful enthusiasm in middle life. Mind, he governed Israel during twenty years, and the jokes and puns must have extended into the years when his long hair was turning grey. The world likes a man of fifty who is still a big boy.

So you can easily imagine such a man to be a popular hero. He was the man for the age. There are great extremes of individuality between God's heroes of the ages. God can use all kinds of temperaments. He enlists the work of a rough John Knox and a gentle John Wesley, a burly Oliver Cromwell and a tender Richard Baxter, a fighting Peter Cartwright and a scholarly Charles Finney, an athletic dashing John D. Morrow and a polished Archdeacon Cody. On that particular day a Samson was needed. The Philistine was in the land, the Hebrew youth must have a martial hero, a giant, an optimist, to b

Men and Women Wear Them While Travelling Through the Forests

Travellers and tourists in Mexico are invariably attracted by the wonderful skill and ingenuity displayed by the Indians in the making of miniature objects which they offer for sale. The little dolls, for instance of Cuernavaca, half-inch tall, and dressed in finely embroidered raiment, are the admiration of everyone who sees them.

But perhaps the most wonderful of all are the tiny dressed fleas which may be bought in Mexico City. They are all mounted in small boxes, which are little more than quarter-inch in dimension. Here are a bride and bridegroom, the former with her bridal veil and orange blossoms, and the latter with his Prince Albert coat and silk hat. Ballet dancers dressed in true Spanish dancing costumes, bull fighters in full regalia, and water carriers with their water jugs are also represented among the dressed fleas of Mexico City.

Some further interesting facts regarding Mexican insects are related in the "National Geographic Magazine." It appears that many of the Indian colors are made from Mexican insects, while one of the most remarkable of the many curious foods eaten by the natives is made from the eggs of a species of marsh fly. This fly deposits its eggs in incredible quantities upon flags and rushes. The eggs are then gathered and made into cakes which are sold in the markets. These little cakes are somewhat like brickbats, and the Indians enjoy a meal of them with as good a stomach as white people enjoy cheese. The eggs resemble the fine fish roe, and when mixed with corn meal and fowl eggs form a staple article of diet, particularly during Lent.

The insects themselves, which are about the size of a housefly, are captured, pounded into a paste, boiled in corn husks, and in this form are eaten.

Another remarkable insect found in Mexico is the Elater fire-fly, which the Indians use as miniature torches. The men fasten them to their ankles in going through the forest, and the women wear them in their hair under a thin gauze veil.

Tiny little cages are constructed in which three or four are kept for lighting purposes. The insects congregate by the thousands in many forest trees and, as if by preconcerted agreement simultaneously flash their lights, then darken them and flash them again

Pharoah's Serpents

A cone of mercuric sulpho-cyanate when ignited, burns with the development of a tremendous amount of ash. The cone seems to swell and writhe away like a serpent, hence the name. Any boy can make the cones at little expense. To a solution of corrosive sublimate, add a few drops of ferric chloride. Dissolve potassium sulphocyanate in water, and slowly add this to the other solution, until, after stirring, a red color remains. Filter through a sheet of muslin and form the white curds into little balls or cones. Dry, and you need only touch a match to produce Pharoah's serpents. Do not breathe the vapors.

Ostrich Feather Plucking

During the course of the sitting of the Dominions Royal Commission at Port Elizabeth, the question of the supposed cruelty attending the plucking of ostrich feathers, as affecting the market, was raised, when a witness, Mr. Evans, stated that while in London he delivered a lecture with lantern slides showing the method of plucking. After the lecture a lady told him she had not bought feathers for three years on account of the cruelty she supposed was involved in the plucking, but after the explanation which had been given, she expressed her intention to purchase some next day.

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send list of testimonials.

FOUND INDIAN RELIC

Sculptured Stone, Apparently of Great Age, Taken From Lake

While rowing about in Lake Utopia, about three miles from St. George, N.B., Capt. Milliken, of St. George, struck an object in the water near the shore. On investigation he found it to be a piece of granulite stone carved out in the shape of a man's head, resembling in feature the North American Indian. The carving was found within a few hundred feet of the spot where an elliptical tablet, on which was carved in relief a man's head, was picked up some fifty years ago, and which is now in the possession of the Natural History museum. Both the tablet and the recent find are considered to be the work of Indians and Capt. Milliken believes they were done by the same band. It has also been suggested that they are the work of French or even of English settlers, but many who viewed the two relics gave it as their opinion that they had been in existence for many years before the French settled in Canada, and the popular belief is that the two works of Indian art were placed near where they were found to mark the resting place of some great Indian chief.

COLOR IN FLOWERS

Greatest Number of Plants With Odors Are White or Red

The heads of a big florist concern published the results of some very interesting observations on the relations between the colors and odors of various flowers. They analyzed more than 4,200 plants, and they found that: (1) white is the most common color for flowers, and (2) that red, yellow, and blue are more general than violet, green, orange, and brown. The different odoriferous species divide themselves among the different colors in the following manner:

Color of flowers	Number of species examined	Number of species having odors
White	1,194	187
Red	923	84
Yellow	950	77
Blue	394	31
Violet	308	13
Green	153	24
Orange	50	3
Brown	18	1
Total ...	4,200	420

As will be seen, the number of plants possessing odors is only one-tenth, the total number of species. We also see that in proportion, its is among the white flowers and then the red that we meet the greatest number of odorous plants.

WHEAT CULTIVATION IMPOVERISHES SOIL

C. C. James Raises the Question as to Whether it Pays the Farmer to Grow Wheat

New light was thrown by Mr. C. C. James upon the necessity for mixed farming in Canada. Mr. James stated in an address that one year's wheat crop when sent to England carried with it $35,000,000 worth of the best soil material of the country. In the meantime, Canada with its comparatively costly lands and labor, was competing with the cheap lands and labor of the Mediterranean and other countries from which Great Britain obtained one-half its wheat. The statements of Mr. James led to the pointed question as to whether it pays Canada to grow wheat. He referred to the excessive cost to the whole nation which comes from the constant opening of new wheat lands, with the consequent railway extension and the cost to the country to keep the new settler on his land until he is well establi

PLAYING THE FLUTE THROUGH THE NOSE

Strange Custom of Tribe of Agricultural Experts in the Philippine Islands

The Tinguians, who live in the northern part of the Island of Luzon, one of the Philippine group, are by no means savages, even if they do prefer a fashion which does not include much clothing. They are really expert farmers. Their country gets very little rain. So they terrace the rich soil on mountain sides from hill to hill down to the valleys. Then they divert mountain streams, controlling their flow ingeniously so that the streams drip down from one terrace to another, soaking the thirsty land and making it bloom like the rose.

Tinguian Playing Nose Flute

There are very many interesting things to say about the Tinguians, but we started out to tell you about the Tinguian musicians who play flutes with their noses. This is the music which is played at the people's dances.

A plaintive little tune is played on the nose flute by gently blowing with one nostril while the other nostril is blocked with wax or any handy substance.

WHAT WAR MEANS

Soldiers on Active Service a Veritable Scourge—French Honor Mothers

"All's fair in love and war," runs the old saying, and Mr. E. A. Vizetelly, in his volume of reminiscences, "My Days of Adventure," proves the truth of it. Referring to the appearance of the railway station at Nantes during the Franco-German War, he says:

"Never since have I seen anything resembling it. A thousand panes of glass belonging to windows or roofing had been shivered to atoms. Every mirror in either waiting or refreshment rooms had been pounded to pieces; every gilt frame broken to little bits. The clock lay about in small fragments; account books and printed forms had been torn to scraps, partitions, chairs, tables, benches, boxes, nests of drawers, had been hacked, split, broken, reduced to mere strips of wood. The large stoves were overturned and broken, and the marble refreshment counter—some thirty feet long, and previously one of the features of the station—now strewed the floor in particles, suggesting gravel. It was, indeed, an amazing sight, the more amazing as no such work of destruction could have been accomplished without extreme labor.

"When we returned to the inn for dinner, I asked some questions.

"'Who did it?'

"'The first German troops that came here,' was the answer.

"'Why did they do it? Was it because your men had cut the telegraph wires and destroyed some of the permanent way?'

"Oh, no! They expected to find something to drink in the refreshment room, and when they discovered that everything had been taken away they set abouts breaking the fixtures.'"

Mr. Vizetelly discloses this interesting fact: Whenever letters were found on the bodies of men who fell during the Franco-German War they were, if this man was a Frenchman, more usually letters for his mother, and if he was a German, more usually letters for his sweetheart. Many such letters found their way into print during the course of the war. It is a well known fact that a Frenchman's cult for his mother is a national characteristic.

A Stammering Cuckoo

The inhabitants of Charlesworth, near Glossop, are enjoying the curious experience of listening to a stammering cuckoo. At first it was thought it had not found its note, but time has gone on, and, undoubtedly, it is the bird's natural note. Its struggles to get out its call are causing much amusement.

COPPER

The Red Metal

MILLIONS OF TONS OF PAY ORE

Copper is one of the world's chief necessities, and the demand for it is constantly increasing. Growth of the electrical industry largely accounts for this. Telegraph and Telephone Wire—Trolley Wire—Trolley Wheels and the multitude of other Electrical Machines and Parts—Power Transmission Wire and the use of the metal in various valuable Alloys—these are some of the places where copper is consumed, and while its production is enormous it is used about as rapidly as it can be mined and made ready. THIS IS WHY OWNERSHIP IN A COPPER MINE IS ONE OF THE MOST SATISFACTORY SOURCES OF INCOME POSSIBLE TO IMAGINE.

TIME TO START

Naturally the time to secure an interest in any sort of enterprise is at the start, because it is then that money for development and equipmwnt is needed and this is, of course, the reason why shares in the project are released! When these necessities are provided for the Opportunity passes.

For years we have been spending time, effort and money in getting together one of the largest known copper deposits, and we now own and control thousands of acres of land, covering veins of copper, ore carrying gold and silver values, extensive veins of coal, iron and lime.

The geology is so well defined as to make identifications of size and location of the copper bearing veins a perfect definite matter. In addition to this the estate has been thoroughly prospected by some 4,000 feet of work, there being more than 100 shafts, pits, cuts and tunnels, every one of which shows copper in paying quantities. The dumps of these openings run from 2 to 8 per cent in copper metal.

Facilities for economically winning the copper from its ores are remarkably fine. In the company's own ground are five known coal beds, insuring a perpetual supply of cheap fuel, easily accessible and located within a very short distance of the site chosen for its furnaces. Water and timber are also abundant and easy of access.

One of Colorado's most eminent mining engineers, after thoroughly examining this property, states in his report that the net profits resulting from operation of this property should range from $250,000 to $1,000,000 each year.

There is no uncertainty, no guesswork, about this project. Applied to it, a definite cause will inevitably produce an equally definite effect. Equipment for mining these immense bodies of ore and reducing the metal in them to bullion means dividends—it can't mean anything else—and it is to provide this equipment and the funds required for its installation and the preliminary operating expenses of the estate that an interest in the project is offered to you.

It is YOUR OPPORTUNITY to join in a well planned, conservative, and exceptionally profitable business undertaking. The foundations are laid, the property is acquired and the next step—providing the equipment—is now being taken. So soon as this is accomplished your chance to secure a share in the enterprise will be gone.

A Belleville Burglary.

The residence of Mr. J. K. Mitchell, market gardener, who resides some distance east of the city on the Kingston Road, was about four o'clock yesterday afternoon entered by a man five feet nine or ten inches tall and wearing a dark suit, and [illegible] in a handbag in the house was later missed by Mr. Mitchell and family. The theft was reported to the police at 9.50 last night.—Intelligencer.

Patriotic Little Lindsay.

The officers of the 45th Regiment held a most successful meeting in the armories when matters affecting the organization were discussed. Among the communications laid before the meeting was one from Col. T. R. Hemming, District Officer Commanding No. 3 Division, in which the command of the regiment was handed over to Major J. J. H. Fee, owing to the departure of Lieut.-Col. Hopkins for Valcartier with the overseas contingent. It was decided by the officers to stimulate a greater interest in the regiment, among the young men.—Lindsay Post.

Railway Crews Re-instated

The Lindsay division of the G. T. R. have found it necessary to reinstate five crews who were laid off some time ago owing to stagnation in the train service. This is occasioned by traffic assuming normal conditions. Officials on both railroads aver that traffic is becoming very brisk just now which is very encouraging in view of the promised condition of trade. Further, the C. P. R. did not release any men when the war began, and the promising state of business now prevailing will render such thing very unlikely. The re-instated G.T.R. crews are already busy at work.

Local Troops at Val Cartier

The first battalion is composed of a number of corps, among whom are the 3rd Dragoons, 26th Dragoons, Mississauga Horse, 13th Light Horse, the 55th, 54th, 14th 47th, 46th and 45th, 96th, 98th and Governor-General's Foot Guards.

Police Court News

Alfred E. Peake was charged with offering goods for sale without having taken out a peddlar's license. This is an infraction of the City By-law No. 177. Mr. Peake was represented by Mr. Frank Kerr, who pleaded not guilty. Mr. Gordon appeared for the prosecution. Mr. Peake represents Joseph J. Follett, of Toronto. Mr. Gordon noted that Mr. Peake is not on the assessment roll for 1914. Chief Thompson, in the box, said he was informed that the defendant was going to the banks taking orders for rain coats. It seems that Peake took a deposit when taking orders. The rain coats. It seems that Peake took then completed to order.

The case was adjourned.

An Escaped Austrian Convict.

Chief Thompson has received a circular offering one hundred dollars reward for the capture of an Austrian Pole, Victor Szymondski, who escaped from the Kingston penitentiary on Thursday, August 20th. He was serving a ten years term for robbery with violence. On Thursday morning Guard Richard D. Dowsley was ordered to take three convicts and repair the fence on the prison farm. It began to rain and the guard decided to take the men into the stable near by until the shower passed over. Picking up the small hatchet that had been in use in the fence repairing, one of the convicts, Victor Szymondski, struck Mr. Dowsley over the head, knocking him unconscious. He fell on his face in a pile of manure and was there when he was discovered.

An Old Local Fire.

Peterborough Times, of Aug. 27th, 1884, or thirty years ago: "About 4 o'clock on Monday morning, a fire was discovered in Kingan's hardware store, on Hunter street. The alarm was quickly sounded, and in a short time the fire brigade were on the spot, but the flames had so rapidly advanced, as to make it impossible to save the building. The fire quickly spread into the adjoining building, occupied by Mr. Joseph Griffin, as a shoe store and Mr. Charles Harris, bath of whom saved most of their stock." It might be said, in connection with this fire that five local men were playing poker in the Oriental Hotel just across from the fire. They all went to the fire and gave themselves away by appearing at 4 a.m. wearing collars and ties. Only one of the five is now alive and he has cut poker out of his list of amusements.

A Hint For This City.

The Oshawa Reformer says: Thursday night the guards at the C.N.R. bridge, north of town, had a somewhat exciting experience, in which Mr. Fred Lake and family camping nearby, shared. Guards have been placed at all bridges on the railroads and the night guard was on duty. He was patrolling back and forth on the bridge, when he heard a suspicious noise, as though some one was working at the bottom of the bridge below him. He turned the light on the place where the noise came from and saw a man standing there. The man started to run. The guard called to him to hault, but he did not stop, and the guard fired into the air above his head. This made him run the harder. The day guard was called to give chase, but the culprit had disappeared into the darkness and got away. Mr. Fred Luke's family saw an automobile drive up to the gate near the bridge a few minutes before. They went up to enquire of the guards what the matter was, and noticed the automobile was gone.

LILLE ABANDONED WITHOUT A FRENCH GUN BEING FIRED

French War Office, However Says Troops Continue to Progress--French Plan of Campaign Still Holds Good--Occupation of Lille is Not Confirmed

Paris, Aug. 27; 3.30 p.m.—An official statement issued this afternoon says: "The events of yesterday in the region of the North have neither imperilled nor modified the arrangements made in view of the future development of operations in the region between the Vosges and Nancy. Our troops continue to progress."

Ostend Hears that Lille Has Fallen.

London, Aug. 27, 3.10 a.m.—A despatch received here from Ostend says the Germans have occupied Lille, Roubaix, and Valenciennes, all in France. Lille's occupation is important because it is the strongest, and indeed the only important French fortress on the Belgian frontier to the north. It has been ranked as first-class, and was headquarters of the First Army Corps. It has an eccinte and pentagonal citadel, one of Gauban's finest works, situated to the west of the town, from which it is divided by the Deule. The modern fortifications comprise over 20 detached forts and batteries, the perimeter of the defences being about 30 miles. Outside the enceinte populous suburbs surround the city on every side. In 1792, when Lille depended only on ancient fortifications, the Austrians failed to take it after nine days and nights of bombardment.

The towns of Roubaix, Lille, and Valenciennes are all close to the Belgian frontier. Lille and Valenciennes being ten miles from the line and Roubaix five. Roubaix is five miles north-east of Lille and Valenciennes thirty miles south-east of the same city.

Recent despatches from Paris said that Lille was held by French reservists. Roubaix would appear not be fortified; it is a manufacturing centre.

Valenciennes also is a manufacturing city and is an important military point. It has an arsenal and extensive barracks.

Abandonment May Have Been Deliberate.

London, Aug. 27.—"A Belgian officer who returned here yesterday from Hazebrouck, France," says the Daily Express Ostend correspondent, "stated that it was decided Monday not to defend Lille, and Tuesday the Mayor's proclamation was published announcing the evacuation by the French troops and the transformation of the town into an undefended place.

"All the gendarmes were disarmed, and steps were taken to deliver the city to the Germans. Tuesday evening all the available treasure was removed.

"The more the German army advances the more perilous becomes its situation. It now has its flanks and lines of communication menaced by Belgians based on Antwerp with advance guards at Malines, by the Northern French army, and by the allied masses near Maubeuge.

LOWER PRICES ON PORK AND BEEF IS CUDAHY'S FORECAST

Buffalo, Aug. 27.—Patrick Cudahy Bros. Co. of Milwaukee, packers who are known the world over, arrived in Buffalo today with members of his family. They came on the steamer North Land, and will return west Wednesday night. The party is registered at the Hotel Iroquois.

Mr. Cudahy declared that the high cost of meats is the result of natural conditions. The European war, he said, did not affect prices except in an indirect way. After branding as ridiculous the assertion that the packers had anything to do with the prices, he gave the optimistic opinion that this winter there would be a plentiful supply of pork, in other words that lower prices ought to prevail. In a year or so the same condition ought to be true of beef, he said.

In 1907 pork reached the low price of 4 cents a pound. That was followed in 1911 by the record price of 11 cents a pound. Everybody who had hogs to sell knew the price would not last, and all who would sold every porker they owned, resulting in the present dearth. The fact that last year hog cholera caused the death of 7,000,000 of these animals also has a great deal to do with the present price.

The high prices which have prevailed here, in the opinion of Mr. Cudahy have been responsible for decreased exports in the meat line. Many of the smaller European countries were able to take the place of the United States in selling to Great Britain, so the sales have been reduced for some time, and the war ought not to have any measurable effects. Large quantities of lard were exported to Germany before the war.

Premier Says Belgians Won Immortal Glory

London, Aug. 27.—Refering to the defence of Liege Premier Asquith said in the House of Commons :—

"That chapter in Belgium's history will always be inspiring. By that act alone Belgians won immoral glory. We are proud of our alliance with Belgium, and we will give her our support to the very end."

This latter announcement was greeted by a wild storm of cheering.

Bonar Law and John Redmond concurred in the Premier's remarks.

After Hurdle had taken his seat, Sir Edward Grey said that the German Ambassador to England, Count Lichnowsky, had worked for peace.

"But the authority did not rest with him," said the Foreign Minister. "The real figure in this unfortunate affair which has culminated in the present war, was in Berlin. That was why the proposals for peace failed. The Ambassador made suggestions, but the real proposals came from Berlin and they were far different than those the Ambassador had suggested. Germany was entirely responsible for the war."

MAGICAL EFFECT OF NEW FACE PEELER

To maintain a clear, white, youthful complexion, there's nothing so simple to use and yet so effective as ordinary mercolized wax, which you can get at any drug-store. Just apply the wax at night as you would cold cream. In the morning wash it off with warm water. If you've never tried it you can't imagine the magical effect of this harmless home treatment. It causes the old worn-out, faded skin to come off in minute particles, a little at a time, and soon you have entirely shed the offensive cuticle. The fresh young underskin now in evidence is so healthy and girlish looking, so free from any appearance of artificiality, you wonder why you had not heard of this marvelous complexion-renewing secret long ago.

Equally magical in its action is a simple wrinkle-removing lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in this for two or three minutes immediately affects every line and furrow and improves facial contour wonderfully.

LYNCHERS BALKED WITH NOOSE ON VICTIM'S NECK

New York, Aug. 28.—Swinging his nightstick with all his strength, Policeman James O'Donnel, of the Classon avenue station, in Brooklyn, beat his way through a great crowd at Skillman street and Myrtle avenue and rescued a young man who was threatened with lynching, after having been accused of shooting a child.

The noose was about his neck and the rope had been thrown over the arm of an electric light pole when the policeman came to his rescue and drove off the would be lynchers. O'Donnel held them at bay with his revolver until Captain William F. Fennelly and Lieutenant Edward McGlynn arrived with the reserves.

The man who was saved from death was Joseph Corichetti, twenty-two years old, who lives at No. 831 Kent avenue. From what the police could learn, Corichetti, with his brother, Michael Corichetti, met Michael De Marco, of No. 134 Franklin avenue, with whom they had had a dispute about a week ago.

De Marco told the police that Joseph Corichetti fired three shots at him without warning. Frank Sabio, five years old, of No. 147 Skillman street, fell with a bullet in his right thigh.

The shooting occurred in the heart of the foreign colony and the boy's screams attracted a large crowd. Michael Corichetti made his escape, but the crowd closed in on his brother, and disarmed him. They set about to beat him, but some one produced a rope and Corichetti was taken to Myrtle avenue. The police are not certain that the lynching threat was serious, but the rope was over the pole when they arrived.

British Troops Again In Action With Superior Forces

Are Fighting Splendidly, Complimented For Quality and Efficiency By General French --Sir Edward Grey Praises German Ambassador

London, Aug. 27.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons to-day that Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British expeditionary force, had reported that he was yesterday engaged against superior German forces. The British troops fought splendidly, and General French considered the prospects in the impending battle satisfactory.

Premier Asquith added : General French speaks in high terms of the quality and efficiency of the French regular troops and their officers."

The positive promise that the veil of secrecy is to be removed from the operations in France and Belgium was made in the House of Commans today, by Premier Asquith. Pleading that it had been necessary for strategic reasons to withold information, the Premier stated that the Government was alive to the necessity of relieving the public strain.

"The Government," said the Premier, "is desirous of giving the country all the information possible that is consistent with the public interest. It has been necessary to withold many facts up to the present, but the veil of secrecy can be lifted soon.

"The British troops on the continent are upholding the best traditions of the service. They were in action again yesterday, fought a superior force of Germans and acquitted themselves splendidly. The prospects for a satisfactory outcome of the conflict are excellent."

SIR EDWARD GREY PRAISES GERMAN AMBASSADOR

The Foreign Secretary, Sir Edward Grey, paid a tribute to Prince Charles Max Lichnowsky, the former German Ambassador to Great Britain, in the House of Commons today, saying that the diplomat had worked to the end for peace, but the real authority at Berlin did not rest with nim or those like him.

The Government decided on August 2 that the only condition under which Great Britain could remain neutral was German respect for the neutrality of Belgium. Ambassador Lichnowsky had strongly urged the British Government to alter their decision, but the Foreign Secretary said that would have been impossible without England becoming a consenting party to the violation of a treaty and subsequently to a German invasion of Belgium.

He added that personal suggestions made by the German Ambassador were quite distinct from the communications which the Ambassador made on behalf of his Government. His suggestions worked for peace, but real authority did not rest with him, and that was why the efforts for peace failed.

BELGIAN SAYS NAMUR SAFE

London, Aug. 27.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Ostend credits a Belgian officer from Namur with the statement that the forts there are still holding out with the exception of Marchovelette and Cognelee, which were destroyed by the German bombardment.

The Belgians fought for two days, this officer says, and there is still a large force of Germans before Namur.

The foregoing despatch is in contradiction to the despatch from Berlin received by wireless telegraphy yesterday morning declaring that all the forts at Namur have fallen, and that Longwy had been captured by the Germans.

GERMANS UP IN THE AIR

London, Aug. 27.— Tests made at various points along the German army's line of communication, says the Ostend correspondent of the Daily News, show it is surprisingly weak. The Germans seem to have gone forward with the idea that they had nothing more to fear from the Belgian army.

The British Marines Are Now At Ostend

London, Aug. 27.— England has stripped the reserve ships of the North Sea fleet of marines to aid in the fighting in Belgium. Alarmed over the imminent danger to which England would be exposed from airship raids, should the Germans establish a permanent base in Ostend, Belgium, the British "sailor-soldiers" have been sent to reinforce the Belgians now there.

In the House of Commons this afternoon the First Lord of the Admiralty announced that marines were now at Ostend. He stated that the expeditionary force was a large one, but did not give any figures.

Premier Asquith moved that Parliament convey to the King of Belgium and the Belgian people the sympathy and admiration of the British people for the heroic resistence of the German invasion by the Belgian army and people.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE IS UNRETARDED

Germans Hastily Retreating, Paris Rejoicing in Good News

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—(via London 5.33 p.m.)—The following official communication was made public here to-day :

"Our offensive operation in East Prussia and Galicia, developed in increasing success on Aug. 26. The Germans hastily retreated everywhere toward Koenigsberg and Allenstein."

"In Galicia our troops are marching rapidly on Lemberg; they are approaching the city quickly. Our cavalry has pursued the enemy everywhere on our line, our advance frequently engaging the Austrians, who each time have been beaten and routed."

Washington, Aug. 27.—The Russian Consul-General here today made public the following statement :

"The Russian advance in Eastern Prussia continues successfully. On Aug. 26 the Russians occupied Tibit, Nordenburg, Dischoftsburg, Feneburg, and the station of Roth on the main railway line from Russia to the fortress of Thorn.

"The Austrian rearguard in Galicia has been driven behind the river Zolotaia, tributary to the Dniester."

Paris Hears Good News.

Paris, Aug. 27.—3.40 p.m.— An official statement issued by the War Office this afternoon says:

"The German troops retired from the region of Azuren, in East Prussia, after the Russian victory. A Russian advance is unretarded in that country, which presents difficulties, and the outlet of which to the West was occupied yesterday. It is confirmed that 100 cannon were taken from the enemy."

CHASED AUSTRIAN CRUISER

London, Aug. 27.—A news agency despatch from Cettinje says an Austrian squadron of four cruisers and eight torpedo boats attempted the bombardment of Budua, Dalmatia, recently occupied by the Montenegrins. Before they could do any damage a French-British squadron approached, and the Austrians fled through the Adriatic in the direction of Pola.

ITALY STANDS FIRM

London, Aug. 27.—A Times despatch from Rome declares that great pressure is being brought to bear on Italy by Germany and Austria to join in the war, both countries making her alluring promises, but without effect.

WORK AND THE UNEMPDOYED

If the farmers of this county want "help" they can get it right here in this city. A fair wage or anything like it will ensure a ready response from numbers who want their regular work, but cannot get it. Hand in your names to the Employment agencies in Peterborough and you ought to get what you want on both sides. The farmer has been complaining of lack of help. Here's his chance.

Two More Trawlers Blown Up By German Mines

London, Aug. 27.—Thirteen survivers of a Danish trawler, which was sunk by coming in contact with a floating mine in the North Sea, have been landed at Shields. Four of the crew of the trawler lost their lives.

The fisherman was on her way to Iceland, when at ten o'clock Wednesday night those on board felt a terrific explosion. Flames shot up around the bows of the vessel, and she began to sink rapidly. A small boat was launched, but the vessel foundered before four men in the forecastle could be reached.

Later, the Exchange Telegraph Co. announced that a second trawler, a Norwegian named Gottfried, also had struck a floating mine and was sunk. Eight of her crew were drowned and four saved.

GERMAN CRUISER WILHILM DER GROSSE SUNK BY THE BRITISH

Cruiser "Highflyer" Rids the Seas of a Preying Enemy--One British Seaman Killed and Five Wounded in Naval Fight--Big Service Rendered Commerce

London, Aug. 27.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill, announced that the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse of the North German Lloyd line has been sunk off the West African coast by the British cruiser Highflyer. This first real naval success, following on the admission of ground lost in the Belgium-French campaign, was received with great cheering by the membership.

Churchill said one member of the Highflyer crew were killed and five were wounded by fire from the Kaiser Wilhelm's guns before the German ship was sent to the bottom.

Mr. Churchill said : "This is the vessel that has been interfering with traffic between this country and the Cape, and is one of the very few German armed auxiliary cruisers which succeeded in getting to sea. The survivers were landed before the vessel sank."

The official war information bureau announced this afternoon that the following message had been sent by the Admiralty to the captain of the High Flyer :

"Bravo! You have rendered a service, not only to Great Britain, but to the peaceful commerce of the world.

"The German officers and men appear to have carried out their duties with humanity and restraint, and therefore are worthy of seaman-like consideration."

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was one of the palatial steamers of the North German Lloyd line. At the outbreak of the war she was converted into an armed cruiser and since has been reported active in searching for British merchantmen. She has a tonnage of 14,349 and was built in 1897. She was 626 feet long with a beam of 66 feet. She is said to have carried 10 4-inch guns. When in the Atlantic service, she plied direct between Bremen and New York. She was built by Vulcan and Co., of Stettin, and had a speed of 23 knots. According to the naval annual, her armament, which was stored for her use, consisted of 6 5.9 guns, four 1.7-inch and fourteen machine guns. In addition she was to carry two twenty-feet torpedo boats and sixteen torpedoes.

The Highflyer is 350 feet long, with 54 feet beam, 5,600 tons. She has 11 6-inch guns, nine 12-pounders, six 3-pounders and two maxims; also two submerged torpedo tubes. She was built in 1896.

The Kaiser Wilhelm was one of the last of the big ships to leave New York just before European hostilities began. She sailed July 21, arriving at Bremen July 28, the day Austria declared war on Servie. She cost between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000. At the North German Lloyd offices it was said the loss would be borne by the German Government.

MISS PITONOF FAILS IN SWIM

New York, Aug. 26.—Miss Elaine Golding of Bath Beach, an amateur claimant of the long distance swimming championship of her sex, today went a long way toward proving her right to the title when she won an open race from the Battery to Steeplechase Pier, Coney Island, an actual distance of 14 miles, in the remarkable time of 4h. 31m. 45s.

Miss Louise Debus, an 18-year-old Philadelphia girl, also an amateur, finished second to Miss Golding, while Rose Pitonof of Dorchester, Mass., a professional, the first woman ever to swim from the Battery to Coney Island, and Miss Norah Leahy, another "pro," could not complete the course. Both had to retire from the same trouble, being blinded by the salt water and dazzling rays of the sun.

Miss Pitonoff had been in the water 2h. 21m. when she had to be taken out opposite the Crescent A. C. She had covered about 6½ miles. Miss Leahy, so much affected by the sun and water that she started swimming in circles, was picked up off Gravesend and was carried to the United States life-saving corps station here. She almost collapsed when taken out of the bay and it took some time before she recovered sufficiently to be sent to her home. She had travelled 9½ miles in 2h 53m.

Misses Golding and Debus were also affected by their long swim but not enough to make their condition serious. Miss Golding was comparatively fresh to her young rival. The remarkably fast time of Miss Golding is emphasized by the fact that Commodore Brown of the United States Life Savings Corps, who recently broke Bud Goodwin's course of 4h. 30m. by swimming the distance in 4h. 23m. 30s., did not get within a half mile of Miss Golding's finishing mark. His swim ended at the foot of Twenty-fifth street, Coney Island. Miss Golding, who in 1911 won the first open race for women from the Battery to Coney Island, took the lead off Governor's island and was never headed.

See Trouble With Japan In Proposed Seamen Act

Washington, Aug. 28.—Fear that the passage of the Seamen's bill will draw the United States into complications with other nations, particularly Japan, was voiced in the House to-day when that measure came up for consideration. Representative, William E. Humphrey, of Washington, brought up the subject of possible international complications. Representative Joshua W. Alexander, chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, who is in charge of the bill, explained how it had been modified by his committee since its passage in the Senate, when it was known popularly as the La Follette bill. The measure applies in certain respects to foreign vessels as well as American craft.

If a Japanese vessel at San Francisco should not conform to these provisions about seamen would it be the duty of the Collector of Customs there to prevent that vessel from clearing—does the gentleman so interpret the language of the bill?" asked Mr. Humphrey.

"The language is general," replied Mr. Alexander, who expressed no opinion on that point.

The discussion had gone only a short way when the House adjourned. Mr. Humphrey intends to go more fully into these phases of the bill when it comes up again on Thursday.

Attempts were again made to-day to get a quorum of the Committee on Rules so that a rule might be reported to hasten consideration of the administration war risk bill, but failed. The members of the committee here had a conference, but no action resulted.

No steps were taken to-day to press consideration of the administration's bill for the creation of a government owned merchant marine, and there were no indications that the leaders were more anxious to hasten its progress than formerly.

MIDGETS AND DWARFS

They Simply Are Slow in Developing and Remain Childlike

Professor Hastings Gilford delivered an interesting lecture on "Infantilism" at the Royal College of Surgeons in London recently. He pointed out that many so-called dwarfs or midgets are not in reality the result of a stoppage of growth, but rather of a protracted delay of development, so that they remain infants all their lives. And when they grow old, as they often do, their infantile characteristics still persist, in spite of their wizened appearance.

So extraordinary is their slowness in passing through the childish stage that in one case Professor Gilford found it took twenty years for one of these little people to grow as much as an ordinary child grows in five years. Growth goes on until well over thirty, and at the end of that time the little "man" may be no bigger than a child of six. One case was mentioned in which one of these "infantilates" passed as a child until nearly thirty years, having no difficulty in travelling on the railway with a half-ticket. Another, a boy of fourteen, could pass as a baby in arms, and took the leading role in one of the London theatres, acting alternately as a baby and as a diminutive "man about town," with great intelligence and ability.

"It is this kind of complaint, for such is its nature, that accounts for the midgets," continued the professor. "They seem to be intelligent and captivating little people, their intelligence being of the childish pattern, such as might be expected of young children who gather years of experience. They never seem to be spoiled, nor even to be embarrassed by the attentions they receive from the public, but show quaint childish traits and a charming naivete, which makes them great favorites with those who have dealings with them."

CANADIANS' DUTY TO THE FOREIGNERS

They Must be Taught English—Old World Conditions Must Not be Allowed to Root Here

In Dr. Norman F. Black, of Regina, the alien population of Saskatchewan has an interested friend. He sees clearly the value in the foreign element amongst the peoples of the province, provided always that steps are taken to eliminate what may be objectionable in their racial ways, and to instil what is lovely and of good report in ours. In speaking to the Canadian Club of Indian Head on this subject, Dr. Black said, in part: If we realize that these people can rise to true Canadian citizenship, we must see to it that there is fair play to the emigrant; that there is fair play to Canada. We must see that he gets the English language, and we must cease using the term "white man" to distinguish the native born from the alien; and we must see to it that old world conditions, methods and customs are not allowed to become deep rooted here.

Compulsory Education

Secondly, the Education Departments have a duty to perform; inspectors should have some knowledge of the conditions and be able to instruct and advise the teachers; the teacher should have some manual for teaching English to foreigners; summer schools should be organized; racial schools should not be allowed, yet we find that in some parts of the Dominion Polish, Ruthenian, German and French schools are being organized; this is to be regretted as the system has a tendency to breed disunion and division rather than that unity and common purpose which is so much to be desired. Third, the legislature has a duty to perform. There should be a workable compulsory education law. We have this now in Saskatchewan in towns and cities, but this Act never has worked, and never will work, in rural districts until amended. The legislature should define what is meant by "elementary course"; the school law allows "elementary courses" to be taught in certain foreign languages; what does that mean? We teach "elementary courses" in arithmetic, geography, etc. There should be special kinds of High Schools to meet the needs of this alien element. Our naturalization laws should be protected; at present there is no solemnity, or dignity attached to the handing out of these naturalization papers which are filled with phraseology meaningless to the applicant.

Duty of Trustees

Fourth, school trustees have a duty to perform. In securing proper teachers where there is this alien element. In seeing that special classes are formed in the school. In seeing that there is the necessary special equipment. In seeing that there is, in towns and cities a public place where infant children may be taken care of order that the elder children may attend school. That night schools be established. Lastly, the private citizen has a duty to perform, and this is the greatest of all, not only in his personal contact with the alien, but in seeing that the Normal schools, the education departments, the legislature and the school trustees perform their duty in their respective spheres. The duty of the private citizen in his personal contact and associations with aliens is of far-reaching importance. It is not enough for us to say "we are not our brother's keeper"; that is a murderer's excuse.

Panama and Forests

With the opening of the Panama Canal the development of the forest resources of the near-by tropical countries should receive considerable stimulus. The wood of the mangrove tree, which grows along the low-lying coasts of British Guiana and adjacent countries, is said to be twice as strong as oak, and, when stood on end, will sustain without crushing a load of 8 tons to the square inch. It is said to be immune to decay which, with its great strength, makes it an ideal wood for railway ties.

Forestry Survey

At an average cost of less than one per cent. per square mile, 15,203 square miles of Dominion Crown timberlands in the Northwest were examined last year by forest survey parties sent out by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior.

GOOD TEETH AN ASSET

Work a Misery if the Mouth Needs Dentist's Attention

Has it ever occurred to you that your teeth are a valuable part of your business equipment Well they are, and for more reasons than appearance, although a row of fine teeth are beyond a doubt indicative of a healthy body and also have a beauty not to be ignored.

If the teeth are neglected it is bound to affect your work; for frequent toothaches are the best mind disturbers there are, and no one can think properly of business problems or household matters with a throbbing jaw.

In addition to the discomforts of the ache poor teeth mean incomplete mastication and lack of chewing means that the food is not properly prepared for the stomach and indigestion is sure to follow sooner or later.

Indigestion not only makes one feel heavy and uncomfortable, but it is apt to affect the nerves and the circulation so that eyes and head again suffer and the work is impeded all because the teeth are not able to do their work properly.

Every day the doctors are finding that the teeth are to blame for more of the ills of the body and it does not pay to put off visits to the dentist especially before going away in the summer. Sea air or any change of climate is bound to find a sensitive tooth if one is neglected and this may mean the loss of several days' vacation through toothache and perhaps a visit to a strange dentist who may not understand your mouth as well as the one who usually looks after you

ON HAPPINESS

It is undeniable that the great quest of humanity is happiness.

But was the world created to be happy? How many are truly happy? I've studied people in all classes and conditions, and everywhere I have found, when you get below the surface, that it is mostly the insincere individual who says, "I am happy." Nearly everybody wants something he hasn't got, and as things are constructed, what he wants is money—more money than he has in his pocket.

But after all, money can buy only a few things. Why should anyone envy the captains of industry? Their lives are made up of those vast, incessant worries from which the average individual is happily spared. Worry, worry, that is the evil of life.

What do I consider the nearest approximation to happiness of which the present human nature is capable? Why, living on a farm which is one's own, far from the hectic, artificial conditions of the city—a farm where one gets directly from one's own soil what one needs to sustain life, with a garden in front and a healthy, normal family to contribute those small domestic joys which relieve a man from business strain.—Thomas A. Edison.

HELEN ARMSTRONG

This little five-year-old girl gets a nice, thick pay-envelope every week for playing child parts before the moving picture film. She plays with her doll, mauls a big dog or whispers to her mother in such a natural and unaffected way that she is in great demand. All patrons of the "movie" shows have seen her very often.

The Canny Scot

Sir Thomas Lipton, having made his fortune out of tea, tells some good stories about the beverage. One of them, illustrating the "canniness" of the Scot, is as follows:

An old farmer of Dumfries-shire was the guest of a fine lady in that country. When the afternoon tea was served the hostess observed that the old man gulped down his before she could serve the other guests. Again and again the farmer passed his cup to be refilled. At the ninth cup the lady, becoming uneasy as to the supply on hand, ventured to ask:

"How many cups of tea do you take, John?"

"How many do ye gie?" asked John warily.

Dog Buys His Own License

Hunters Killed

Twenty-four hunters were killed in Wisconsin and northern Michigan and many were wounded during the deer season. Most of the fatalities were caused by men being taken for deer.

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

PRESERVING ANTELOPE

Dominion Government Undertaking to Prevent Them Becoming Extinct

The rescue and perpetuation of the rapidly disappearing prong-horned antelope is to be undertaken by the Dominion Government. To this end it enlisted the services of Ernest Thompson-Seton, the naturalist, and Maxwell Graham, chief of the zoological division at Ottawa, who have outlined a scheme which promises success.

This proposes the establishment of three fenced parks for antelope in different parts of their favorite range on areas not desirable for agriculture and in regions that still contain wild antelope.

The first step was to outline the ancient and present range of the antelope, then to ascertain the probable number at large. The combined evidence of many game wardens and mounted police shows that there are yet between 1,000 and 1,500 antelope still at large in the Canadian Northwest.

Prior to the hard winter of 1906 and 1907, there were at least ten times as many; but that long, fierce spell of frost and deep snow killed them off by thousands. In the spring when the driving remnants were making their way north over the frozen Saskatchewan, the rotten ice gave way, according to one ranchman, and over 500 were engulfed on one occasion, as he watched them from the bank.

Seton and Graham, acting for the Dominion, set out to select the lands needed. Three parks were secured, one in each of the prairie provinces, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. On the two former the wild antelopes still range. All the conditions, climatic, topographic and botanic have been pronounced perfect. Each park will be about thirty-six square miles in extent. The fencing will be horse high, strong and coyote proof. A competent warden will be in charge and in residence in each.

An instrument has been invented to measure the glare of light reflected from paper.

Trailer for Autos

For carrying additional baggage on automobiles an Englishman has invented a trailer to be attached to the back corners of a car and supported by a single wheel at its rear.

The Oneida (N.Y.) Union says' "Owing to there being no gas our news this week is much curtailed." From which we infer that the barber shop is closed.

If the probe into the conspiracy to increase food prices in this country results in some of the packers bein packed in jails we may expect to see a marked reduction in the cost of living.

Colonel Bolivar Beasley called on us to complain that the girls of today put on airs. That's true. Airs are about the only thing they are wearing now.

How long it will be before "the tumult and the shouting dies and the captains and the kings depart" from the field of war, no one can say, but let us hope that it will be soon.

It is unquestionably true the sympathy of Americans is with the allies in the present war, not because they dislike Germany or the Germans, but because the warlordism which Kaiser Wilhelm personifies is utterly repugnant to them.

The detention of the Germans in Belgium for more than two weeks has seriously interfered with the plans for a quick invasion of France and given the Russian bear time to advance and plant his paws on the German and Austrian frontiers.

Lord Kitchener expresses the opinion that the great European conflict will continue for eighteen months or more. We hope he is mistaken, because if it lasts that long Europe will be a vast graveyard and the war news will get on our nerves before the end comes.

War Loans

While apparently no violation of custom or international law is involved, the country will sympathize with the view of the National Administration that American financiers ought courteously but firmly to refuse to finance any war loan for any of the powers now engaged in war. The promptness with which the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. has fallen in with the President's view in respect to the proposed French loan is creditable to the patriotism of that great banking house.

Shutting the American doors to such loans is not upheld by precedent. When, in 1904, Russia and Japan were engaged in their death-grapple three separate loans, aggregating $135,000,000, were floated in this country for Japan. Japan borrowed also in England and Germany, while French bankers financed Russia to the extent of $300,000,000. The point was never raised that these transactions put the creditor nations in an unneutral attitude toward either Russia or Japan. We shall furnish food and other supplies to all of the warring powers without having our motives impugned.

But there are many reasons why this French loan should be rejected. We could not make it without morally obligating ourselves to make similar loans both to all the allies and the enemies of France. But if we did undertake to do this we should not only tax our own resources, to the consequent inquiry of our own people who need the money themselves, but we should be actually promoting a prolongation of this blasting struggle which every American is now praying may come speedily to an end.

Technically the leading of money to a belligerent is neither an illegal nor an unfriendly act. Under ordinary conditions it would raise no question of neutrality. But in the extraordinary situation which has been created by the embroilment of the nations of Europe and Asia in the greatest war of the ages, we ought to be exceptionally scrupulous in refraining from doing anything that might cause irritation or tend to lengthen the life of the strife.

COMMERCIAL WAR IN ENGLAND

London, Aug. 26.—A bitter commercial war against Germany and Austria has been inaugurated in England. It has the loyal support of press and public.

The London Chamber of Commerce committee, at a meeting today, discussed this anti-German trade campaign. The commercial injustice branch of the Board of Trade has skilled staff working on lists of German imports and it calls attention of manufacturers to the lines which Germans sell heavily in England.

It is estimated that $12,000,000 worth of German dynamos and motors are sold annually in British territory.

The Board of Trade has arranged for the suspension of German and Austrian patents in England, wherever manufacturers want to make use of them in the public interest. The drug manufacturers are preparing to capture the great trade which German chemical concerns have enjoyed in England.

Plan to Capture all German Trade

All English chambers of commerce have been advised of this opportunity and urged by the London Chamber to interest manufacturers in cornering German business especially in hosiery. Germany shipped more than $17,000,000 worth of stockings to England last year, as well as much underwear. Furthermore, Germany has enjoyed an extensive trade in women's suits and cotton goods.

All the daily papers as well as the trade journals, are filled with letters, articles and editorials, setting forth how to capture the German trade. Buyers are urged to boycott German goods after the present stocks held by English merchants are exhausted.

The trade and industry committee of the Royal Colonial Institute is compiling statistics of German and Austrian trade throughout the empire. This information will be published soon.

Boycott to Include Toys.

The treasury has announced that the government will not permit British firms to deal with German and Austrian firms located in hostile territory; also that contracts entered into before the war with firms in hostile territory cannot be carried out.

The English papers are making an especial attack on the German manufacturers of Christmas cards and toys. All parents are urged to deny their children playthings made by the enemies of the empire.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,900 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows:

In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,960 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,420 feet, 1,605 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 898 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

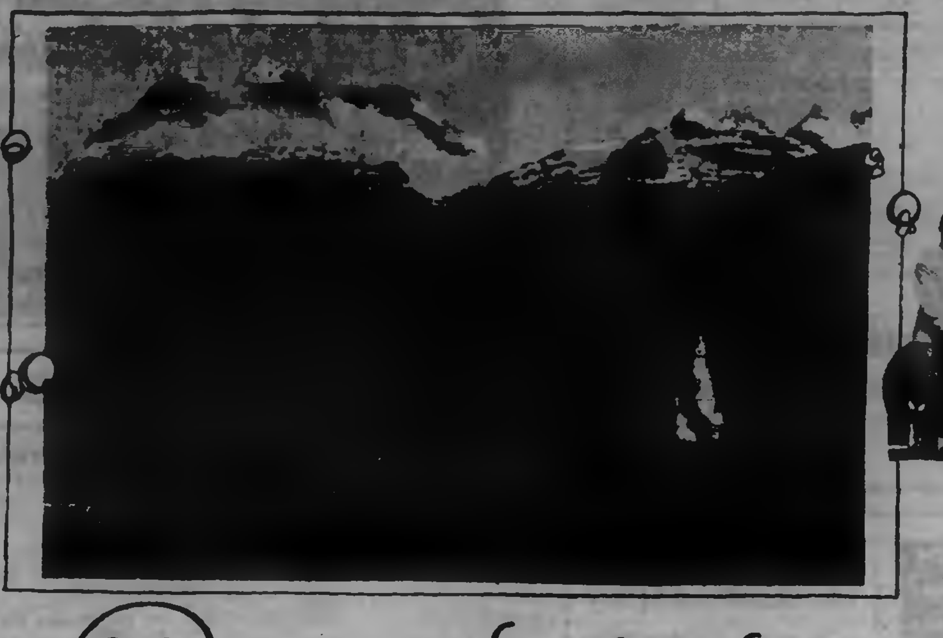
CANADIAN SILHOUETTES



Revelstoke on the Columbia

REVELSTOKE impressed me as a scattered town of many hotels where people stay for one night. If you stay there for a week, in any hotel, you will hear, after you have gone to bed, somewhere in the quiet hours sounds of people coming into the hall below. Jangling of keys, slamming of doors, coughing, clearing of throats—and then silence reigns again.

In the morning you will be wakened long before your time by banging on various doors, banging here, banging there, and as you turn over for your last nap the voice of the hotel omnibus driver in the hall shouts to the breakfasters: "All aboard!" When you get down to breakfast with the residents there are signs in the dining-room that it has been busy there already. The trains all seem to come into Revelstoke very late at night and go out very early.

The number of people who have put up there in the dark, fallen tired into bed, and imagine that the clerk called them up two minutes later to a rushed breakfast and a drive through chill morning to the depot, must be tremendous. To most people in British Columbia that is the meaning of Revelstoke.

But it is a glorious little place to stay on in. The Columbia River fans out there after running under a broad, picturesque bridge, and mirrors the surrounding mountains in a way that, if dollar-getting were not the sole meaning of life, would detain people a day or two at least. I believe that the Canadian Pacific Railway people have discovered a lake on top of the mountain back of the town, and are going to build a twining motor road up to it, and break a trail so that the place can be advertised; and people will go up and look at the lake either on horseback, or in "autos" and take a note of it in the diaries, and say: "Oh, Ain't it Lovely."

Revelstoke will not object. These people bring money. The building of the road up the mountain will give employment to local men, who will spend some of their money in Revelstoke, and even a heaven-mirroring lake on a mountain top may mean dollars.—By Frederick Niven, author of "Hands Up!"

MORE COAL IS EXPORTED

United States Government and a State Banking Institution the Shippers

New York, Aug. 26.—Gold to the value of $750,000 was engaged here yesterday for export. From now on bankers expect to hear of small shipments from time to time, but declare that no vast amount of the metal will go out of the country.

Of the sum taken yesterday, $500,000 was in bars, and $250,000 in coin. The bars were taken by the United States government for shipment to Canada, there to be placed to the credit of the Bank of England. The shipment is to cover money distributed among Americans abroad, in compliance with the requests of relatives here, who had deposited the funds with the United States government at the Treasury in Washington and at the various sub-treasuries throughout the country.

The $250,000 in coin was taken by a State banking institution. That also is to go to Ottawa to cover certain liabilities in Europe the bank is required to discharge.

FIRST WHITE MEN IN NORTH AMERICA

Scientist States They Crossed Pacific to Peru—Fair Haired and Bearded

In the London Times Mr. Derek Masson puts forward the theory, which is now generally accepted, that many centuries ago there was a race of white men in America and that a white race inhabited America in prehistoric times is proved by a number of facts which fit in with this theory. There is, for instance, the prophecy of the return of the white god, Quetzalcoatl, which inspired the Mexicans with the belief that it was being fulfilled by the arrival of the Spaniards, and which made the conquest of the country much easier for the invaders. Again, among certain tribes of Indians in America are to be found a number possessed of fair hair and complexions. These fair types of Indians are to be found only on or near the Pacific coast, and the number of Indians distinguished from their fellows is too widespread to admit of the suggestion that this intermingling of blood is of recent origin. In the same districts there have been discovered the remains of a forgotten civilization in the form of ancient buildings of majestic proportions and carvings representing types of a distinctly Aryan origin, quite different from the native races of Indians.

Mr. Mason's theory is that thousands of years ago a foreign race migrated across the Pacific Ocean to America, where they founded civilizations that had crumbled into dust ages before Columbus reached its shores. Fair haired and bearded, they must have been Europeans. It is believed that this migration was gradual and by way of the islands of the Pacific. The inhabitants of Polynesia are of Aryan origin, a fact which seems to support this theory of a European migration. Moving from island to island, this seafaring white people finally reached America, landing in Peru and neighboring regions. As the coasts of Peru dried up they were driven northwards to Central America and Yucatan, where their civilization survived for four thousand years. Then the race perished off the face of America, leaving traces of its existence in vague traditions, in ruined buildings, and pale-faced Indians. This is all that remains to attest the existence of a hardy and enterprising people who ages ago crossed the Pacific and built up empires and civilizations the memory of which has long since perished with their transient glories.

KINDNESS IN CHILDREN

Duke of Connaught Advocates Teaching Kindness

"Teach the children to be kind to animals," was the principal theme in the address of the Duke of Connaught in addressing the Toronto Humane Society. "Among all the societies that exist—and they are many, there is none that ought to appeal more to the juvenile members of the family than this society which teaches kindness to animals. We all know the natural affection that children have for and the great pleasure that dumb animals give to children.

"I hope, therefore, that the parents will do all they can to inculcate into their children the habit of kindly treatment of animals. We must all have felt that if animals could only speak, we would know what to do for them. But as they cannot, we must be kind to them."

A Clock of Glass

A clock constructed throughout of glass is the result of six years' work on the part of a Bavarian glass polisher. The plates and pillars which form the framework are of glass, and are bolted together with glass screws. The dial-plate, hands, shafts, and cogwheels are of glass and glass wedges and pins are used for fastening the various parts of the running gear together. Like the clock itself, the key by which it is wound is of glass. The construction of the remarkable time-piece was a matter of infinite pains. Some of the parts had to be made as many as forty times before a clock that would go could be produced.

New Substitute For Meat

A chemist in Belgium, by taking the albumen from the residue of malt grains and putting it through a process, is said to have produced a pasty food, claimed to taste like meat, but with three times as much nourishment. The cost of the food is said to be small. Physicians in Brussels have experimented on men with it, and with excellent results.

A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF CANADA

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—H. R. H. The Duke of Connaught, sends the following personal message to Canadians in behalf of the Patriotic Fund:—

"In response to many urgent appeals from many parts of the Dominion, I inaugurated the Canadian Patriotic Fund, the object of which is to provide for the needs of the wives, families and dependent relatives of those who go to the front to fight the battles of Great Britain and her allies. Unless generous-minded citizens come to their aid, there will be, during the coming winter, much hardship in many families owing to the absence of the bread-winner. I have the greatest confidence that those who are in a position to give need but the opportunity of doing so, and that the response will be widespread and generous.

"During the past few days the Canadian Patriotic Fund has been duly organized, a very strong executive representing the whole Dominion has been appointed, and a central bureau established at Ottawa.

"I sincerely hope that in every city and town throughout the Dominion, branches of this organization may be formed, full particulars of which can be had by addressing the Honorary Secretary, H. B. Ames, M. P., Ottawa.

"By coordinating and harmonizing benevolent efforts in this way, the dangers of over-lapping on the one hand, or neglecting deserving communities on the other hand, may be met and overcome.

"I am convinced that all Canadian hearts will go out to these brave fellow citizens who have gone to the front. A prompt and hearty response to this appeal will put all anxiety at rest about those near and dear to them, and will also afford to those who cannot go an opportunity of doing their duty to Canada and the Empire.

"ARTHUR
"President Canadian Patriotic Fund."

ENGLISH-CANADIANS

Rev. Dr. Gordon, Winnipeg, Preaches Sermon on "An Englishman in Canada"

Here are some excerpts from a recent sermon by Rev. Dr. J. L. Gordon, Winnipeg, on "An Englishman in Canada.":

"I am not surprised that an Englishman should be homesick in Western Canada. I would be surprised if he were not. Think of England with her cathedral towns, her classic villages, her sacred monuments, her beautiful hedgelined roads, her solid splendor, her quiet dignity, her peaceful atmosphere and her ten thousand historical associations. It will be a thousand years before we will have anything to compare with the beauty—the fascinating beauty of Dear Old England.

"Yet I know certain Englishmen and Englishwomen who think and affirm that Canada is one of the finest places in the world in which to live. I have in mind at this moment one family of English emigrants of fair intelligence, average ability and less than normal health, who in a few years have purchased for themselves a modest but very comfortable home, made generous contributions to the church and kindred institutions, and induced almost a score of their relatives to join them on this side of the sea. They believe in Canada because they have succeeded in Canada (and Canada is a good country to succeed in). The emigrant who fails in Canada was a failure at home. Canada is another word for success.

"Canada is a good country. Less liquor is sold in Canada than in any other country—thanks to the 'temperance crank.' Canada has the lowest death rate of any country in the world. There are fewer ignorant and illiterate people in Canada than in any other country. There are fewer paupers in Canada to the square mile than elsewhere. In Canada the working day is longer, the night brighter, the air more bracing, the social conditions more democratic and the prospects brighter than anywhere else on the North American continent. I believe in Canada!"

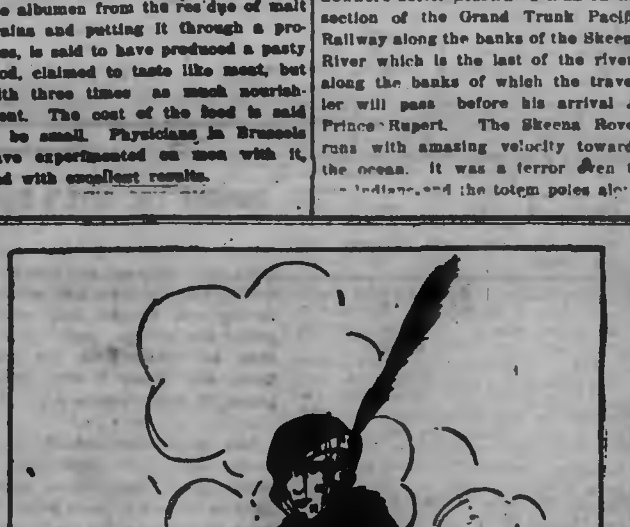
ALONG THE SKEENA

A River Which Passes Among the Rockies With Great Velocity

Railroad building, its cost and its difficulties is always an interesting topic. The conquest the engineer has achieved over nature's obstacles is nowhere better illustrated than on the section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway along the banks of the Skeena River which is the last of the rivers along the banks of which the traveller will pass before his arrival at Prince Rupert. The Skeena River runs with amazing velocity towards the ocean. It was a terror even to the Indians, and the totem poles along its bank mark many a tragedy in the redman's history. The bed of the river is strewn with gigantic rocks, boulders and sand bars and these are shifting continually under the force of the river's current. The railroad builders by means of big outlays of money on river appliances made the Skeena serve as the means of transporting the supplies for a constructional army numbering 3,000 men and 3,000 horses. Very little tunnelling has been done, as nearly four million cubic yards of rock were blown away on 186 miles of line between Prince Rupert and Hazelton to make an attractive route through the Cascades.

Foretelling the Weather

Weather forecasts were used last summer in regulating the fire-protective patrol in the Railway Belt, British Columbia. As the prevailing winds were westerly the weather to be expected in the interior of the province could be foretold by telegraph many hours in advance, and if there was little danger to be expected, the District Fire Inspector would permit a temporary decrease in the railway patrol.



BLACK VELVET COLLARED AND SASHED IN ROMAN STRIPES

Many there are who are willing to sacrifice becomingness to modishness, but this is seldom necessary where Russian designs are concerned. The most pronounced of these has something about its long easy lines that makes it becoming to nearly every figure.

Now that the strictly tailored suits are seen so little these Russian or Peasant blouse costumes are very popular. Many of them show the long shoulder, others have the sleeve cut in one with the body of the coat. The folded wide girdle, sash or belt of leather are all used effectively.

Most appropriate to these designs are the new pile fabrics, velours de laine, duvetyn or velvet. Velvet in black or one of the dark shades, tete de negre brown, taupe or green would make up well.

As shown in 7980-7981, black velvet is effectively relieved by a sash and cuffs of Roman stripes. The coat is in Peasant style, closes on the left shoulder, has a full length sleeve and a high standing collar. The skirt is a three-piece model with a panel front and a suggestion of fullness at the waist-line in back.

The coat (7980) can be copied in size 36 with 3¾ yards of 42 inch material. The skirt (7981) requires for size 24 2⅜ yards of 42 inch material.

AS LIGHT AS LAGER
BUT BETTER FOR YOU

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. BURNING THE DEVIL'S BOOKS

Text: "And many that believed came, and confessed and showed their deeds. Many of them also which used curious arts brought their books together and burned them before all men; and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver."—Acts XIX: 18-19.

Let the smoke ascend, for these books ought to be destroyed. The phrenological mountain of destructibility is not out of place here. There are some things which the fire engines ought to let burn. Yes, onlookers ought to pray that the wind fan the flames when the devil's books are being burned.

It all happened in old Ephesus, the ruins of which you may see to-day as the unsightly tombstone of a civilization which deserved to perish. But the very ruins of that ancient city show the enterprise of its people. It had a great gymnasium, a grand theatre and stadium six hundred and eighty-seven feet long. But the temple, Diana, was its chief glory. One of the seven ancient wonders of the world, it was the proud boast of the Ephesians that the sun shone on nothing more glorious. Alexander the Great offered all the gold he had taken from rich King Croesus for its rebuilding, if he could put his name upon it. But the offer was refused, and the temple was rebuilt at a tremendous cost, raised by popular subscription. One hundred and twenty-seven rulers each sent the price of a stately column sixty feet high.

One would think that such grand architecture should have a good effect on a city's morals. On the contrary, that magnificent pile was the ruin of Ephesus. Great buildings, to be effective, must stand for truths, not lies. This temple stood for a great big lie! It was the home of a little image, rude and unshapely, which, according to the crafty priests, fell down from Jupiter. Is it surprising that a temple built around a lie should breed all sorts of deceptions and frauds?

Some sins travel in fraternal groups. They are constellations around a central star. They are never found alone, but show their consanguinity by keeping together. Does gambling consume a neighborhood? The drinking resort and the dive will appear at once. Here in Ephesus, the central lie was soon surrounded by clever fakirs. Some established little idol factories and shops. Everybody was exhorted to take home a little fac-simile Diana to keep the ghosts away. Others told fortunes by the stars or by the palms of fools' hands. Another class of plunderers sold charms to bring back lovers, cure diseases or win athletic contests. Of course, where such opportunities for deception existed, there soon arose an army of exorcists and sorcerers, priests and priestesses, developing a population of cunning grafters who, conscious of their common deceptions, soon lost all shame and sank into the deepest mire of degradation.

Into this reeking community, Paul entered. He came with a hero's spirit. He recognized it as a great door opened to him. The adversaries but added to the zest of the conflict. Great miracles fitted to the occasion were wrought by him in the name of his Lord. The lying conjurors endeavored to imitate the stranger, and adjured an evil spirit, "by Jesus whom Paul preacheth," to come out of a man. The evil spirit tore them and overcame them till they fled, naked and bleeding. Fear fell upon all the workers of iniquity. The colony of evil-doers under the temple's shadow was stirred mightily. There was a tremendous religious awakening. They came and confessed and showed their deeds. They brought their bad books, which taught the Black Arts of Satan, and put them on a pile, in view of all men, and set fire to a library of wickedness, worth $10,000 to them. In the mighty revival which followed, was established the Ephesian Church notable in the apostolic era.

MOST HAPPY SIGNS IN WESTERN CANADA

Increasing Interest in the Man on the Land and the Progress of Agriculture

The growing interest of all classes of people in the welfare of the man on the land, and the increasing desire for the progress of agriculture, are undoubtedly among the most hopeful of the signs of the present time in western Canada. The cry from agricultural Macedonia is being heeded, and most striking is the assistance which is being rendered and which has been promised by those interests composing the Boards of Trade of the cities and towns. Not long ago, when the fever of expansion was at its height in these urban communities, thousands of dollars and volumes of energy were expended in a vain endeavor to acquire industries. Stimulated by a craze for profits in real estate, the general demand was for factories and an increased pay roll, and some municipalities got the factories without the increased pay roll. It has taken just a little longer than one year to establish a new commercial point of view in nearly every city and town in the west. In one aspiring city in Saskatchewan, which is situated in the very heart of a grain area of 3,600 square miles, the clamor for industries has given way to the slogan, "a man for every farm in the surrounding district." The President of the Edmonton Board of Trade, delivering his annual address recently, emphasized the same idea, encouraging development in the rural districts. These were his words in referring to the question of further manufacturing in this city: "I would first like to see those ninety-five factories and industrial enterprises we already have operating to full capacity and increasing their capacity. To double the output of existing factories is preferable to doubling the number of industries. I feel that work designed to promote agricultural development in our tributary territory should be vigorously continued, and the attention of outside agriculturists drawn in every possible way to the fact that between the Red Deer and the Athabasca Rivers lies probably the best mixed farming country on this continent. At present it is estimated that less than five per cent. of the good tillable land in the rich territory referred to is in use. To increase the production of the surrounding land is the surest way to increase the output of Edmonton factories."—Norman Lambert in The Globe.

Douglas Fir

Douglas fir is the chief timber species in British Columbia, and is third in importance in Canada, deriving its name from David Douglas, who discovered it in 1827 and introduced it into the gardens of Europe. Its adaptability and rapid rate of growth led to its being largely planted as a forest tree in Germany, France, Denmark and England, and the Indians in British Columbia sell immense quantities of seeds to European dealers every year. A Danish plantation at the age of 29 years produced 87 cords of wood, equal to an annual production of three cords per acre, which is about three times the growth-rate of white pine on average soil in Canada. The wood of Douglas fir is also considerably stronger than white pine, and is valued highly for construction purposes because of its size, strength and comparative lightness.

District of Patricia

In the 157,400 square miles added to northern Ontario there is very little timber of any present value. Mr. J. B. Tyrrell, reporting on his trip through this new district of Patricia, says: "Most of the timber was small and much of it has been burned. . . . Larch or 'tamarack' is associated with white and black spruce to the northern limit of the district, but unfortunately most of the trees are dead."

Strength of Hickory

Hickory is the strongest Canadian wood. When properly seasoned a hickory column will support a weight of twelve tons per square inch cross-section, which is considerably more than what could be borne by a pillar of cast iron or steel of the same length and weight.

Pulp Mills in Canada

In the little country of Denmark there are 230 pulp or paper mills. In Canada, according to the latest available statistics of the Dominion Forestry Branch, there are only 48 pulp mills in actual operation. The Canadian mills are, however, many times larger than those in Denmark

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

PROTECT THE FORESTS

An Economic as Well as Moral Sin to Destroy Them

"The question of the protection of our forests from fire is first of all a question of morals; to burn useful material without any reason for burning is immoral," said Dr. Fernow, Dean of Forestry at the University of Toronto, in dealing with the problem of the suppression or the prevention of forest fires. He said the importance of it would be admitted when it was realized that there are at present over 569,000 acres of potentially marketable timber without any fire protection whatever. Also the Government had lost in potential dues $541,500, and this did not include the value of such timber to the community in preparing it for the market. "The one Province which now stands ahead of all others is British Columbia. They have taken the matter in hand seriously and efficiently," said Dr. Fernow. "Ontario, although the Government spends a large amount of money on forest reserves, protects very little." The reservations in Ontario are merely sections of the country that have been withdrawn from use as farm land. The thought of protecting them from fire has not yet occurred to the Government. The same might be said in regard to the profitable utilization of these forest reserves." Dr. Fernow pointed to the example of the United States, where they are making attempts to deal with the problem of the timber supply of the future.

"It is not wood of any description that we are interested in," said he, "but wood of a kind that has a commercial value. Timber is what we are interested in."

Dr. Fernow went on to say that there were six hundred millions of acres of timber now standing in the United States, five times as much as in Canada, yet the United States wanted to get Canada's timber, the reason being that they desire to conserve for the future.

"The method of detecting fires in these forest regions is by means of watch towers and a system of telephones and trails, so that a fire may be checked at its commencement. As most fires are started by sparks from railway engines, the use of oil instead of coal has been recommended by the Commissioners."

Dr. Fernow said this was a movement for providing for the future and would not benefit the present. Its progress was therefore slow, but he thought it ought to receive the support of all who had the best interests of Canada at heart. It was an economic as well as a moral sin to destroy.

Value of Poplar

Five thousand cords of poplar are used annually in Canada for the manufacture of excelsior, according to statistics recently gathered by the Dominion Forestry Branch. The wood must be clear of knots, peeled, and cut into four-foot lengths, to command the highest price from the manufacturer. In Switzerland excelsior is chiefly made from pine and fir and is used largely for upholstering, for it retains elasticity longer than hair and the small percentage of resin in the wood is said to protect the furniture from moths. The Canadian product is used chiefly for packing furniture, but by using pine and spruce the present uses of excelsior might be extended.

Argentina Forests

The forests of Argentina are said to contain enormous reserves of quebracho, a tree of large size producing a very hard wood containing from 16 to 26 per cent. of tannin. Last year, Argentina exported 68,431 tons of tannin extract, besides 35,793 railties made from this wood and 438,216 tons of the timber.

Look-out Towers

At a cost of only $50 the Dominion Forestry Branch recently erected a lookout tower fifty feet high, overlooking two hundred square miles of woodland. Similar towers are being built on all the Dominion forest reserves in the West in order that fires may be seen and extinguished before they have time to spread beyond control.

Eating Corn

To make eating corn from the cob easier and neater a New Jersey man has invented a knife with concave teeth to loosen the kernels.

Saving Labor

In rebuilding a church spire in England recently a 15 horsepower electric motor did the work of six men at about one-twentieth the cost.

Sea birds, sensitive to pending changes in the weather, fly inland at the approach of stormy weather in quest of food.

Eggs of different species of birds greatly differ in shape, but the yolks are invariably spherical.

Rubber From Steel

Artificial rubber as a by-product of the manufacture of steel may be a possibility as English scientists are experimenting with its production from coke oven gases.

Mirror For Watching Airships

For watching aeroplane flights without straining the neck an inventor has patented a mirror to be attached to the end of field glasses at any desired angle.

PRODUCERS RATHER THAN MIDDLEMEN

W. H. Cushing of Calgary, Alberta, Speaks of the Need of Settlers on the Land

Mr. W. H. Cushing, in referring to Alberta as the land of opportunity, says:

"There is no country like it for the young man providing he is sensible and does not insist on getting rich quick. Think of it! 100,000,000 acres of the finest agricultural land in the world, and only 2,000,000 acres of it under cultivation! Too many are going to the cities and too few back to the land. We want producers more than middlemen in the West. Industry and patience are all that is necessary to win for the ambitious at least a comfortable competence in Alberta." Mr. Cushing does not see any danger ahead because of exhaustive wheat growing. Optimist that he is, he says that it is questionable whether the sponge-like soil of the prairies could be robbed of its virtue no matter how many crops were taken from it. Certainly it would not deteriorate if given proper care and a rest occasionally. Even admitting that the wheat growers were taxing their land in the effort to grow wealthy quickly, the danger faded away when it was remembered that but little over 2 per cent. of the agricultural land had yet been ploughed. "Alberta," concludes Mr. Cushing, "stands on immense beds of coal, deposits of gas, oil, etc. In the north, there are large tracts of practically pure salt and other valuable minerals abound. All this is in addition to her agriculture. Who can predict what lies in front of such a storehouse of natural wealth? As I said before, I am firmly convinced that, for the young man, Alberta is the land of opportunity."

LIFE AFTER FORTY

The best half of life is in front of the man of 40, if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hands of a master and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man is the world so new and the future so fresh as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in striving to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and beautiful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thing as staleness in life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes each year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.

VICE-ADMIRAL R. H. S. STOKES who was appointed to succeed Vice-Admiral Sir C. H. Coke as senior officer on the coast of Ireland.

Perpetuating Game

Large game preserves have recently been set aside in Somaliland, Uganda and other British protectorates in Africa, in which the hunting is prohibited of elephants, giraffes, rhinoceroses and other valuable game in danger of extinction. This policy has also proved successful in perpetuating the game supply on certain Dominion Forest Reserves in Western Canada, and as occasion demands the number of these game preserves will be increased.

Our Timber Wealth

The Philippine Islands, which are extremely heavily wooded, are supposed to contain 200,000,000,000 feet, board measure, of timber. This is about one-third the estimated timber wealth of Canada, not including pulpwood, of which there are approximately 400,000,000 cords.

A Generous Prince

The Crown Prince of Germany decided to spend the profits from the sale of his book, "From a Sportsman's Diary," in providing a three weeks' holiday for one hundred boys attending the Berlin elementary schools. The boys were selected from the poorest class, and were quartered in the barracks of the Prince's regiment at Langfuhr, near Dantzig, which locality combines the advantages of country and seaside.

COPPER

The Red Metal

MILLIONS OF TONS OF PAY ORE

Copper is one of the world's chief necessities, and the demand for it is constantly increasing. Growth of the electrical industry largely accounts for this. Telegraph and Telephone Wire—Trolley Wire—Trolley Wheels and the multitude of other Electrical Machines and Parts—Power Transmission Wire and the use of the metal in various valuable Alloys—these are some of the places where copper is consumed, and while its production is enormous it is used about as rapidly as it can be mined and made ready. THIS IS WHY OWNERSHIP IN A COPPER MINE IS ONE OF THE MOST SATISFACTORY SOURCES OF INCOME POSSIBLE TO IMAGINE.

TIME TO START

Naturally the time to secure an interest in any sort of enterprise is at the start, because it is then that money for development and equipment is needed and this is, of course, the reason why shares in the project are released! When these necessities are provided for the Opportunity passes.

For years we have been spending time, effort and money in getting together one of the largest known copper deposits, and we now own and control thousands of acres of land, covering veins of copper, ore carrying gold and silver values, extensive veins of coal, iron and lime.

The geology is so well defined as to make identifications of size and location of the copper bearing veins a perfect definite matter. In addition to this the estate has been thoroughly prospected by some 4,000 feet of work, there being more than 160 shafts, pits, cuts and tunnels, every one of which shows copper in paying quantities. The dumps of these openings run from 2 to 8 per cent in copper metal.

Facilities for economically winning the copper from its ores are remarkably fine. In the company's own ground are five known coal beds, insuring a perpetual supply of cheap fuel, easily accessible and located within a very short distance of the site chosen for its furnaces. Water and timber are also abundant and easy of access.

One of Colorado's most eminent mining engineers, after thoroughly examining this property, states in his report that the net profits resulting from operation of this property should range from $250,000 to $1,000,000 each year.

There is no uncertainty, no guesswork, about this project. Applied to it, a definite cause will inevitably produce an equally definite effect. Equipment for mining these immense bodies of ore and reducing the metal in them to bullion means dividends—it can't mean anything else—and it is to provide this equipment and the funds required for its installation and the preliminary operating expenses of the estate that an interest in the project is offered to you.

It is YOUR OPPORTUNITY to join in a well planned, conservative, and exceptionally profitable business undertaking. The foundations are laid, the property is acquired and the next step—providing the equipment—is now being taken. So soon as this is accomplished your chance to secure a share in the enterprise will be gone.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH, PERHAPS WEAK THROAT USE "CATARRHOZONE"—DEAD SURE CURE

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone, and neither the moisture of an atomizer nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way through all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" say it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation.

You breathe in its healing balsams, inhale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant—nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mr. H. B. McLaughlan, the well-known representative of Parke and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy.

Large size sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed, $1.00; small size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Not a German Airship.

Some little excitement was caused yesterday morning by the London and local baseball teams as they occupied a street car and cheered along the street car lines. Live advertising! As they passed up George street cheering, the noise was heard at the White House. A traveller standing at the door was asked by the clerks, "What is all the noise about?" He replied, "A German air ship is just passing over George street." The clerks fell over one another in their anxiety to see the Zeppilin. They now wonder whether the traveller's remarks were a joke or a deeply laid plot to rob the cash register.

For Local Health.

Dr. R. W. Bell, formerly of this city, but now connected with the Provincial Health Department, Toronto, with Dr. Clinton, of Belleville, district Medical Health officer, was in the city yesterday, both guests at the Oriental Hotel. The two expert medical men are on their way to Buckhorn and other Northern points, to examine sanitary conditions. Dr. Bell, in conversation with the Times remarked on the splendid work done by the Ontario Government for health purposes in Muskoka. On the Muskoka Lakes steamers are required to have tanks in connection with lavatories. Here the refuse is collected in tanks. The refuse is treated with live steam at a heat of 220 degrees and over and thus rendered innocuous before being emptied into the water.

The Committee thoroughly appreciates the generosity of Mr. Robinson and the ladies and gentlemen who put up such a splendid programme. The presence of the men in uniform at the entrance was a happy idea. The musical numbers were as follows: "Motherland" by Miss Greenhalgh; "Asthore" by Miss Hanson; "Veterans' Song" by Mr. Tom Ward; "Welsh Patriotic Song" by Mr. Ed. Jones. From 7.30 to 10 p.m. the Grand Opera House Orchestra played splendid selections and marches under the leadership of Mr. George Howarth. The accompanist for the afternoon was Mr. R. J. Devey, and at night Mr. Jno. Allen. The films shown were splendid and many present last night, will visit them today. ELMENTS OF INTEREST IN THIS HEN CASE

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 28.—The mouth of the chicken thief is as soft as the way of the transgressor is hard, and as long as that obvious peculiarit.. of roost looters remains and David Pollard is a member of the Chicago police force this city will be no place for a bandit chicken fancier. Detective Pollard to-day added a long list of leathery conquests when he brought in the man who has been taking all but the feed from the chicken coop of Joseph Hartman, at No. 3,647 Wentworth avenue.

Yesterday morning Mr. Hartman rushed into the station house, which is a block from his home, and reported that the last of the Leghorns had gone where the woodbine twineth. He had made eight previous reports regarding the gradual decline of his cooped interests, and he accompanied this final announcement of the grand clean-up with a song and dance that indicated the quintessence of precipitated wrath. He wanted to know what in the name of the warring nations he got in exchange for his taxes if he couldn't even keep chickens under the chaperonage of the police.

When Mr. Hartman had left the station, somewhat wobbly but still on its foundation, the lieutenant called four detectives and told them to spend the day getting the wretch who had left the Hartman coop desolate. Last night they reported after a hard day's work that there was absolutely nothing doing. They had searched through the negro colony without success.

To-day Detective Pollard, who is a negro, was assigned to the case. He returned in an hour with a white man, carrying a bag of chickens.

"He had a chicken mouth and a bag of chickens," said Pollard, "and I knew I couldn't go wrong."

Russian Navy Thought To Have Freed Herself From the Gulf of Finland--Silence Reigns as to Events in East Russia--Treatment of Wounded in England

London, Aug. 28—5 p.m.—No news reached London to-day concerning the trend of events on any part of the battle line where the fighting is in progress. Interest here is intense, for it is felt that the engagements now going on must have a great influence on the fate of Paris. Silence also veils the progress of events in East Prussia and Galicia.

Ten million Russian soldiers have been enrolled under the standard of Emperor Nicholas, according to staff officers, who have arrived here from St. Petersburg. At sea also Russia seems to be waking up. The sinking of the German cruiser Madgeburg, reported yesterday, is hailed here as suggestive and as showing that the Russian navy is not longer bottled up in the Gulf of Finland, as has been reported.

Wounded to Southampton

Virtually all the wounded men brought back to England from the front will be disembarked at the Southampton docks, and from there sent to the various hospitals in the country. Near all the big London hospitals appear on the official list of hospitals which have made arrangements for the reception of wounded men. In the London area there will be established the Queen Alexandra's War Hospital and four other military hospitals.

Follow Queen's Suggestion.

So far as possible, the suggestion of Queen Mary, that all the wounded shall be sent to hospital in the local area of the patient, is being adopted. For instance, a man from Kent would be sent to a Kentish hospital.

Substantial aid is being secured in answer to Queen Alexandra's application for Red Cross funds by means of the most successful of these is a little girl 8 years old dressed as a Red Cross nurse, who obtained two boxes full of coins in the short space of two hours on Bond street.

FIRST CANADIAN VICTIM OF WAR

Private G. M. J. Betts of Fifth Royal Highlanders is Shot

Montreal, Aug. 28.— Private Gordon M. J. Betts, of the Fifth Royal Highlanders, was shot and killed at Soulanges early to-day, according to advices reaching local military head quarters this morning. Since the outbreak of war a guard has been placed over the canal at Soulanges.

Betts was on a sentry duty at Soulanges and was shot through the eye, being killed instantly. An inquest was opened here this morning, but was adjourned so no details of the shooting are so far available.

The killing of Betts comes as a culmination to a number of attacks that have been made on the sentries posted along the canal at Soulanges, during which shots have been repeatedly fired at them.

Betts was sixteen years of age and resided in this city.

Some Call It Accident.

While there were rumors that Betts had been shot by a spy the military authorities who are making an investigation, were of the opinion that the killing was the result of accidental explosion of a rifle in the hands of some one, who may have discharged it while reloading.

EMPEROR WILLIAM NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR WAR

Paris, Aug. 28.—Abbe Wetterle, a former member of the Reichstag from Alsace, writing for a morning paper, says that it is a mistake to believe that the war was the work of either Emperor William or German officials.

"It is," he says, "the will of the people of every degree, who have been made to believe that the German race is superior to all others, and ought to dominate the universe. The emperor would have compromised his crown if he had tried to resist the popular movement."

More Russian Armies Will March On To Berlin

Paris, Aug. 28.—Colonel Osnobichin, Russian military attache, here, is quoted by The Journal as having remarked, in an interview, that he could say without indiscretion that other armies were about to invade west Prussia. After crossing the Vistula, he said, the Russians would then march straight to Berlin.

HOW SON OF COL. FOLQUE WENT TO HIS DEATH

Paris, Aug. 28.— Col. Folque, commander of a division of artillery at the front, recently needed a few men for a perilous mission, and called for volunteers.

"Those who undertake this mission will perhaps never come back," he said, "and he who commands will be one of the first sons of France to die for his country in this war."

Volunteers were numerous. A young graduate of a polytechnic school asked for the honor of leading those who would undertake the mission. It was the son of Col. Folque. The latter paled, but did not flinch. His son did not come back.

Five German Army Corps Attack First And Second British Corps

British Troops Uphold The Empire's Renown for Unsurpassed Valor Against Fearful Odds--They Save the French Army's Flank--Publicly Thanked by General Joffre--France Will Never Forget

ROTTERDAM, AUG. 28.—VIA LONDON (5.55 p.m.)—ABSOLUTELY NO NEWS OF ANY SORT REGARDING MILITARY OPERATIONS BETWEEN GERMANY AND THE FORCES OF THE ALLIES HAS BEEN PERMITTED TO COME FROM GERMANY TO ROTTERDAM DURING THE LAST FEW DAYS. IT IS KNOWN, HOWEVER, THAT MILITARY OPERATIONS ON A TREMENDOUS SCALE ARE IN PROGRESS.

Information which has any appearance of authenticity regarding the progress of the battle between the main bodies of the Germans and the allied armies is almost entirely lacking today. The British War Office has been as silent as the Paris Bureau and in the House of Commons today, Premier Asquith contented himself with giving some interesting details of the fighting on Wednesday along the line between Cambrai and Lecateau, where the British troops were engaged against forces which outnumbered them at least two to one.

A sensational claim is made from Berlin in one of the wireless messages to Sayville, L. I., to the effect that after nine days' fighting, the allies have been defeated and are in retreat. It is further stated that the British army at Maubeuge has been defeated and is in danger of being surrounded. Reports of such a character from Berlin have been discredited, and it is doubtful whether much dependence can be placed in this one.

The allies' line seems to have been withdrawn a short distance to the south, but details are entirely lacking and probably will be until the big battle which Sir John French advised the British War Office is "impending" has been well started, and there is no longer any need for secrecy as to the whereabouts of the allied troops and their plan of campaign. The news to-day is meagre, but there is good reason to believe that all is well with the allied troops, and that they have selected their own ground on which to meet the general German attack.

EXPOSED TO HEAVY FIRE

London, Aug. 28.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons today that the British troops in Wednesday's fighting were exposed to the attack of five German army corps. The losses on both sides, he said, were great.

The Premier's announcement follows:

"We have heard from Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary force, that in the fighting which took place between his army and the enemy, on Wednesday, August 26, and which appears from French official reports to have been in the neighborhood of Cambrai and Lecateau, our troops were exposed to the attack of five German army corps, two divisions of cavalry and a reserve corps of artillery, and a second cavalry division.

BORE BRUNT OF ATTACK

"Our second corps in the fourth division bore the brunt of the cavalry attack, while our first army corps was attacked on the right and inflicted a very heavy loss on the enemy.

"I regret to say that our casualties were heavy but the exact number are not yet known. The behaviour of our troops was in all respect admirable.

"General Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, in a message published this morning, conveys his congratulations and sincere thanks for the protection so effectively given by our army to the French flank."

Five German army corps of infantry would be about 250,000 men. Two divisions of cavalry would be 9,600 men and horses, and the division of cavalry in reserve would be 4,800 men. Each army corps has 16 batteries of artillery—96 guns—that means 480 guns to the force which the British had to encounter.

CAPUS, ACADEMICIAN, MORALIZES ON WAR

Paris, Aug. 28.—Alfred Capus, the academician, writing in the Figaro this morning in vein common in Paris newspapers, says:

"Now that a million men are clashing together on the same battlefield, now that in a few days time the first knot is going to be cut, public opinion ought to be concentrated on this event and its consequences. It should not allow itself to be influenced by episodes, no matter how thrilling or pathetic they may be. All these become of secondary importance in comparison to the prodigious happenings of the battle in Belgium, which is now looked for from one moment to another.

"Let us therefore no longer dissipate our emotion. It might be that at a given time we should no longer be able to control it. During these terrible days let us force ourselves not to think either of our victory in Muelhausen nor of our check in Lorraine.

"We are told that the Zeppelin airship No. 8 has been brought down. So much the better, but this means only one engine less in the hands of the barbarians. That is no longer a case of patriotic exultation.

"I should like also to ignore the German atrocities. I do not want to read any more of these heartrending stories in the newspapers.

"These are the reflections it is our duty to make to-day."

IT'S EASY TO PEEL OFF YOUR TAN OR FRECKLES

This is what you should do to shed a spoiled complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax. Let this stay on over night; wash it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or discolored the complexion. The wax literally peels off the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolized wax is obtainable at any drug store; one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker, for rough, tanned, reddened, blotchy, pimpled or freckled skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

SPIES OF KAISER DISGUISED AS NUNS

Steal Across Battlefields and Notify the Enemy of Belgian Moves

London, Aug. 28.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Ostend sends this account of the German spying system in Belgium:

"The spying system of the Germans is said to be remarkably complete. One spy was captured in a fort at Liege, where he had been enrolled as a German reserve officer. Women spies are frequently disguised as nuns or Red Cross helpers. These latter are known to have stolen across battlefields frequently and notified the enemy of the movements of the Belgian troops while pretending to be succoring the wounded.

"Scores of these spies have been caught and executed. Belgian officers tell me that most of the men spies died calmly and fearlessly. The execution of the women spies, however, was generally a terrible scene. The women sentenced to death on the recent battlefield struggled and scratched as they dragged to the post for execution.

"Pillaging has started on the battlefields. The pillagers, when seen, pretend to belong to the Red Cross Society, and press a bottle of cordial to the lips of the inanimate man they have been robbing."

JUMP FROM AUTO FRACTURES SKULL OF GASPORT MAN

Lockport, Aug. 27.—With a fractured skull, which he sustained in jumping from the auto of John Hammond of Gaspor, in an effort to save himself from injury, Herman Rom of Gasport, twenty-five years old, lies at the City hospital here in a critical condition.

Hammond, with his brother James, George Ford of Clarksburg, W. Va., Rom and a stranger who volunteered to show Hammond the road to Lockport, were coming through the village of Akron when in attempting to avoid upsetting the machine Hammond turned it into a ditch.

Rom was the only one to leave the car, the others remaining in their seats and escaped unhurt. He was brought to the hospital here in an unconscious condition, in which he remained until last night.

Rom is in a critical condition today, but his chances for recovery will not be definitely known for several days. A delicate operation may be necessary to save his life.

Yesterday the local fans were treated to an exhibition of ball that kept them on edges during the twelve innings, the first run being scored by the Cockneys in the 8th inning, the Petes tieing them in the ninth, and scoring the winning run in the 12th. Score 2—1.

NEWS AGENCY DECLARES THAT NAMUR FORTS STILL HOLD OUT

Motor Cyclists Bring the News to Paris--Plucky Belgians Did Not Surrender, Were Shelled Every Day--Forts Bombarded While Engineers Worked at Defences

Paris, Aug. 28.—The Havas News Agency declares today that two motorcyclists attached to the Belgian army, who arrived in Paris this morning from Namur, declare that the forts at Namur are still holding out and that they are not even ready to surrender.

Looked For Reinforcements.

London, Aug. 28.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent today gives a story of the earlier fighting at Namur as described by August Mellot, Belgian deputy for Namur. M. Mellot says that until August 13, the citizens of Namur had hopes that the Belgian army would be joined by the French and English and would meet and rout the German forces before they reached Namur, but on that day a detachment of Belgian horsemen met a detachment of Uhlans and engaged in a smart fight in which the Germans were smashed up.

"This incident," said M. Mellot, "left no doubt that the Germans would return in greater numbers. The following day while we were in Namur busy completing the defences, the first three shells fell in the town. One shell struck the bridge at Salzinnes and killed five persons. I was standing twenty yards away.

Were Shelled Daily.

"From that moment we were shelled daily, and numbers of persons were killed and great damage done. We still hoped, however, that the allied forces would drive the Germans out of Belgium, but the German cavalry came ever nearer and on the eighteenth we felt that we were being surrounded.

"Then on the twentieth we heard the news of the occupation of Brussels and gave up hope of a decisive battle north of Namur. The cannonade increased during the night and on the twenty-first the battle around Namur became general. It lasted all day.

"While eleven German army corps were passing the Meuse coming from Vise, a powerful force was detailed to mask their march and kept up a heavy fire on our position. The German attacks were multiplied all the time and their fire extended over a line of some ten miles on the left bank of the Meuse and over the Himslar line on right bank.

"During this time the French force sent to meet them tried to check the German advance."

Here portions of the story were deleted by the censor.

Centre of all the Fighting.

"Namur was the centre of all this fighting. Toward noon of the twenty-first, a German battery was hurriedly placed between the interval of two forts and began to bombard Namur. The fire was kept up for a long time but only did material damage.

"At ten o'clock that night I succeeded in getting out of town. During the time I was there the town was defended by Belgian troops. I do not know what become of them. I cannot say whether they beat a retreat or joined the French forces."

M. Mellot reached the French lines at Charleroi Saturday and proceeded thence by slow stages to Paris.

11 TIMES WOUNDED BUT WILL RECOVER

Paris, Aug. 28.—One of the French soldiers wounded in the first attack on Muelhausen, who has been brought back, has eleven bullet wounds in his body, but the surgeons say he is likely to recover, as not a single bullet remained in his body.

SAVAGE CONDUCT OF GERMAN OFFICER

Shot a Red Cross Nurse While Attending Wounded Soldiers

Washington, Aug. 28.— Included in the French protest against purchase by the United States of German ships and violation of neutrality is the following:

Marcelle Jouy, a nurse, who was wounded swore that after the battle on August 15th she was attending the wounded with two other nurses, when a German officer opened fire on them from a distance of less than 30 feet. A bullet shattered her arm, she stated and she fainted. On recovering consciousness she found that her two companions were dead beside her with bullets in their bodies. All three nurses, her statement says, plainly wore the insigna of the Red Cross. The French Government protesting that the act is in violation of the Geneva convention of 1906, says it exemplifies the savage character of the war

Germans Say Allies Are Defeated and in Retreat

Berlin, Aug. 28., by wireless to Associated Press, via Sayville, L. I.—Headquarters has issued an official report declaring that the western enemy has everywhere been defeated and is in full retreat after nine days fighting.

General Von Kluk defeated the English army at Maubeuge, renewing the attack today and threatening to surround it.

Generals Von Buelow and Von Hausen completely defeated the Franco-Belgian forces, about eight corps, between the Sambre and the Namur and the Meuse in several days' battle and are now pursuing them to the eastward at Mauberge.

The attack on Maubeuge was opened by the Grand Duke Albrecht of Wurttemburg, who defeated and pursued the enemy across the Semois and the Meuse.

The German Crown Prince is advancing towards the Meuse and the Crown Prince of Bavaria repulsed an attack from Nancy and the south.

General Von Heeringen continues the pursuit southward through the Vosges.

Four Belgian divisions attacking on Tuesday and Wednesday from Antwerp have been repulsed, losing guns and many prisoners. The Belgian population generally assisting in the fighting necessitated severe repressive measures.

SALMON FISHING

Other Fish Are Neglected by the British Columbia Canners

The interest in the British Columbia fishing industry has so far been centered almost entirely in salmon packing, and there is no lack of capital and enterprise in that particular branch, which has been exploited to the neglect of other important features of the business. The reason of the salmon run is short, and the canneries are closed down most of the year, while herring can be taken all the year round along the entire coast, although the heavy run is during the winter months. This would enable the factories to continue operations throughout the year and would obviate to a large extent, the difficulty of securing a sufficient number of hands to handle the business during the high season in the salmon-canning industry. It is only in recent years that halibut have been taken in commercial quantities on the British Columbia coast, and, so far, the packing of sardines is practically an untried enterprise. The herring, which are caught in large quantities, are now mainly used as bait in the halibut fisheries, and for that purpose only the larger fish are kept. Nothing is done with the smaller ones, which could be packed for sardines. There are, along the provincial coast, scores of fine sites for sardine factories where the fish could be caught in adjacent waters in unlimited quantities and at small expense.

Naming of St. Lawrence River

The St. Lawrence River owes its name to the accidental conjunction of the Festival of Saint Lawrence with the day upon which the first explorer imagined he had discovered the river Jacques Cartier in 1534 heard from the natives of the Magdalen islands of a mighty stream threading the continent to an unknown source, and it was while testing this legend that he sailed up the gulf until he could see the land on each side.

TRAINING ARMY HORSES

Severe Schooling Required Before They Are Ready For War

For Army purposes, in addition to learning certain things, a horse must also be accustomed gradually to carry heavy weights and to sustain considerable fatigue. When young horses are suddenly plunged into the work of actual warfare, without previous careful training, they are sure to die in great numbers. This was the case in South Africa.

The young Army horse will probably begin his training in the riding school, two of his first lessons being obedience to the reins and proper balance. He is put on to long reins and sent round in a circle from right to left, with his trainer in the middle. Afterwards he is made to go in the opposite direction, from left to right. With regard to balance, it is necessary to teach him to hold his head up, and to keep his limbs well under control instead of sprawling carelessly about in the way natural to young animals.

Another lesson the young horse has to learn is that of pulling himself up briskly in answer to a light signal from the reins. The instructor walks behind his pupil with a rein in each hand, and at a light pressure on his mouth the horse learns to come to a halt. Jumping is the next step in his education, and he is taught this still on the long reins, sometimes with the help of an old charger, who will give him a lead over the obstacles. By this time the youngster should be obedient to the long reins, and so the time comes for him to be mounted for the first time by his instructor. A man is placed at either side of his head, and the instructor, standing at the horse's left side, jumps up so that he is lying, face downwards, across the saddle. This is probably done several times before the man actually mounts, so as to accustom the animal to the unwonted weight on his back. Then at last the trainer actually mounts, being particularly careful not to touch the young animal with his toe, as this would scare him and make him nervous. Amongst the many lessons yet remaining to be learned by the young horse is that of lying down with a man on his back. The rider throws his left stirrup across the withers. He gathers the reins and a handful of mane into his left hand drawing his horse's head to the right. Meanwhile, the man puts his weight on the horse's left side, grasping the back of the saddle with his right hand. As the horse sinks down the rider opens his legs and steps from his mount as the animal reaches the ground.

In actual battle it may be of the utmost importance that a horse shall remain where he is left, with the reins thrown over his head. To the end of the reins a sack is tied, and the horse is then left. If he moves forward, he treads on the sack, with the result that he gets a good hard jab in the mouth, which he does not forget, and in future, when left with the reins in that position, he is content to stand still until his rider's return.

Black-throated Loon

A black-throated loon was shot on Bridgeport dam, near Berlin, by Herman Wagner. The black-throated loon is a very rare visitor in inland waters of this latitude, its habitat being far north. It has a full purplish black forethroat, in distinction from the more common loon, which has a white streaked band around the coat. McIlwraith, in his "Birds of Ontario," speaks of only one loon of this variety which he saw amid ice floes in Hamilton Bay one spring, and of another as having been shot on Sandusky Bay in the fall of 1880. Mr. Wagner had his rare specimen mounted.

MILK PER ACRE

Individual Records Should be Kept For Best Results

If it may be assumed that the farm of the average factory patron is fairly well adapted to dairying, that the patron himself is inclined towards dairying, rather than other lines, and that his cows are fairly good, then it will be of interest to note how the farm is made to respond to this dairy inclination.

There are frequently noticed yields as low as 250 pounds of milk per acre cultivated including pasture, but some good patrons obtain 750 and 800 pounds per acre. Even this is little enough, for there are plenty of authentic records of 1,100 and 2,100 pounds of milk per acre. It should not be extremely difficult to obtain more than this, even 2,500 or 3,000 pounds.

This latter figure is a long, long way ahead of the yields already mentioned of only 250 pounds which may be found on many so-called dairy farms in Canada, and is indicative of the possibilities in reach of the factory patron who is really anxious to attain first rank.

It is questionable if the average yield per acre in Ontario is much more than 600 pounds of milk. If loyal, whole-hearted support is given to the local factory and to our national industry of dairying, the farm and the dairy herd will be made far more productive. Great help will be derived by keeping individual records of each cow, because the old established, complacent "average" cow has no intention whatever of assisting the average patron to get 2,000 pounds of milk from the average acre. The first necessary step is to know for certain that each cow is a good producer, then one may aim with more hope at $30 or $40 per acre.

The Tabooed Tango

There is nothing new either in the tango or the opposition to it. As long ago as the December of 1627, the Archbishop of Buenos Ayres excommunicated one Senor de la Cueya y Benavides, governor of the city, for dancing the tango in public. Even then the dance was anything but new. An authority in the Argentine states that the tango is named after a province in Indo-China, and that it originated there more than two thousand years ago. It was the gipsies who took the dance to Spain, from whence it reached the Argentine. One definition of the tango—given in a glossary of South American Spanish—is "Gathering of dance of gipsies." The dance has not been improved by being civilised or modernised. As danced by the up-country Argentines and the Spanish gipsies it is exceedingly graceful, which is more than can be said for it as performed in many places in Canada.

She says the business of suffragists, just now, is to make women familiar with all phases of registration and election day; in other words, the curriculum of voting. "If we make them understand why they need to vote and then familiarise them with the system so that they will not have any hesitancy when the time comes, we can safely leave the matter of what they vote to their own intelligence and good sense," says Mrs. Trout.

She is the president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

END OF THE FORESTS

Timber Supply of Canada and United States Rapidly Decreasing

In a report by the United States forestry service it is predicted that "the whole United States lumber crop will be harvested by 1930." This startling prediction brings home a sense of the nearness of timber exhaustion. The lumbermen of the United States are cutting timber at three times the rate of natural growth. If the United States forests will be so soon reduced to commercial impotence, unless new and sweeping conservation measures are undertaken, what of the tremendous extra drain thereafter upon Canadian timber reserves? Already more merchantable timber is burned every year in Canada in forest fires than is cut.

It is clear that the United States, having drawn on its timber reserves with a prodigal hand, must turn to Canada for lumber, as it has already done for pulp. The forestry officials estimate the area of our commercial timber at 375,000,000 acres, and the reserves are 140,000,000 acres, of which 110,000,000 acres are in Quebec. The United States has 187,000,000 acres of reserves. But these are of particular value on water-sheds for flood prevention, and consequently are not destined for the market. Likewise in Canada, the reserves are in most cases as much for the protection of land and the conservation of water supply as for anticipating a shortage of timber. What is specially necessary is that a check should be placed upon too rapid exploitation of the standing timber. We should constantly seek to guard ourselves against the predicament of France, which is spending $250,000,000 in setting out young trees at the Alpine border—to control floods. Every Provincial Government with control over large forest resources should have a profit-sharing policy by which the people get a percentage of the sale price of lumber, as British Columbia now does. Too much of the value of public timber has been going into private hands.

Our Point of View

There will be no censorship on history, but that seems too long to wait for the news.

—o—

Merchants who spread high-price contact mines in the open market are as bad as the Kaiser.

—o—

Rumors always exaggerate successes. Then reverses put their cold feet on our backs and make us squirm.

—o—

Sir Robert Borden's warning to merchants who raise prices unduly ought to be respected. The Premier means what he says.

—o—

Power in Europe has been unbalanced in favor of Britain, and Japan and Servia have been added for good measure. Remember that.

—o—

No matter how many soldiers are killed, the number is larger because pacifist lunatics were able to get so good a hearing. Remember that.

—o—

Plucky little Belgium holds up her 40,000 dead, before the nations and points at the Kaiser an accusing finger. Why had the German juggernaut to roll over her?

—o—

General Soukhomlinoff, who is mobilizing the Russian army, is spoken of as "the Russian Kitchener." Let's all agree to call him that, instead of calling him the other horror.

—o—

The German attempt to bribe Italy into attacking England and France is futile. Long ago, England and France bribed Italy in an honorable manner, and Italy remembers.

—o—

Lord Roberts, who has been for years advocating a more rigid system of military enlistment and training, and has been accused of every devilish invention of militarist insanity, is now in a position to say, "I told you so."

Buy British and Canadian Goods

War can be more than a shooting of men and a taking of positions. The British Navy has, as its chief achievement so far, the sweeping of German commerce from the sea. This means that German goods are barred from the markets of the world, where, until the Kaiser challenged to deadly conflict, they were welcome and successful visitors. Even here in Canada, the legend "made in Germany" was on many of the things we bought and used.

Now that we are all standing together and fighting literally for our national existence against a common foe, we can surely take the common sense course of keeping our money in the Empire, and patronizing the industries and mercantile establishments which give employment to our own people, by buying British goods. This will be no more than a defensive measure. It will be helping our industries to keep open; it will be contributing a wage fund for our workingmen; it will be providing profits at home which can be levied upon to meet the foe abroad.

We should mean by this no ostracising of the goods of our splendid and plucky Allies, the French, the Belgians and the Russians. It is not a selfish policy—it is a war policy. But the preference must be given to the fighting nations. And the chief good we can accomplish, will be to sweep before our own doors, and keep our industrial and commercial machine well-oiled and working smoothly.

Cure Children's Colds By External Treatment

Mothers Will Find Nothing So Speedily and Reliable as Old-Time "Nerviline"

It's really a shame to upset a young child's stomach by external dosing when external treatment will so promptly break up a cold.

When your boy comes in after play with his feet soaking wet, his throat hoarse and sore, his little chest tight and congested, just apply Nerviline. Give him a vigorous rubbing over his throat, and put lots of Nerviline on his chest and rub it right in. To make Nerviline penetrate more quickly cover his chest and throat with a hot flannel bandage. This treatment WON'T fail. Your boy will be feeling better in half an hour, and you will have warded off perhaps a cold, or grippe, or illness that might have laid him up.

Nerviline is mighty good for preventing colds and for breaking up a bad one, too. For general family use it cures all sorts of external aches and pains—you simply can't beat it. Try it for sciatica, lame back rheumatism, or lumbago. Wherever there is congestion, inflammation or pain in the joints or muscles, Nerviline will cure mighty quick. The large 50c. family size bottle is so economical, so useful, it should be in every home. There is also a small 25c. size. Dealers anywhere sell Nerviline.

THE STEAMER MANITA

Will leave the George Street Wharf daily at 5 p.m., (except Saturdays) for Stoney Lake, calling at all the important points, and reaching Peterborough on her return trip at 6.30 p.m. Return tickets 75c. Every Saturday at 10 a.m., the steamer will make a trip over the [illegible] returning at 11.50. At 1.30 steamer leaves for Gore's Landing, returning will arrive at Peterborough at 9 p.m.

The Awful Cost

An estimate of the probable daily cost of a war involving practically the whole of Europe, prepared by Dr. Charles Richet, statistician of the University of Paris, made the amount in round numbers $54,000,000. The basis of the estimate is the number of men who would be called to the colors. A war lasting no longer than the brief conflict between France and Prussian would run up a bill of five billion dollars, irrespective of war indemnities.

The tabulation of which the foregoing figures are footings takes no account, however, of the losses from destruction of property and general paralysis of industry as an incident of war, which would be no small sum. The greater part of the ordinary cost of war and all of the property destroyed would be a permanent impairment of capital.

But there is another and more important loss of which Dr. Richet's published tabulation does not take account the loss of the capital of human lives, which can be repaired by slow processes of long years only. Expressed in terms of money value this loss would be overshadowing. But what shall be said of that vastly greater loss than all the rest seen in the grief of the bereaved, for which there can be no reparation or compensation. That is beyond the powers of all the statisticians of all the universities of the world.

Three Military Mistakes

If recollection serves us right it was Victor Hugo who perpetrated the epigram, "Alexander blundered in India, Caesar blundered in Africa, Napoleon blundered in Russia." The genius of the famous French poet and novelist was not of a kind to make him a particularly competent authority on military affairs. But his suggestion that the greatest captains are not exempt from blunders is true in its essential principle. The book of war is a catalogue of errors. Perhaps if we all could get rid of hero-worship to such an extent as to be enabled coldly to trace effects to their ultimate causes, we should find that the most successful soldiers are not so much those who dazzle by achievement, as those who make the fewest mistakes.

It is a curious fact that the errors in battles and campaigns, at the time they are made unrealized even by the experts who make them, become glaringly palpable even to the civilian, after the deed is done and the loss irredeemable.

Three salient blunders, one German, one French and one Belgian, may be assigned to the military chiefs of three of the four nations now interlocked in death-grapple in the western arena of Europe's titanic war. It is generally recognized that the Germans made a serious mistake in charging the fortifications of Liege with heavy assaulting columns. The German generals could hardly have been blamed if they had limited that maneuver to one or two attempts to see if the Liege forts could not be "rushed" by an impetuous attack. But after it was ascertained that the works were impregnable to a surprise, there was no excuse for continuing those tactics. The result was what might have been foreseen—a horrible carnage, and demonstration of the necessity of reducing the forts, if they could be reduced at all, by heavy artillery and comparatively slow siege operations.

The biggest French blunder was the endeavor to cover, either by defense or attack, every point of the 250 miles of frontier from western Belgium to Switzerland. From the days of Hannibal to now, history fairly bristles with similar schemes, which have ended as badly or worse than this one did. Gen. Jomini's works on strategy, the histories of the Napoleonic wars by Alison and Thiers, the military treatises of Col. Theodore Ayrault Dodge—a host of other authorities—are monumental admonitions against a line of operations so extended as to be weak. That very thing was tried centuries ago by the Chinese when they built the Wall of China to keep out the Tartars, only to find that China was no stronger with its wall hundreds of miles long than it was without it.

Either by superior numbers, or by keeping up feints at the thin parts of their line, while they concentrated in powerful masses where they intended really to strike, the Germans penetrated the French curtain at several points, and compelled the evacuation of Belgium by the French and British, and of Alsace by the French. The German masses on the field of battle should have been opposed by equally strong bodies of troops at the points of collision. But it was impossible to do this because of the scatteration strategy of the French commander.

The Belgian blunder was in fighting a pitched battle at all. The Belgians should have kept to their forts—it was evident they could stand no chance in the open field against the torrent of Germans sweeping over Belgium.

The British do not appear to be chargeable with any positive blunder thus far. It is true they were involved in the French disaster. But the stubbornness of their fight was the admiration of friend and foe, and with their numbers—scanty compared with either French or Germans—the British troops on the Continent could not carry on an independent initiative. All they could do was to take their places in the fighting line, and do the work cut out for them. By all accounts it was mighty lucky for the French that the British were there.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows:

In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,860 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,905 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,950 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

The word "lumber" is said to have had its origin in Boston because the merchants lumbered the wharfs with "wood goods." INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $90,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs—all young foxes—good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leavinb $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalised company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island alches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

TWO PROVINCES

Prince Edward Island and British Columbia in Interesting Contrast

A contrast between conditions in Prince Edward Island and British Columbia formed the substance of an address delivered by Mr. C. C. James, who prefaced his speech by saying that ministers, teachers in schools, lawyers and doctors should know more about rural subjects as their daily work brought them in close contact with people whose lives were spent in agricultural pursuits. Business men should study the subject because so many business problems led straight back to the question of rural production. Political leaders needed the knowledge, because most of the important national questions dealt with rural affairs. And the people generally should know why we were buying beef from Australia, eggs from the United States and butter from New Zealand. These were the subjects that concerned every consumer. He limited his remarks to a study of the differences of soil, climate, people and production in Prince Edward Island and British Columbia. The area of the Island Province was 1,400,000 acres; that of British Columbia was 266,000,000 acres. The population of the former was 93,000, of which 84 per cent. were dependent on rural pursuits. The population of British Columbia was 392,000, of which 48 per cent. depended on agriculture for a livelihood.

Prince Edward Island

Up to the present the people of Prince Edward Island had been depending solely on their farms for production. All the land was occupied. There were no Crown Lands and no forests. Hitherto agricultural production had consisted mainly of hay, oats and potatoes. A movement had been started to enlarge the dairy interests, fruit growing and poultry raising. A re-organising of agricultural methods was taking place. The agricultural activity in Prince Edward Island was probably the greatest of any Province in Canada. In addition to farms, furs and fish were receiving attention. The black fox industry was one of great import in Canadian development. Over 200 companies had been organized for the breeding of wild animals for furs; black foxes, mink, racoon, and now Persian lamb was being added to the list. While there was some speculation, there was really sound investment in the industry. The black foxes alone were worth more than all the other live stock on the farms of the island. This industry was meeting an increased demand in the world's markets. The development of the fishing industry would add greatly to the wealth of the island. This referred principally to the cultivation of oyster beds. The Malpeque was the finest flavored oyster in the world, and the development of this industry was under direct Government supervision.

British Columbia

The problem in British Columbia was quite different. Hitherto forests, mines and fisheries had been the chief sources of wealth in the Province, said Mr. James. It had provided only a small fraction of the food required for consumption in the Province. Farm produce had been limited to fruits and dairy products. A change was now taking place. The railroads under construction were opening up in central and northern British Columbia, immense areas of farm lands quite different from the lands of southern British Columbia. The valleys were wide and open, and presented conditions that were ideal for raising live stock, while the prairie country of the Peace River section, penetrated far into the Province. He expected that in future grain growing, dairying and live stock production would add to the wealth of the Province and of the Dominion. A notable feature of the people of the Province was their activity and daring enterprise. It was a big Province with big resources, whatever the people undertook was carried out on a big scale. The Provincial scheme of highways was the most extensive and expensive of any in Canada.

Minimum Wage For Women

A ruling by the Oregon welfare commission prescribes a minimum wage of $8.25 a week for all women employed in industrial occupations in the State of Oregon, and fixes fifty-four hours as the maximum they may be employed in any one week.

Increase in Average Pay

The average pay of every man, woman and child in the United States who works for wages or a salary was $610 in 1913. In 1900 the average pay was only $479, and thirty years before that but $370.

There are employed in the gold mines of the Transvaal 24,234 whites and 206,488 natives, according to recent figures and aggregate wages paid out annually is $66,881,752.

Scotland has had nine mine disasters since 1887, costing 427 lives.

Iceless Refrigerator

Iceless refrigerators for household use in which ammonia, circulated by electric motors, is used, have been invented which are said to be more economical than those requiring ice.

Photographs on Stone

Time defying photographs are made by a French scientist upon fine grained stone, first given a coating of enamel and baked at a high temperature after the photographs are printed.

PAINTING UNDER THE SEA

Artist Uses Oil-soaked Paper and Waterproof Paint

What are undoubtedly the most unique pictures in the world were exhibited in a special salon in Chicago. These pictures were painted literally at the bottom of the sea by Mr. Z. H. Pritchard, an Irishman by birth. Mr. Pritchard learned the delights of deep-sea bathing and diving and the beauties of sea-life and vegetation which he noticed while remaining for a few seconds under water. He ultimately decided to devote himself to art and with this object in view devised an extraordinary set of apparatus in order to paint picture of the ocean's bed and the creatures which inhabit the water, while actually at the bottom of the sea. Sometimes he goes down in an ordinary diving suit, furnished with a pair of pearl diver's goggles. At other times he wears a diver's helmet, which is connected with the upper air by means of a rubber tube. He uses a drawing board made of glass, and paper which has been soaked in cocoanut oil to make it waterproof. French waterproof paints and a heavy weight to keep him at the bottom complete his outfit. Of course, Mr. Pritchard does not finish his paintings beneath the water. He makes sketches in crayons for them there, and then ascends to fix the scene permanently in his studio. This he does on leather. On leather alone, says the artist, can be reproduced anything like the tone of the sea.

CHINA AND ATHLETICS

Wonderful Interest Being Taken in Sports in the Celestial Kingdom

Evidences are displayed of a great awakening of interest in athletics throughout China. Enthusiasm is at a high pitch in some quarters and it is said to be only a matter of a few years when Peking shall be the scene of the world's Olympic. It was a striking instance of the new order of things when the historic Temple of Heaven grounds, for centuries past dedicated to the exclusive use of the Emperor, were thrown open for a national athletic meet at Peking. The competitors, for the most part from mission colleges, government schools and the Young Men's Christian Association.

The honors showered upon the students who led the field in the mile runs or did the 100-yard dash in ten seconds, recall the fact that it was only a few years ago that the scholastic ideal in China was altogether that of the long-gowned youth with hands in sleeves and philosophic countenance bent to the ground.

Government officials, from the President down expressed their hearty interest in the games.

Floating on the Dead Sea

The wonderful buoyancy of the Dead Sea, that strange inland sheet of water in Palestine, is proverbial. It is some 47 miles long by 9 miles wide, and lies no less than 1,300 feet below the surface of the Mediterranean, the lowest-lying lake on the face of the globe. Its waters are so bitter that fish cannot live in them. We get an idea of its density when it is stated that in a ton of water from the Atlantic there is 31 pounds of salt against 187 pounds from a like quantity in the Dead Sea. The result is that it is impossible for a human being to sink in these waters.

An Oil Burner Record

The freighter Santa Cruz arrived at San Francisco with a new record for the passage by way of the Straits of Magellan. From the time the vessel left Sandy Hook till she slowed down off Loss Angeles harbor, the engines ran at full speed without a stop, and the distance of about 13,000 miles was made in 47 days and 4 hours. The Santa Cruz is an oil burner, and therefore did not need to put in any port for fuel.

Beware of the Canary

Medical men are warning those who have feathered pets to take measures for their disinfection. It is pointed out that even the dainty canary, the last thing held by its owner to be the subject of suspicion, is unable, without help to free its down from unwelcome animal life. Therefore plenty of water for its morning bath, with a disinfecting solution for germicide carefully added, is necessary.

Face Shield for Motorists

As an improvement on the usual types of motorists' goggles an Oregon inventor has patented a face shield to be attached to a cap and with one large opening for the eyes instead of two.

Paddle Wheel on Row boats

A patent has been granted for paddle wheels to be attached to row boats and operated by cranks.

An Aeroplane of 1899

Mr. Glenn Curtiss, famous aeronaut, made a successful flight on an aeroplane which was built years ago by Mr. S. P. Langley, the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. The machine was brought from the institution for experiments, which completely vindicated Mr. Langley, who, it will be recalled, died while ridicule was being heaped upon him in connection with his attempts to fly.

BUT BETTER FOR YOU

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were new—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

SUITS FOR SHIPWRECKS

In One a Person Can Live For Days in the Water

Since the Titanic and Empress of Ireland disasters hundreds of ideas and inventions have been brought before shipping companies and shipping authorities, with the object of minimizing the risk of life at sea. Perhaps the most ingenious of these ideas is a device which takes the form of a combination of life-belt and suit made of watertight canvas, which envelops the whole person. The suit has sleeves ending in gloves, and there is a porthole in the head, which can be closed when the weather is rough. When this porthole is closed, air enters through a tube above the head, this tube being so constructed that no water can enter.

Furnished with this device, it is claimed that a passenger might be thrown into mid-Atlantic and live in comfort for many days, while waiting to be picked up, for the suit can be equipped with sufficient food and drink to keep a shipwrecked passenger alive for a week or more. A man or woman using this device stands with feet in a sort of bucket, which forms the base. This bucket takes in a certain quantity of water, which acts as ballast and keeps the life-saver and its occupant upright. Furthermore, the apparatus is provided with a revolver and signal lights with which the shipwrecked passenger can signal for help by day or night. Attached to the apparatus are ropes by which two or three people can keep themselves afloat if they have not the good fortune to have one of these life-saving suits. The suit is the invention of a German named Gustave Henrich, and of 133 miles, and another walked so he declares that it will deprive shipwreck of all its terrors in all circumstances.

An old Scottish gravedigger was remonstrated with one day for making a serious overcharge for digging a grave.

"Weel, ye see, sir," said the old man, in explanation, making a motion with his thumb towards the grave, "him an' me had a bit of a tiff twa or three years syne ower a watch I selt him, and I've never been able tae get the money oot o' him yet. A RECORD BAG

Great Sport For Halleybury and Cobalt Hunters

Probably one of the largest bags of game secured in the North country was made by a party of Cobalt and Halleybury hunters. The gentlemen in question, eight in number, were out in the bush five miles from Gillies, for a week, and in that short space of time, secured one moose, one bear and eight deer, a remarkable record for a trip of that duration.

That the chase was most successful the "bag" captured attests, and the hunters report that deer were most plentiful in that neighborhood, and could easily be shot. Those deer which they themselves obtained were shot in a thicket, and there was very little necessity to go hunting them. The moose, also, which was a good specimen of the monarch of the bush, was obtained without much trouble, being shot from a distance of two hundred yards, and three shots despatched the animal.

The presence of the bear in the "bag" was due largely to Bruin's fondness for fresh venison. Attracted by the smell of deer flesh the bear approached the hunters' camp and proceeded to make short work of the head and entrails of one of the slain deer. He had spoiled the former for mounting purposes before his presence in the immediate vicinity was noticed, but, once he had been observed, no time was lost in adding his carcass to the list of trophies secured.

The bodies of the various animals captured were towed across the river behind a canoe, and were afterwards loaded in sleighs and in that way brought back home. The hunters reported that before the snow fell, the deer, especially, were captured without any great difficulty, but, after the storm, more trouble was experienced in shooting them. The party returned home well pleased with the result of the trip.

New Use For Telephones

The telephone is being put to many uses as a labor-saver and an emergency aid. In the cost keeping systems in many factories the workmen do not keep their own time records, but telephone to the bookkeeper whenever they start or finish a job, so that he can make the entry. Automatic telephone temperature-recorders are used in orchards to save fruit from frost; when the temperature falls the central operator is notified, so that she can arouse the farm hands and send them out with smudge pots.

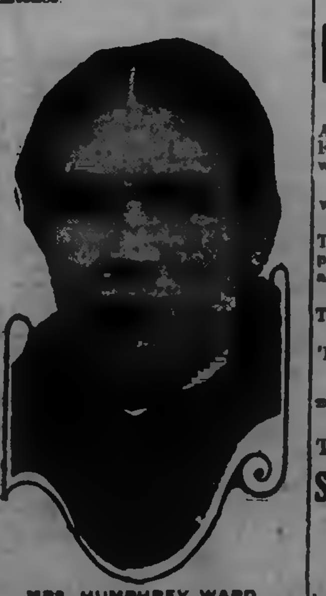
Golden Wedding Cake

At the golden wedding celebrations of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Somes, of Southend, eleven children, who have grown to maturity out of thirteen, were present, and a package of wedding cake which Mr. Somes put away on his wedding day in 1863 was eaten.

High Level Post Offices

Among the Alps there are several post offices at a height of 6,000 feet or 7,000 feet. One letter box, from which the postman makes four collections daily, is nearly 10,000 feet above the sea level.

The Borneo Islands boast a telegraph line constructed of mahogany and ebony poles. This is no doubt the most valuable telegraph line in existence.



MRS. HUMPHREY WARD

Anti-suffragist that she is, Mrs. Humphrey Ward doesn't believe that women should sit in Parliament, but that Parliament should give attention to women. She suggests the organization of an auxiliary, or unofficial branch of Parliament where women and members of the House of Commons would confer as to the legislative matters concerning women.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). of a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

HUMAN NESTS STIRRED UP

Text: As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead him.—Deut. 32:11-12.

Mythology says that the swan lives to a great age. Just before death it sings a wonderful song, and dies. So Moses, living to the ripeness of a hundred and twenty years, sees his end approaching, and before he climbs to the mountain's summit he sings this, his swan song, which we may read now, three thousand years afterwards, in the thirty-second chapter of Deuteronomy. The man who, on Horeb, had complained of his slow and clumsy tongue, becomes most eloquent on Nebo; so magnificently eloquent that this, his farewell address, deserves a place among the masterpieces of oratory.

His song is all about God. The old statesman has passed beyond the petty things of time and place, and sees only the eternal glories of the Infinite. Somebody writes interestingly about a night spent at Hawarden during the last years of Mr. Gladstone's life. When family prayers were announced, the aged host himself sat down to the piano to lead the singing of a hymn. The visitor was curious to see what kind of hymn the great statesman would select. Soon the whole household was following the leader in singing.

"From all that dwell below the skies,
Let the Creator's praise arise;
Let the Redeemer's name be sung
Through every land, by every tongue."

So the theme of the aged statesman of Israel was God:

"Give ear, O ye Heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth. My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass. Because I will publish the name of the Lord: ascribe ye greatness unto our God. He is the rock, His work is perfect, for all His ways are judgment: a God of Truth and without iniquity, just and right is He."

Then he speaks so gratefully of God's dealings with Israel, tells of God's providence all the way from the Nile to the Jordan, how God found Israel in a desert land and in the waste, howling wilderness, how He led him about, instructed him, kept him as the apple of His eye. And having mentioned the miracles, the chastenings, the blessings, yea, even the reproofs, he cries:

"As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead Israel."

This is the picture; God is a mighty eagle, guarding the nest, and His children are the brood. We can afford to stand before this picture with uncovered heads and grateful hearts.

The eagle is the king of birds, the emblem of royalty. He is the sovereign of the air. He soars higher than any of his feathered brothers, and scans the earth with piercing eye. He lives among the crags, and flies among the clouds.

Even the eagle mother's nest is regal. In the loneliness of the lordly pine or the highest cliff the eyrie is built, far from the haunts of beasts, and beyond the reach of the fowler's arrow. This castle is a yard square, with walls of sticks and branches, bound together with twining vines, and lathed with birchbark and balsam, and carpeted with hair and wool, and feathers and down, until it is as soft as velvet. There she lays her eggs and hatches her young. There her lord, never polygamous, like the Mormons, but always loyal to one wife, patrols the air, as the sentry of the nest. Thither is carried the spoil of sheepfolds, and there the eaglets are fed with the choicest of morsels. There, when the giant pines sway in the beating storms, she croons over the little ones and tucks them into their feather beds. There she waits until the soft down of her children's coats is changed into sprouting feathers.

MODEL FARM IN WEST

How It Is Proposed to Colonize 14,000 Near Kinsella

Mr. Albion Hunt and Mr. Hal Carlton of London, England, intend to colonize a tract of land of about 14,000 acres lying near Kinsella on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, about 75 miles east of Edmonton. The novelty of the plan lies in the fact that the promoters will endeavor to attract in particular the man who has not had any previous experience in farming. They will have a model three hundred and twenty acre farm in the centre of the tract. This model farm will be run on a strictly business basis while at the same time it will be of educational value. It will show the new settler how to erect the best and cheapest kind of houses and other buildings and the best manner of raising horses, cattle, hogs, poultry, grain, fodder, crops on a commercial paying basis. The model farm will also teach how to best handle the land itself from the initial breaking to the harvesting of the crops. Arrangements will be made for the marketing of all kinds of produce, and advice will be given as to the necessary equipment of the farm, including both live stock and machinery. If the newcomer does not wish to buy equipment for use the first year, but is desirous of confining his operations to fencing, building and general initial development work, then the model farm will break his land and put in his crop at moderate prices. It has been arranged to temporarily house at Kinsella any settler while he is putting up a house and if those who are bachelors desire they may board at a low rate at the model farm. The project is somewhat of a co-operative one as everything will be bought in large quantities thereby reducing prices. Marketing will also be done on a co-operative basis to a great extent.

LITTLE BRAIN WAVES

Man's instinct is to kill, woman's to kiss;

Scandal comes out with tea as sure as rash with measles.

The world doesn't judge a man by his own clothes, but by his wife's.

We have often wondered who furnished the tools for some of the self-made men.

Contradict yourself early and often; any fool can keep on holding the same opinion.

A great deal of what passes for dignity is nothing but genuine laziness.

The real hero of many a novel is the man who undertakes to publish it.

Women want everything a man has, except moustaches and bald heads.

A woman in her best clothes wants admiration; at all other times she prefers love.

The human race is divided into two classes—those who go ahead and do something, and those who sit still and inquire, "Why wasn't it done the other way?"

Refuse From Lumber

A Vancouver lumberman has estimated that "one ton of refuse goes to the burners for every thousand feet of lumber cut." In his own sawmill he has eliminated this waste by breaking up the refuse into small pieces which are manufactured into fuel briquettes at a cost of only $3 a ton.

Substitute For Linseed

English paint manufacturers have found oil made from seeds of Brazilian rubber trees an acceptable substitute for linseed oil.

Building Land

Land is being built out to sea from the mouths of the Mississippi river at an estimated average rate of 300 feet a year.

Dairying in Holland

Holland manufactures about 143,000,000 pounds of butter and about 176,000,000 pounds of cheese annually.

Many Greenland women are bald on the sides of their heads, owing to their method of dressing the hair, which is pulled back tightly and held in place by a ribbon.

Farmer Was Wise.

Charles J. O'Connor, Chicago lawyer, told the following:

"A farmer took out a policy of fire insurance on his barn. After a loss and due proofs the company came to settle or adjust the loss, but took advantage of its option under the contract to build a new barn.

"Subsequently a life insurance company sought to have him insure his life in favor of his wife. 'O, no,' he says, 'you don't catch me a second time. If I'd die you would come around here and offer to get a new husband for her.'"

Illegal Duck Shooting

Once again a few poachers are spoiling the sport for Lindsay sportsmen. Again the ducks are being molested by those who will not wait till the season opens. Within the last week a number of ducks have been shot in the neighborhood of McLaren's creek, and the Fish and Game Protective Association have taken steps to stop this outrage. Already four special inspectors have been placed on the river by the association to look after the rights of the true sportsmen of the town.

Afraid of Fire

Complaints are being made of the practice of drunks making their headquarters at the old residence on Macdonnell park. It is claimed by some who are in a position to speak with the house at all hours, indulging in drunken carousals. A citizen stated that if the town did not take better care of the house in future and see that the doors and windows were securely fastened, it would be an easy matter for some of the loiterers to drop a match or cigar and burn it to the ground.

Fierce Bobcaygeon Fire.

Bobcaygeon Independent: The Fire bell was sounded again on Friday evening when a blaze was noticed in the rear of Constable Nichols residence. Mr. Robt. Reid was on his way home when his attention was attracted and he was able to dash a pail of water on it and with a rain barrel near he quickly extinguished the fire. The fire had been deliberately started at the rear of the house with coal oil which had been thrown on the boards. The oil made a great flame for a few moments and two persons were observed running away who got tangled in a wire fence.

Potato Thieves.

Port Hope Guide: Stealing potatoes is surely an indication of a severe winter and that all the potato talers are not in Ireland if one may judge from depredation caused in the potato field of Messrs. S. J. Jackson & Sons last Friday night. Some thief or thieves supposedly two, took potatoes from some 500 hills; unfortunately the most of them were late ones and by pulling the tops spoiled the crop to that extent, and got very little booty for their pains. The police have a pretty good idea of the culprits and we may expect revelations soon.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

Lindsay bowlers won against Port Perry by a score of 12-8.

Fire did $250 worth of damage to a Lindsay house owned by Dr. V. L. Hart. A bonfire in the back yard set the house ablaze.

Don't buy German goods and thus help out that paranoea egotist Emperor Bill. "Made in Germany" is about as inviting an invitation as a request to sit on a hot stove just here.

Dr. R. W. Bell, formerly of this city, but now Inspector for the Provincial Board of Health, Toronto, and Dr. Clinton, District M.H.O., of Belleville, motored out to Buckhorn yesterday morning on business.

The Times was yesterday in receipt from Ottawa, of a blue book entitled, "Documents relative to the European war, orders in Council, cablegrams, correspondence and speeches delivered in the Imperial House of Commons.

A civic fund for contributions to the Canadian Patriotic Fund from the people of Norwood and vicinity will likely be launched by the council in a day or so, as soon as the best plans for such can be formulated.

The Lord Bishop of Kingston has accepted the invitation to preach at the Harvest Home service of St. James' church, Tweed, in September. Date will be announced later.

A former resident of this city, now living in Port Arthur, in a letter received here yesterday, says "We are greatly afraid of our big grain elevators. Every employee of the elevators has been sworn in as a detective."

Hoch der Kaiser has more marked up against his soul (soul is written with a small "s") than any man in the world's history. This paranoea egotist has been the means, for his self aggrandisement of taking good men from Peterboro to fight for the Empire.

Mr. Fred Cubitt, the George Street bookstore man yesterday moved from his present location to 140 Simcoe Street, the store formerly occupied by Mr. G.A. Gillespie. A Greek restaurant will be installed in Mr. Cubitt's former store.

Yesterday a local man remarked to the Times "It would seem that 'Gott und me" are not pulling together. "Gott" seems to have left "me" a lap or two behind in the race for Paris." If Gott had any share in this maniac's game, he would strike him dead!

THOUGHT ITALY MAY FIGHT AUSTRIANS AT ANY MOMENT

Diplomatic Friendship For Triple Alliance Being Displayed by Public Opinion in Support of the Triple Entente--Almost impossible to Retain Neutrality

Rome, Aug. 29.—Frequent cabinet conferences indicate that a crisis is rapidly approaching. The pressure from within against Austria is slowly but surely overcoming the feelings of friendship entertained for the triple alliance in official circles. Reports that Austrians are violating the Italian frontier and that enormous quantities of Austrian troops are massed in readiness to strike, have angered Italians generally.

The influential newspapers all suggest today the necessity of immediate action by the government to determine the Austrian attitude. Rumors of impending ultimatums are widely circulated, but are diplomatically denied at the foreign office. The only official statement obtainable is that "Italy is maintaining an attitude of strict neutrality."

One thing is now absolutely certain—that Italy will never aid Germany and Austria.

To do so, the king and cabinet were warned, would mean a revolution, the feeling against Austria having become greatly intensified everywhere throut Italy during the past few days.

One report says a 48-hour ultimatum has already been sent to Austria.

French, Italian and Spanish Canadians Off to War

New York, Aug. 29.— Spaniards, Italians and Frenchmen—500 of them—waving the tri-color of the French Republic and singing or humming the Marseillaise, marched about the French line pier before the sailing of the Chicago this afternoon and enthusiastically proclaimed their intention to enlist in the French army as soon as Havre is reached.

These sun-tanned men, farmers all, left thousands of acres of rolling grain behind them in the country about Montreal. They all agreed that in times of war farming is an effeminate passive sort of an existence, a very fine thing for women and children, so they banded together and shipped to New York.

When the Canadian farmers marched on the pier in a body they were greeted by cheering 'longshoremen. The musicians on the Chicago who were scattered about, got their instruments and marched down the gang plank playing the "Star Spangled Banner."

The volunteers immediately fell in, to line and a march about the pier was begun. After the national anthem of the French had been sung the Spaniards gave vent to their feelings by chanting "La Paloma" and the Italians answered with "Marcia Reale."

LIBERIA APPEALS TO WASHINGTON FOR AID

London, Aug. 29.—Judge McCants Stewart, of the supreme court of Liberia called at the American embassy to-day in an effort to interest Americans in saving Liberia from distress through the destruction of the republic's trade with Germany.

"Two-thirds of the trade of Liberia with the German empire," Judge Stewart said. "Three hundred German ships called at Liberian ports last year and took away rubber, ivory, palm nuts and palm oil, fibre and coffee. We hope that America will put on a line of steamers to relieve the condition of trade stagnation that is bound to result."

TO LOOK YOUNG QUICKLY FOR SPECIAL OCCASION

How often have you fussed and puttered with your face on the eye of some important social event when you wanted to look your prettiest, and try what you would you just couldn't get the desired result! Next time your face become unruly, exhibiting a careworn and saggy appearance, and crisscrossed with fine lines, here's something that will quickly transform it into one of youthful freshness.

Just get an ounce of powdered saxolite at your druggist's, mix this with about a half pint of witch hazel, and bathe your face in the solution for two or three minutes. Immediately after you feel a "firming-up" of the skin and underlying tissue, which naturally irons out the little wrinkles, worry marks and flabbiness. The contour and general appearance of your face are so improved, you will be glad you heard of this simple and harmless method.

BRITAIN'S PART IN THE WAR

Although but a trade journal, The Canadian Laundryman cannot refrain from a few passing comments on the bitter struggle now being waged in Europe. Great Britain is aiding France, Belgian and Russia in the cause of freedom and liberty against military oppression on the part of an absolute monarchy. She is doing this at a sacrifice, as were she alone involved against Germany her operations would be of a different and less arduous nature. With Germany and Britain the only beligerents, the latter would not land a single regiment in Europe, but would confine her activities to sea operations by which she could bring Germany to time without the appalling sacrifice of life now resulting. Eliminate France and Russia from today's war and Germany is already defeated by England, whose navy has shut off the Teuton from overseas commercial and industrial intercourse. England's effective blockade of European Germany, together with aggressive action against German colonies, would starve Germany into eventual submission without a Britisher being landed in Europe, at such sacrifice of life, as reported these days. In bottling up Germany's fleet and keeping command of the seas, England is in reality doing her part in support of her allies without sending troops to Europe. But the British Empire is renowned for her Christian generosity and national honor, and since she has deemed it expedient to stand shoulder to shoulder with her allies on European soil, let the cubs of the grand old British Lion, from the four corners of this world of ours, rally around their paternal champion for liberty, absolute freedom, and universal peace.

The foregoing is an editorial taken from the Canadian Laundryman, published in Peterborough.

First Sea Battle on 8 Hours British Sailors Cheered

On Return to England With the Enemy's Wounded Cared For Alike by Humane British --Liege Forts Still Resist--Germans Suffering Terrible Punishment

London, Aug. 28.—Rear Admiral Beatty, the youngest flag officer afloat, dashed into the fight of Keligoland with his division of the British fleet, and destroyed a section of Germany's fleet bottled up at this point. His brilliant success in cutting out a portion of the German fleet off Heligoland, sinking two German cruisers and two destroyers besides setting another cruiser afire, is today taken to mean that if the Kaiser's warships do not come out to fight, the British fleet will go in after them. The long expected and hoped for great sea fight appears imminent.

London, August 29.—The naval engagement between the British and Germans off Heligoland lasted about eight hours, during which the fighting was sharp and terrible, according to a despatch to The Evening News from Harwich. It says that this description of the fighting was given by crews of the British destroyers which took part in the engagement and have arrived at Harwich.

SOME LIEGE FORTS STILL RESIST.

London. August 20.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Antwerp, says that the Belgian Government declares officially that several of the forts at Liege are still resisting.

EXHAUSTION OF GERMAN EXPLAINS DELAY.

London, August 29.—Exhaustion on the part of the German troops and the consequent necessity of momentarily slackening of their forward movement, is offered in some quarters today as an explanation of the absolute silence which has veiled all the operations in Northern France since the desperate struggle of Wednesday, when a quarter of a million German soldiers tried to hack their way through the British lines held by less than half that number. Just as many other people, however, are convinced that the battle which Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces on the continent, said on Wednesday, was impending is now in progress and commanders are awaiting a decisive outcome before permitting anything to be made public.

Since last Wednesday both British and French troops have had time to intrench themselves, and their artillery has been able to find the ranges over the zone the Germans must traverse in the next fighting. Reports that France has formed a new army of 250,000 to take the offensive against the German right has aroused much interest. They have not, however, been confirmed.

A telegram from Basel, Switzerland, declaring that five German and Austrian army corps are marching on Belford, France, has not been authenticated, nor has another report that the Germans have been obliged to withdraw a portion of their forces in the west to meet the Russian advance in the east.

RUSSIAN MOVEMENT UNINTERRUPTED,

The advance movement of the Muskovites in the eastern theatre of the war seems uninterrupted. In Eastern Prussia the have completely invested Koenigsberg, while in Galicia they would appear to be drawing the net tighter around Lemberg.

The source of the floating mines which have sunk so many small crafts in the North Sea during the past few daos seems to be indicated in a request to shipping to keep a lookout for a trawler painted black with white numbers on her funnel, "and when seen to notify the authorities immediately." Fired by the news that the Indian army is coming, the Basutos of South Africa have petitioned that, in the event ofan attempted invasion of South African territory, they be allowed to cast a few stones at the enemy.

LIKE PEAS OUT OF A SACK.

'They were on us like peas emptied from a sack." This was the phrase used by a British officer who arrived at Folkestone from the front in describing the overwhelming forces of German attack in the recent fight.

CAN TALK IN FOURTEEN DAYS.

He refused to discuss the battle further.

"We have been pledged," he said, "not to recount even our personal experiences to our own friends until fourteen days have elapsed."

GERMANS LOSING HEAVILY.

Washington, August 29.—The British embassy today received from the London foreign office the following despatch on Russian operations in Prussia:

"East Prussia is being rapidly overrun by the Russian army and a great part of this region is already in Russian hands. The German forces, consisting of three army corps and several divisions, have been repeatedly defeated and lost heavily in men and guns."

HUMANE CARE OF GERMAN WOUNDED.

London, August 29.—Rousing cheers were given the British bluejackets when they arrived at Harwich. They brought many German wounded. All the vessels in the harbor hoisted Red Cross flags and took part in the transfer of the wounded to Red Cross yachts and hospitals on shore.

Groups of boys in white duck from the Shotley naval barracks were waiting on the pier with stretchers to carry the wounded to the haspitals. There were British wounded also, but the German and British were treated alike.

The work of removing the wounded occupied the whole afternoon, as it was done with the greatest care. Many of them were badly injured about the head.

Wounded German Marines Arrive At St. Petersburg

London, Aug. 29.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Co. from St. Petersburg says that six officers of the German light cruiser Magdeburg and 56 sailors, who survived the destruction of the ship by the Russian fleet, arrived at the Russian capital today. The German officers traversed the city in automobiles, guarded by Russian sailors with fixed bayonets. The bluejackets were marched through the city. There were no hostile demonstrations.

The stokers and engineers, who constitute a majority of the 200 survivors of the German cruiser Mainz, say that the British guns shot with terrific force, and most of the men on the decks of the German vessels perished.

SWEDISH ARMY ORDERED MOBILIZED IS REPORT

New York, Aug. 29.—The Swedish army has been ordered mobilized according to The Evening World, which gives as its authority, "a leading paper house in New York." This house, according to The Evening World, received the following message today from its agent in London:

"Grave political movements feared in Sweden. Mobilization ordered."

BIG FLEET OF AMERICAN CARRIERS ARE IDLE

Cleveland, O., Aug. 29.—The freight market is dull in all lines and there is no improvement in sight. A number of coal carriers ready tomorrow have not been placed and some of them will have to be held over. There will be a big fleet at this end of the route next week and if cargoes are not more plentiful some of the boats will have to go to the docks.

Another steamer was added to the idle fleet at this port today and the indications are that it will be September 15 or later before all the wild carriers laid up are started. It is not expected that coal will move any more freely during the next two weeks and contract boats will take most of the business in the ore and grain trade during that time.

There was a little enquiry for grain tonnage at Chicago, and a Cleveland steamer was placed to load today for Buffalo at a cent a bushel. Two small cargoes were offered. A local broker was asked today by a shipper at the Canadian head of the lakes to call off the charter of a steamer placed ahead to load during the last half of October, but he refused to cancel the contract. There is no demand for tonnage in the Lake Superior trade for prompt or future loading. The charters of two boats lined up to take grain to Port Colbourne to Montreal were cancelled and the owners will get one quarter of a cent a bushel on the cargoes. The grain is not coming forward and the shippers could not load the boats.

FISH INDUSTRY FEARED SHORTAGE OF SALT

Boston, Aug. 29.—A possible shortage of the supply of salt needed in the Gloucester fish industry has been averted by the timely arrival of two large cargoes, one from Sicily and the other from Spain.

Although the amount on hand had not fallen low enough to interfere with business, there was not enough to last indefinitely. Experiments in the use of domestic salt and an unusually large amount of packing during the spring were the causes of the rapid diminution of the stock available.

Although the war will put up freight rates from the Mediterranean, the West Indies and Liverpool, it is not expected that there will be any pronounced effect on the salt industry. Only a small part of the salt consumed comes from abroad, practically all the table salt being of domestic manufacture.

GERMANS USING EXPLOSIVE BULLETS AGAINST RUSSIANS

Why Can't They Play the Game Fair--Are Afraid of the Cossacks, Believing Them Cannibals--Russian Troops Treat Villagers of Conquered Territory Humanely

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.— Wounded soldiers bring narratives of the fighting in east Prussia, and they still aver that German cavalrymen poisoned the forage they left behind when they retreated before the onslaught of the czar's troops. The Germans exhibited great terror of the Cossacks, believing them to be cannibals, which nonsensical report the German authorities encouraged. The unexpected mildness of the Russian rough riders agreeably surprised the inhabitants of the villages taken by the Russians.

An examination of the injured at Warsaw leaves no doubt that the Germans are using dum-dum bullets in their warfare.

The Teutons are surprised at the knowledge of the German language possessed by the Russians. Officers gave their commands in German and the men understood when before the enemy's trenches. One command called for a movement to the right and a few minutes later a command also given in German called for a movement to the left. This threw the Germans into confusion, during which the Russians quickly profited by successfully storming the position.

CANADIAN GUARD WAS SHOT AT SMITHS FALLS SATURDAY

Patric Morgan Killed by an Unknown Trespasser--Two Arrests Made--All Foreigners Should be Placed Under Espionage as Far as Possible

Smith Falls, Aug. 29.—Pattrick Moran, a guard on the C.P.R. track in the north end of the town was shot and killed at two o'clock this morning by a trespasser. Upon being challenged by Moran the man told him to hold his tongue or he would shoot his head off. Moran insisted on knowing what he was doing, whereupon the unknown fired three shots at him, one bullet piercing his lung. Moran was taken to the St. Francis Hospital and died about 5.30. The assailant was described as a tall, dark man wearing a long overcoat.

The young man was about 25 years old and a native of Ireland. He was unmarried and had no relatives in this country. The chief of police and members of the local volunteer company have been out searching the surrounding country and two arrests have been made.

Russians Have Koenigsberg On The Road to Hamburg

Paris, Aug. 29, 4.10 p.m.—The French war office gave out the following official statement this afternoon: "The Russian army has completely invested Koenigsberg and occupied all Enstein, both in East-Prussia. The Germans continue to retreat.'

Koenigsberg is an important Northern German seaport some 400 miles from Hamburg, Germany's present naval base, which the Kiel canal, where her fleet is reported bottled up, connects with the North Sea. Maybe Russia contemplates capturing Hamburg, in which case Germany's fleet, with Russia controlling her naval base and all northern ports with England's fleet off Heligoland, and Russia's fleet in the Baltic, would face either annihilation or starvation. It looks as though "on to Berlin" may not be Russia's best triumph card she is playing in conjunction with the operations of her allies.

Phone Girl Stayed Till Bomb Struck Her Office

Paris, Aug. 29.—According to information which has reached Paris, the little village of Etain, near Longwy, France, has been subjected to two bombardments by the Germans. One took place Monday of this last week, and the other Tuesday.

The second bombardment set the town on fire, and many people are said to have perished in the flames. The telephone service of Etain was left in the hands of a young girl, who stuck to her post while shells were bursting all around the telephone office, and called up Verdum every 15 minutes to give an account of what was going on. The director of the post at Verdum was listening to a message being sent by this girl, when suddenly she interrupted the communication to say, "A bomb has just fallen in this office."

This was the last message Verdum received from the plucky girl.

BLIND YOUTH OF 21 IS LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATE

Anthony, Kan., Aug. 29.—Interest in the Democratic primaries in Harper County centers in the fight Leroy Hughbanks is making for Representative.

This young man, blind from his early youth, is going about the county pleading with the voters to send him to the Legislature. He promises, if nominated and elected, to go to Topeka and give the people faithful service.

Roy Hughbanks is just past 21 years of age and is probably the youngest candidate for the Legislature in Kansas. He possesses a finished education in the arts, music and oratory.

RAISING MONEY FOR BERLIN SOLDIERS

One Dollar Ahead From Each Citizen is Patriotic Fund Program

Berlin, Aug. 29.—The nucleus for a patriotic fund of $20,000 is announced by The News-Record this afternoon.

The promoters announce that this amount would represent a dollar per head for every citizen of Berlin.

This amount would be equally divided among every family of the soldiers who have gone from Berlin, thereby preventing any suffering until peace is restored. There are twenty men gone from Berlin. Five hundred dollars is already subscribed by the proprietors of this newspaper.

One thousand Progressives are in attendance at the Conference in Utica.

New York reports a large increase in the tobacco business since the outbreak of the war.

CORPORAL FUNISHMENT

Teacher Must be a Psychologist to Know When to Apply it

Corporal punishment in schools is a subject which is brought into the public eye every so often. It is a topic with painful memories for most people and one which is heatedly discussed among the parents of school children, but the average grown-up still believes that corporal punishment is a good thing. Discretion should be used in the application of the rod however, and it is in the lack of discretion among some school teachers where the system of corporal punishment is weak. There are children who can understand nothing quite so well as a "licking," but there are also children to whom a blow is a serious nervous shock. It is more or less a matter of temperament, which, despite the protests of the press agent, is not the exclusive possession of theatrical stars. The best school teacher must be more or less of a student of psychology and must be able to distinguish between "bad boys" and thoughtless ones.

It must be admitted that there are "bad boys." True, they generally turn out to be the best of men, but they are boys who need an occasional and sometimes frequent application of the cane or strap, whichever happens to be the favorite weapon of the teacher. To them it is an honor to be "licked," and they display their bruised hands with considerable pride. But to the nervous, sensitive child corporal punishment does more harm than either the teacher or parent may imagine. It bruises the spirit more severely than the flesh. Such a child grows up timid and fearful, shrinking from expected blows before they are threatened.

It is rather a pity that school teachers are not better paid. If they are worth anything at all, they are worth at least double what they receive at the present time. They hold almost supreme power over the children in their classes; it is to them that the rising generation looks for guidance and knowledge, yet they receive what is hardly better than a pittance.—Vancouver Sunset.

WINGS FOR AEROPLANES

Linen the Best Material; Silk Lighter But Not so Durable

Although to the lay mind the suggestion that aeroplanes should be fitted with silk wings may seem an unnecessarily extravagant idea, there are certain advantages to be gained by such an innovation which would warrant the extra expense. Not that the latter would be very great. The cost of using silk on a modern biplane would not increase the expense by more than $100 per machine, while it is estimated that it would reduce the weight by about 20 pounds. Such a saving in weight, of course, is highly important, and when it is mentioned that from $5,000 to $6,000 is usually spent on a biplane, the item of cost seems in no way considerable.

In the opinion of experts there are certain objections to using silk for aeroplane wings. It is pointed out that while it is superior to linen, which is now used, in regard to strength, it does not stand exposure to sun and rain so well. Furthermore silk does not lend itself so well to dressing with tautening liquids, which is essential in order that the wings may not suffer unduly from the vagaries of the climate.

Various experiments have been made not only with silk, but with every kind of material in making aeroplane wings—catgut, cotton, transparent celluloid films (in the hope of invisibility), fine aluminium foil (for fireproofness), wooden slats, and feathers. None of them, however, equal linen, which when dressed with the tautening liquids seems impervious to everything except accidents.

The dressings, which consist of solutions of casein, are applied after the linen has been stretched over the framework. Three or four thin coats are applied, and the effect of the dressing is to pull the whole fabric together in every direction. When the coats are dry the linen rings like a drum to the flick of the finger, and affords a fairly smooth surface, which is sometimes further improved and rendered water-resisting by a coachbuilders' flexible varnish. It is estimated that the dressing increases the strength of the linen by some five per cent.

HAND-WASHING EXTRAORDINARY

Cleanliness Given More Credit Than Skill For Saving Lives

Most people attribute the immensely decreased rate of mortality in cases of severe surgical operations to the increased skill of the profession, to their greatly improved instruments and the more skilful nursing which is obtained in these days. But the surgeon himself would tell you that it is almost all a matter of absolute cleanliness, the fact that nothing is left undone to insure absolute freedom from infection of any kind. This fact is emphasized by the extraordinary hand-washing regulations which are in force at the various hospitals. Everybody who is even remotely connected with an approaching operation is supposed to spend twenty minutes in the all-important process of washing his hands. For five minutes the surgeon washes his hands with soap and water, and then cleans his finger-nails. When he has done this, he spends another five minutes doing it all over again. But this is but a preparation for a third and far more drastic ablution, for this time he must wash his hands in alcohol. Not content with this cleansing process, however, he must now put his hands through a process of sterilization by soaking them for at least five minutes in a wash of corrosive sublimate. By that time he may commence his duties which mean life or death to some patient, with the satisfactory feeling that he has done his best to approach his task with clean hands.

Farmer Was Wise.

Charles J. O'Connor, Chicago lawyer, told the following:

"A farmer took out a policy of fire insurance on his barn. After a loss and due proofs the company came to settle or adjust the loss, but took advantage of its option under the contract to build a new barn.

"Subsequently a life insurance company sought to have him insure his life in favor of his wife. 'O, no,' he says, 'you don't catch me a second time. If I'd die you would come around here and offer to get a new husband for her.'"

SURVEY YOUR OWN FARM

Did you ever take an afternoon off and stroll over your own farm, viewing it in the impartial manner in which you would survey a neighbor's farm? Looking the farm in the face in this way is a wonderful educator, and all of us can afford to do it at least once a year.

Sticking too close to hard work makes us narrow in our vision. Obvious faults are apt to escape our notice. For instance, it is easy for one of us who has plowed for 40 years around a large boulder in the middle of an otherwise clean field, to come to regard that obstruction as a necessary evil; a few pounds of blasting powder and half an hour's work would remove the obstruction and improve the field immensely. The barnyard may be very unsightly and mussy to a stranger, but all right to us because we have become accustomed to seeing it that way. A gate that insists on sagging and dragging may lose us enough time and energy in a year to build half a dozen new ones to take its place, but we have become so accustomed to hauling that old gate around that it too is classed as a necessary evil.

It is wonderful how many small points in need of improvement we can find if we will only give our farm a square look in the face. Many of the most obvious faults may be remedied by half an hour of energetic work. There are few of us whose farms are so perfect that they would not be the better of an annual clean-up.

ANNIE EDNEY

Annie Edney is said to have screamed herself into a job once upon a time in London. She was looking for a position with a theatrical company, so the story goes. A consultation with the manager indicated that she would have to scream in the part assigned to her.

She "allowed" that she could scream to order in first class fashion. So a short synopsis of the play was given to her. Her husband was supposed to have dropped dead. She, seeing the figure of her loved one at her feet, then was to give a cry which would send shivers over the audience.

Miss Edney walked to the stage door, turned, and gave the requisite shriek—which drew stage hands, police, and people off the street to discover what was the matter.

She got the job!

Belgium's People Heaviest Drinkers

Belgium has the greatest number of public houses per head in the world. Whereas in Norway there is one to every 9,000 inhabitants, in Sweden one to every 5,000, in England to every 432, in the United States to every 260, in Germany to every 246, in France to every 82, Belgium has one public house to every 30 inhabitants. The drink revenue in Belgium amounts to $500,000,000, the Belgian working man being computed to spend two and a half months' wages on alcohol.

SHOALS OF HERRING

Neglected Opportunities in the Pacific Coast Fisheries

Notwithstanding the fact that the fisheries business has made rapid progress in British Columbia in recent years, and now constitutes one of the most important branches of industry in the province, there are still excellent opportunities for building up a profitable trade in canning certain kinds of fish. It is the opinion of those who are familiar with conditions that scarcely a beginning has been made in commercially exploiting the many varieties of fish which abound in these waters. Vast shoals of herring run for months every year in the hundreds of bays and inlets along the thousand miles of British Columbia's sheltered seacoast. They teem in shoals in Nanaimo, Pender and Prince Rupert Harbors, Quatsino sound, and many other harbors and bays, from the Fraser river to the Alaskan boundary. Every year thousands of tons of herring are swept in by the tides to be left stranded and dying on the shores of a hundred bays. This is a great waste of material and opportunity which does not seem to have been taken into account by those who are interested in the fisheries industry.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. END OF THE FORESTS

In a report by the United States forestry service it is predicted that "the whole United States lumber crop will be harvested by 1930." This startling prediction brings home a sense of the nearness of timber exhaustion. The lumbermen of the United States are cutting timber at three times the rate of natural growth. If the United States forests will be so soon reduced to commercial impotence, unless new and sweeping conservation measures are undertaken, what of the tremendous extra drain thereafter upon Canadian timber reserves? Already more merchantable timber is burned every year in Canada in forest fires than is cut.

It is clear that the United States, having drawn on its timber reserves with a prodigal hand, must turn to Canada for lumber, as it has already done for pulp. The forestry officials estimate the area of our commercial timber at 275,000,000 acres, and the reserves are 140,000,000 acres, of which 110,000,000 acres are in Quebec. The United States has 187,000,000 acres of reserves. But there are of particular value on water-sheds for flood prevention, and consequently are not destined for the market. Likewise in Canada, the reserves are in most cases as much for the protection of land and the conservation of water supply as for anticipating a shortage of timber. What is specially necessary is that a check should be placed upon too rapid exploitation of the standing timber. We should constantly seek to guard ourselves against the predicament of France, which is spending $250,000,000 in setting out young trees at the Alpine border—to control floods. Every Provincial Government with control over large forest resources should have a profit-sharing policy by which the people get a percentage of the sale price of lumber, as British Columbia now does. Too much of the value of public timber has been going into private hands.

Our Point of View

The only thing in the food line that promises to remain cheap is food for thought.

—o—

The Germans will surely know what war is when they come in contact with General Hollovafellovitch, who commands one of the Russian army corps that have penetrated the Prussian frontier.

—o—

The first warship to pass through the Panama canal was a Peruvian, so Colonel Goethals reports. This is enough to make every jingo stand up and bark.

—o—

Wall street reports that the American beet sugar interests will earn 45 per cent. on the year's business. Horrors, horrors. Just think how the Democratic administration is ruining the business of the country.

—o—

The kaiser's war machine is not working with the rapidity expected. This is the twenty-second day of the war and the march to Paris has made but slight headway. On the twentieth day in 1870 the Germans, who had penetrated deep into France, won a notable victory and a month later the French forces were crushed.

—o—

An American writing home from Berlin says when war was declared by Germany against Russia, Kaiser Bill placed his hand on the hilt of his sword and wept as he said: "My enemies forced this into my hand." Many of us now will remain in doubt as to whether the kaiser's emotion was due to grief or to Bavarian beer, which is of strong brew.

Dutch "Neutrality"

The Dutch embargo on the export of food stuffs is no ordinary neutrality. No clear line governs this field. "Strictneutrality" is only a convenient figure of speech.

Complete non-intercourse will not make a neutral nation's existence immaterial to the outcome of a war. The geographical position of Switzerland would still afford a defence to the Austrian Tyrol, for instance, even were Switzerland to prevent food news or anything else from crossing her borders. A neutral nation must accordingly recognize that it is a factor in the result, and that fair play is best observed by doing what custom suggests.

The Dutch embargo on the export of foodstuffs puts an unusual burden on Germany. The customary rule would allow her, in time of war, to get unlimited supplies of grain and even war material from Holland. Whatever the proper rule should be it is a poor time to start a precedent when it will work unequal benefit to the combatants. Germany may reasonably construe the action as hostility under the guise of neutrality.

The decision may prove practical danger to Holland. As long as she offered a market for the purchase of grain and other supplies, Germany's interest would be to keep Holland neutral. If Germany had occupied the Netherlands as an ally, Great Britain could blockade the Dutch port. If Holland had been driven to side with France, Russia and the Great Britain, exportation of grain to Germany would have been prohibited as trade with the enemy. If German strategy should demand the occupation of Holland, the Dutch are no longer protected by Germany's desire to keep Holland neutral as a market for supplies.

Coaling at Sea

(Boston Herald)

Within the last four days two German merchant vessels have taken on large amounts of coal, supposedly to transfer to German cruisers at sea. One, the Mazatlan, was held in San Francisco harbor by the authorities, and was released only after she had agreed to deliver no coal to German warships. The other, the Brandenburg, was given her clearance papers at Philadelphia. The difference in treatment is probably due to the conflict of opinion on the law of neutrality.

This clash of opinion arises from two conflicting rules. The first is that a neutral government is under no obligation to prevent trading in contraband by its citizens. For instance, it is perfectly proper for a resident of the United States to ship contraband goods to Europe, subject of course, to the risk of capture on the way. The second rule is that a belligerent warship may not use the ports of a neutral nation as a "base of operations." Under this rule would be prohibited unlimited coaling in neutral ports by a belligerent warship.

Although these extreme cases are entirely clear, all sorts of legal difficulties arise in the middle ground between. Where a collier of a belligerent fleet comes into a neutral harbor, it is absolutely clear that she should not be allowed to take out coal for the warships. Similarly it has been considered a violation of neutrality to allow a merchant vessel to carry out to a belligerent fleet coal which has been ordered by the fleet. This seems to have been the case with the Mazatlan and may account for the detention. It is right that this should be prohibited. Otherwise, a warship could sail just outside the three-mile limit and have an order of coal brought out with almost no danger of interference by an enemy's warship.

The really doubtful case is where a merchant vessel carries coal out to a belligerent fleet in the hope of being able to effect a sale. This seems permissible on the ground that sending contraband to a belligerent fleet on the high seas is no worse than sending it to a belligerent port.

MAY PLOUGH UP 2000 ENGLISH GOLF COURSES

War Office Considering Proposal of Using All Sport Fields for Crops

London, Aug. 29.—Proposals that golf courses, cricket and football fields be ploughed for raising crops during war time have been reaching the war office.

A. J. Sherwood, secretary of the Walton-Heath Golf Club at Epsom points out that there are at least 2000 golf courses in the country which could spare some, if not considerable, land for cultivation. The Walton-Heath club has already started an experiment of 12 acres under cultivation, and the secretary believes that if other clubs, including the cricket and football organizations, would do the same, the scheme would provide employment for thousands of unskilled workers and add considerably to the nation's food supply.

In these days of self-sacrifice no one appears to be wanting to enjoy himself on the golf links. They are generally deserted and probably will be to the end of the war.

L. B. Gullich, secretary of the Golfers' Club, has suggested that the hundreds of clubhouses be offered to the military authorities for use as hospitals.

Mr. Gullich is sending a letter to the secretary of every club, and he believes that in a few weeks if the war office should favor the scheme, practically every clubhouse in the country could be equipped as a hospital. It is thought that those on the east coast might be especially useful.

"I find," said Gullich, "that golfers are very anxious to do something useful, and so far no one has been able to think of anything better than giving up the clubhouses. There must be at least 2000 which could be used as hospitals, or in any other way that military authorities thought fit. The bigger ones have been made out of luxurious country houses, and could be transferred into hospitals in a few days to accommodate some hundreds, and there are well over a thousand smaller houses which could put up from 12 to 50 with only slight alterations.

The clubhouse staff would be available for the cooking and attendance. If the various clubs respond, as I think they will, there would be no difficulty in offering the war office 25,000 beds."

Another of Mr. Gullich's proposals is using the 20,000 caddies who are now idle to help farmers get in the harvests.

Best Liniment of All Destroys Every Pain But Never Burns

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as Nerviline," writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Wetaskawin, Alberta. "In this far-away section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck, you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old time remedy is. Nerviline for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without Nerviline. Every community has its living examples of the wonderful curative properties of Nerviline which will cure pains and aches everywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,900 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows:

In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,850 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,950 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

ATTRIBUTES HER 108 YEARS TO CHEERFULNESS

Worcester, Aug. 25.—Mrs. Louisa A. Waterman Carpenter, the oldest daug Waterman Carpenter, the oldest daughter of the revolution now living in Massachusetts, to-morrow will celebrate her 108th birthday at the home of Mrs. Annie H. Vance, at 8 Boyntonstreet, where Mrs. Carpenter in recent years lived with her daughtr, Miss Isabella Carpenter, until the latter's death at the age of nintey, a year and a half ago.

Mrs. Carpenter is in excellent health and is beloved for her cheerful, sunny disposition, to which she attributes her long, useful, healthful and happy life.

Mrs. Carpenter was born on the "Warner homestead" in old Warwick, a mile from her birthplace.

This gouse was built of timber, all cut on the farm, and of bricks made on the place. The structure was rated one of the finest in the vicinity. In Kent County, R. I., the oldest of 13 children. She was the daughter of JohnR. and Isabella (Warner) Waterman and the granddaughter of Thos. and Mary (Hill) Warner of old Warwick. Her father at the time was building the "Waterman homestead," it 11 of her brothers and sisters were born.

The property was a part of the original "Shawmut" purchase that was bought from the Sachem chief of the Narragansett Indians for 144 fathoms of wampumpeage by 10 men, including Richard Waterman, who came to Salem from England in the year 1642.

Mr. Waterman had long associated with Roger Williams in England and Wales, and his son, Resolved Waterman, married Roger Williams' daughter, Mercy Williams, and their son, stead, near the large buttonwood tree Capt. John Waterman, built, in 1690 the first house on the Waterman home —125 feet high and seven feet through at six feet from the ground, and from this tree the British were watched in Narranganestt Bay to Newport. In this house Capt. Benoni Waterman's three children were born; also his son, Col. John Waterman's seven children were born, and his son Deacon John Waterman's two children were born, one of whom, John R. Waterman, built the new house in 1805-6 on the Waterman Homestead about 100 yards from the first house.

In these two houses built on the Waterman Homestead seven generations of the Waterman family lived, and sometimes four generations at the same time, and about 56 children were born. In the Waterman family burying ground seven generations of the Waterman family are buried. There were 14 buildings on the Waterman Homestead, and the family owned eight negro slaves and their children who have their own burying ground with marked graves.

Mrs. Waterman never tires talking of the Waterman family, the Waterman Homestead, and of the American revolution, for she was 12 years old when her grandfather, Col. John Waterman, died. Louisa Waterman and her sister, Almira Waterman, were both baptized Oct. 4, 1829, b9 Rev. John Manchester into the old Warwick Baptist Church and that same day the farewell service was held in the first church built in Old Warwick R. I.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $90,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalise your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes means to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

LACK OF DYES MAY FORCE SHUT-KOWN

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 29.—As the supply of imported German dyes is practically exhausted in this country the manager of the Royal Weaving Co. today said that he expects his factory will have to close in two three weeks. The concern employes 1500 men. He says that other textile firms face the same situation. The same conditions obtain in Canada. Mr. Robert Beach, Peterborough's foremost dyer and cleaner, is pessimistic of getting the dyes he wants, although he is offering cash down.

BRITISH VICTORIES OVER GERMANS

Reports Do Not Indicate That Allies Detence at Conde is Seriously Impaired

London, Aug. 28.— A despatch to The Express from Lille announces the advance guard of Germans is now at Pont-a-Marcq and Marchiennes.

"This represents," says the Lille correspondent in his despatch, "a slight further advance movement from Cysoing, where they were reported on Monday. There was heavy fighting at Marchiennes Thursday morning, when the Germans broke through the French lines. The allies acquitted themselves well, however, and succeeded in pushing the German advance forces back on their main body. The German advance forces were also repulsed at Pont-a-Marcq.

"There was also fighting at Tournai, where the Germans were repulsed. It is believed there that the Germans have occupied Valenciennes, but the British are reported to have driven back the enemy near Mons.

"There is nothing to indicate that the allies' line from Mons to Conde has been seriously turned.

"French industrial centres, such as Roubaix and Turcoing, are frequently visited by German cavalry and are occupied and evacuated every day."

Temporarily Abandoned.

The Times military correspondent in discussing the situation on the French frontier, says:

"The news that the allies have retired to the line from Lecateau to Cambrai shows that active defence of the line from Lille to Maubeuge has been abandoned, and that these two fortresses have been left temporarily to look after themselves.

"The necessity for holding the interval between the Scheldt and Cambrai and the Sambre, near Lecateau, is probably due to the need for holding Mezieres. Once this point goes or the Meuse between Mezieres and Verdun is penetrated by the invaders the whole system of frontier defence of Eastern France breaks down, and if the field armies are inferior to the enemy nothing remains but retreat to the falaises of Champagne.

"If this line is skilfully defended, it should be most difficult to penetrate Lafere, Laon and Rheims, which are provided with permanent fortifications. But we are not at that point yet.

"The line from Lecateau to Cambrai must expect an enveloping attack on the north but this attempt will probably fail.

Expect Success.

"We have every right to expect success to-day, but if we do not win a decisive victory we must abandon our bases on the coast north of the mouth of the Somme and shift further south, either to Havre or Cherbourg.

"If we are unable to resume the offensive and beat back the German attack on the north the consequence will be that the Germans will establish aircraft stations along the Straits of Dover and thereby be able to keep us under constant observation.

"We must meet this by a counter attack with searchlights and anti-aircraft guns. Sportsmen should make up practice parties for airship shooting.

"The Germans will also mount their heaviest guns at any port they seize and once more there will be an army encamped on the heights of Boulogne.

"Let us however be grateful for one mercy. The international financiers, doctrines and lunatics who wished to fit us out with a channel tunnel are silenced for good and all."

AS LIGHT AS LAGER
BUT BETTER FOR YOU

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and larger packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing these cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. GRAVEST PERILS OF MOTORDROME RIDERS

Cyclists on the Saucer Track Forced to Undergo Tremendous Neck and Heart Strain

Centrifugal force is one of the most important natural laws governing high-speed saucer track racing. This force, which prevents water from spilling out of a pail when the latter is rapidly revolved, also holds the speeding motorcycles on the steep-inclined track. The following rather astonishing facts reveal perhaps the gravest peril which besets motordrome riders—the stress exerted on body and machine through the operation of this law of centrifugal force.

Pressure on Saucer Track

Taking as a basis the four lap, steeply-banked saucer, the centrifugal force which holds the rider down on his machine, and maintains the latter on the track, is really unbelievable. Traveling at an 80-mile clip, the rider is held down on his machine with a force equivalent to approximately three times his normal weight. In other words, a 150-pound rider would in effect weigh 450 pounds. His head would weigh just three times as much as when walking around on terra firma, and in the long-distance contests all the riders will attest to the frightful neck strain from supporting the head. It is possible to pad the top of the tank and recline the body, distributing some of the weight. In designing and constructing man, however, Nature took into consideration no such strains on the internal organism.

When riding as above, the heart is forced sideways, and the strain on its supporting muscles is three times as great as normal. The stomach, lungs

Undoubtedly it is this terrible strain on the vital organs which produces nausea and dizziness so commod among motordrome riders. In all probability many a fatal swerve has resulted from a sudden fainting of a body, unable to longer bear the strain. In the long-distance contests, which are becoming so popular, the punishment is frightful.

Traveling at 85 miles an hour, the weight of the body becomes approximately 3.4 times as great as normal, and at 90 miles the figure increases to 3.7 times.

The Weight on the Tires

These same figures apply to the machine, and will give some idea of the terrific stress exerted on the tires. With a 150-pound rider and a 200-pound machine traveling 80 miles an hour, the weight due to centrifugal force imposed on the tires is equivalent to about 1,050 pounds. This disregards the stresses induced by sudden swerves and turns, which are really beyond anything but conjecture. At 85 miles an hour, the weight on the tires of the outfit just mentioned would be almost 1,200 pounds, and at 90 miles 1,300 pounds. These figures show how the weight increases with a slight increase in speed. A tire may hold at a certain figure, but be unable to withstand more than a slight increase in speed.

The air pressure due to the terrific speed is also very astonishing. At an 80-mile clip, the force exerted on the face alone is equivalent to about 20 pounds. Imagine hanging your head over the edge of the bed, supporting a 20-pound weight.

Fat Men's Petition

The French Society of Fat Persons has addressed to the Prefect of Police a remarkable petition, in which is set forth that the doors of motor buses and trains, and also those on the underground, are constructed solely with a view to the requirements of thin people, and that stout men have the greatest trouble in getting through them. The petitioners demand that these doors should be enlarged, adding that fat people are at least as good electors and citizens as thin ones.

BLACK CAT FUR

Sold as Black Fox by Some Cheap Fur Dealers

The numerous disappearances of black cats in Great Britain reported to the police, have moved the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to activity in the direction of protecting the pussies. It appears that the black cat is stolen for its fur, which is particularly valuable just now. The hunt seems to be very keen, as pussy vanishes from the doorstep in the daytime and never reappears. A firm in London, England, who have a large general fur business stated that there was a great demand for the fur of black cats, especially of the glossy well-fed type. The fur was extensively sold as "black fox" by the cheaper fur dealers. The sight of a large, sleek black cat sunning itself within reach on a window sill is one to arouse the worst instincts of any fur dealer. Cats, said this dealer, would never displace rabbits as universal providers of the raw material for cheap, imitation furs, but no black cat was safe whilst black fox continued to be fashionable.

CURE FOR SEASICKNESS

Important Discovery is Attributed to Dr. Fischer

Dr. Jospeh Fischer, the well known heart specialist of Nauheim, in a Munich medical weekly claims to have discovered a method whereby ocean voyages will lose their horrors. According to his reports as the result of extensive experiments with sea sick passengers he found that an injection of atropin completely cured the worst cases. During a trip to New York Dr. Fischer made experiments on the way across the ocean to endeavor if possible to determine what sea sickness is and what causes it. He found that an injection of physostigmine produced the exact clinical symptoms of sea sickness, and that this was caused by an irritation of the vagus nerve. He then discovered that an injection of atropin paralyzed this artificial mal de mer. He immediately began experimenting with atropin in real sea sickness, with excellent results in the wost cases. Dr. Fischer says atropin is not dangerous, and has no ill-effects.

HOBBIES OF ROYALTY

The King of Bulgaria Passes Spare Hours Training Elephants

The Sovereigns of Europe have, and have had, some curious hobbies. The Kaiser has a distinct penchant for carpentry, while what King Christian does not know about the printer's craft is not worth knowing.

It has remained, however, for King Ferdinand of Bulgaria to take up the strangest pastime of all—animal training. A little while ago the King, tiring of the ordinary methods of relieving his mind from the cares of State, invested in four elephants. And now he spends all his spare time teaching his giant pets all that an educated elephant is required to know. The four beasts are housed at a farm on the outskirts of Sofia, and every day King Ferdinand spends an hour or so with them, superintending their toilet and training them.

The King has brought his usual zeal and enthusiasm to bear on his hobby, and the consequence is that his elephants would do credit to a professional trainer. Not only do the pachyderms recognise their Royal master when he visits them, but they can do several simple tricks at his bidding. The King is very proud of his pets, and whenever his Court is visited by anyone of distinction the Royal guest is sure to be taken to the farm to admire the great beasts at their work and play.

"Heap big bird, fly like eagle; Two Guns give his gun for bird like that," was his comment on the flying machine that took him 1,300 feet in the air.

Lockless Wooden Safe

Mr. I. Sheaker, a curio dealer, London, has invented a light wooden safe, which has no locks, bolts, or bars of any description, and yet is as safe as, if not safer than, the steel article.

Mr. Sheaker offers to put a bank note in his safe and give it to anyone, professional cracksman or otherwise, who can get it out without alarming the household. The safe consists of a mahogany cupboard that can be inlaid and made to look like a piece of drawing room furniture if required. By an ingenious electrical contrivance an electric bell rings immediately it is tampered with, and a light appears. The only thing to distinguish the safe from an ordinary cupboard is an electric wire running into the back. Should the burglar cut this, the alarm will ring just the same.

Utopia Sold For $4,500

The "Model Town" on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River, opposite Evansville, Ind., consisting of ten acres of land, a city hall, and electric light and power plant, was sold at auction for back taxes to the only bidder for $4,500.

The property was valued at over $30,000. The town was laid out four or five years ago by a man named Brown, who announced that the town would be run on the Utopian plan. Stores, factories, and all other businesses were to be operated by the people, and all city ordinances were to be framed by the citizens in town meetings. After Brown disappeared the inhabitants left the town.

THE MALIGNANT GERM

Animals Contracted Tuberculosis Because Consumptives Expectorated

Frank Carrel of Quebec, journalist and author, published in his paper, The Telegraph, a very interesting experience in connection with the vagaries of animal tuberculosis. He wrote:

"Some years ago I was at Ventnor, in the Isle of Wight, and was escorted through the largest tuberculosis hospital and grounds in England by the president and trustees of the institution. In going through the grounds the president related a rather odd incident, but one of great importance, and from which an object lesson can be taken. The institution in question had decided to have its own cows and chickens, and to thereby provide its patients with the purest of milk and fresh eggs direct from its own farm, so to speak. It was not long, however, before it was noticed that the cows and chickens were looking very poorly, and, notwithstanding the fact that they had the very best of grazing and attention, it was apparent that some malady was affecting them. Examination was made, and it was found that they were all suffering from tuberculosis, and that the only way in which they could have caught it was from the expectoration of patients, who, notwithstanding the strict rules of the institutions relative to expectoration, must have sometime or other expectorated in or around the fields where the cattle were grazing. Another strange incident in connection with this discovery was the fact that pigs were the only animals that could be kept there, and that were immune from contracting the disease. At the time I visited the institution they had quite a large number of pigs which were thriving upon the waste food of the institution."

DIRECTION FINDER

New Wireless Device to Increase the Safety of Ocean Traffic

During a recent passage of the Royal George of the Canadian Northern line, across the Atlantic a series of demonstrations was given of the possibilities of a new wireless aid to navigation. The new device is classified as a "direction finder." Its duty is to seek out all wireless stations, whether stationary or in motion—or in other words on coast line or high seas, within a radius of fifty miles and to indicate for the guidance of the navigating officers the exact relation of the ship to these in terms of latitude and longitude. Its sphere of usefulness, even in the present experimental stage, is to assist the captain during "thick" weather, in maintaining a clear course in the travelled ocean "lanes" in passing points, and in making port. Like many inventions to mankind this wireless finder is remarkable for its simplicity. Although one of Marconi's engineers, Signor Emilio Ichino, came out on the "Royal George" to make the tests, its operation does not require an expert and any of the bridge officers can obtain a bearing as easily as with a compass and just as conveniently, the instruments being set up in the chart room.

Both the Marconi engineer, Signor Emilio Ichino, and the Captain of the "Royal George," expressed themselves on arrival at Quebec as highly pleased with the experiments which had been made on the voyage. The instrument had been accurate to a degree of detecting the compass direction of other stations whether on shore or on other vessels. They had been able to ascertain the compass position of Cape Ray, Father Point and the ships Columbia, Calgarian and Sicilian. The Columbia had been 68 miles away, the Calgarian 53 and the Sicilian 12. Both men were confident that neither wind, wave or fog would affect the accuracy of the new wireless device.

Winter Stores in Labrador

The Indians of the barren lands of Labrador rely almost entirely upon the migrating caribou for winter sustenance. When the great herds of reindeer go south in the fall, the Indians lie in waiting for them, killing sufficient meat to keep them from starvation during the months of darkness and desolation. The meat, as killed, is packed into caches—either high in the trees, well out of reach of wolves, or in some natural cave, which is barricaded with rocks and timber. When the last deer have south, the barren lands are almost destitute of life, and should anything happen to their store the Indians are confronted with starvation.

In the Good Old times.

From the market report of the Times of Aug. 27th, 1884, 30 years ago, we see that butter was, on that date quoted at 16 to 18 cents a pound. Hay was $8 to $9 a ton, chickens 60c to 70 cents a pair, turkeys from 70 to 90 cents each, ducks 60 cents a pair, and potatoes $1 a bag.

A Times Prophecy Verified.

Referring to a local man who afterwards became private secretary to the late Prof. Goldwin Smith, the Times, of Sept. 3rd, 1884, says. "Mr. T. Arnold Haultain, late of the Review is, we are informed, about to go to New York, where he intends entering upon a literary career in connection with one of the leading journals of that city. Mr. Haultain possesses talents of a very high order, and we predict for him a bright future.

Must Give Bonds.

At Saturday's police court, Robert C. Gardner was charged with threatening his father-in-law Mr. Francis. It was charged that the prisoner had claimed he had bought a revolver and threatened to shoot Francis. The prisoner admitted having bought a revolver, but did it "just as a boy buys a toy pistol." Francis, in the witness box said he, Francis, was afraid of the prisoner. Mrs. Francis, in the box said her son-in-law threatened to shoot her husband if the latter "cut any more capers," i.e. used drink. She saw the revolver and the bullets. The prisoner was sent to jail until he got two securities to endorse his behavior. The prisoner asked "Won't you let me out. Do you think I'd shoot the father of my own wife and be hanged at 23 years of age?"

Sam Sharpe, M. P. runs Amuck.

Uxbridge Journal : The editor of the Journal was attacked by Major Sam Sharpe, M.P., with a horse whip. The first salute he received was some vulgar language, then, a slash, when the editor grabbed at him he was slashed over the face, knocking his glasses off. While the editor was blinded by the slash in the face he tumbled him over the side of the crossing. Then in a cowardly manner tried to hit him in the face. A number of his pals were there to back up Sharpe. "It appears the gallant Major took exception to the reference in the journal to a number of officers hiding behind their wives skirts and felt that this had reference to him. If the cap fits he is quite welcome to wear it. "It is a fine example of parliamentry law making to use the weapons used only by suffragettes and cowards.

A Lucid Interval

Yesterday morning Dr. R. W. Bell, of the Provincial Board of Health, told a Times representative a somewhat amusing story of a patient in Mimico Asylum. It seems the patient in question has, during the past few years, been committed to this asylum several times. Recently a George street merchant who had business dealings with the patient asked permission to speak to him. Dr. Bell gave him permission, provided the local merchant did not attempt to talk business with this "ward" of the Province. The merchant half an hour later remarked to the doctor, "Why that man is perfectly sane." A few minutes later the patient met Dr. Bell and was convulsed with mirth. He said, "Lord, doctor, how I fooled Mr. ——. I watched myself as I talked to him. He thinks I am perfectly sane, but you know I'm crazy as a bug."

Impressionable persons in Montclair, N.J., saw a cross in the sky and interpreted it as a promise of peace.

MAY ISSUE APPEAL FOR CIVILIZED WARFARE

Washington, Aug. 29.—As the lone great world power strictly neutral in the present war, the United States today faced a peculiar situation and delicate duty as the recipient of protests from the various warring nations because of alleged cruelties, barbarities, and violations of The Hague conventions and international law.

President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, according to authorities feel the responsibility keenly. They are loath to act, however, until formal protests are in such shape that a general appeal to all countries involved to adhere strictly to recognized war practices can be made. Reluctance seemingly to take sides by apparently chiding any particular power for alleged infractions of martial etiquette is another afactor.

Charges and counter charges of Germans, Belgians, French and British form a conflicting maze to be carefully considered by this government.

While the warring powers are accusing each other of violations of military and international law such as slaughter of non-combatants, use by Germans of Zeppelin bomb throwers, and planting of floating mines endangering neutral shipping, only a few formal protests have officially reached this government. These protests are to be made to all the world powers not at war, but officials here believe action devolved largely upon the United States.

A joint appeal—in general terms without citing specific acts to all the warring nations will be issued by this government, it is believed.

THREE HUNDRED MEN READY TO ENROLL IN IRISH REGIMENT

Organization in Montreal Authorized by an Order-in-Council--Will be Recruited Up to Six Hundred--Minister of Militia Has Returned to Valcartier

Ottawa, Aug. 31.—An order-in-council has been passed authorizing the organization of an Irish regiment in Montreal. Three hundred men are said to be ready to enroll at once and Mr. William P, O'Brien is spoken of as likely to be colonel of the regiment. There has always been a certain number of Irish in the other Montreal regiments, including a disproportionately large number of officers, but there has been a good deal of opposition amongst the Irish to joining the militia while opposition was continued to the Home Rule Bill. The patriotic stand of the Irish leaders in the present crisis, however, has awakened a like feeling in Canada, and past differences are to be forgotten until the National peril has passed.

The new Montreal regiment is likely to be recruited up to about 600 and get into training at once. Any men intending to volunteer for the front would require practice in drilling and shooting first.

Colonel Lives in Camp.

Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, has returned to Valcartier, from Ottawa and will make his headquarters at the Quebec camp until the Canadian army division sail in a couple of weeks' time. He will visit the capital whenever necessary, but will spend most of his time helping to train and equip the Canadian troops. While their departure might be hurried it is felt that it is foolish to send them to the front until they are hardened, well trained and well equipped.

Too Much Publicity.

The debarkation of the Princess Patricia Light Infantry has not surprised Ottawa. The sailing of the Princess Patricias on the Megantic was given altogether too much publicity and it was feared one of the German cruisers in the South Atlantic might make a raid. For this reason it is understood that they were ordered to debark at Quebec, to sail under secret and sealed orders.

Remain in England.

As a result of the war here, Mr. George H. Perley, who has been acting High Commissioner in London, will remain indefinitely in the old country. He expected when he left for England to be back in Canada by September, but the outbreak of hostilities has completely upset his plans. It has been fortunate that Mr. Perley was in England at this critical time, as he has been of invaluable service in carrying on negotiations between the Canadian Government and the Imperial authorities and the British War Office. Mr. Perley will not likely for the present be appointed Commissioner. If the war proves protracted Mr. Perley will be made full Commissioner.

Noted French Socialist To Fight Against Germans

Paris, Aug. 31.—The entry of Jules Guesde and Marcel Sembat, the former a Socialist and the latter a United Socialist deputy, to the leadership of the Socialists of France in succession to the late Jean Juares, has unified the party and is favorably commented upon by all parties in France.

M. Guesde and M. Sembat are also members of the new cabinet, the former being without portfolio and the latter holding the post of minister of public works. The Socialists say they desire to collaborate in the defense of the nation, although under the leadership of M. Guesde they always will be oppos'd to the participation of the party in the government.

M. Guesde, in an interview in the Paris Midi said:

"I go into the cabinet as an envoy of my party, not to govern, but to fight. If I were younger I would have shouldered a gun. But as my age does not permit this I will nevertheless face the enemy and defend the cause of humanity.

"I am confident of final victory and without hesitation as to its subsequent role in France the party will never deviate from the line of conduct laid out. As the solidarity of workmen does not shut out the right to defend themselves against traitor workmen, so international solidarity does not exclude the right of one nation to defend itself against a government traitor to the peace of Europe."

Alexander Millerand, who become minister of war in the new cabinet formed, addressed the following letter to Gen. Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French troops:

"My Dear General: On assuming control of the ministry of war I wish my first act to be sent to the troops under your command and their chiefs the tribute of the admiration and confidence of the government of the republic and the country. France is assured of victory because it is resolved to gain it.

"Following your example and that of your armies, France will maintain until the end calm self-control with an earnest of success. Subjected to iron discipline which is the law and strength of the armies, the whole nation rising in defence of its soil and liberties has accepted resolutely every ordeal, even the most cruel.

"Patient, tenacious and strong in its right, sure of its will, it will hold fast. I give you accolade."

PATROLMAN FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Negress Robs Man and Divides Loot With Cop, is Accusation

New Orleans, Aug. 31.—Patrolman John H. Vigers, detailed in the Civic Playgrounds in Poydras street, was suspended from duty Thursday morning and faces a serious accusation. Vigers is alleged to have induced a negress to rob a negro man of $20 and to have given her $10 as "hush money," and to have kept the rest.

Carrie Deland is the negress who accuses Vigers. She was arrested for robbing James Coleman, a negro, Shortly after her arrest last Wednesday afternoon she told Patrolman Albert Baker that she robbed Coleman after consulting with Patrolman Vigers, who told her to do so. After robbing Coleman she said she met Vigers by appointment in an alley at Saratoga and Lafayette street, where she gave $20 to the policeman. She added that Vigers changed the Bill at Feahney's grocery, Rampart and Poydras streets, and gave her half of the money.

Police Superintendent Reynolds on Thursday morning sought out District Attorney Luzenberg and requested the district attorney to lay the matter before the grand jury, Patrolman Vigers is well advanced in years. He bears a splendid reputation and during the 26 years that he has been on the force he was under charges only three times, each time, however, for minor offenses such as disobedience of orders and neglect of duty.

Lesson in Scientific Complexion Renewing

Everyone has a beautiful skin underneath the one exposed to view. Bear that in mind and it will be easier to understand the correct principle in acquiring a lovely complexion. Nature is constantly shedding the top skin in flaky particles like dandruff, only much smaller in size. In abnormal conditions or in advancing age, these particles are not shed as rapidly as in robust youth. The longer they remain the more soiled or faded they become—that's the immediate cause of a "bad complexion."

It has been discovered that ordinary mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store, will absorb these worn-out particles. The absorption, while hastening Nature's work, goes on gradually enough to cause no inconvenience. In a week or two the transformation is complete. The fresh, healthy-hued, youthful underskin is then wholly in evidence. You who are not satisfied with your complexions should get an ounce of mercolized wax and try this treatment. Use the wax nightly like cold cream, washing it off mornings.

ARRESTS CHUM OF REVOLOVER VICTIM

Death of Private William Sergeant of St Catharines, Stirs Police

St. Catharines, Aug. 31.—Following the accidental fatal shooting of Private William Sergeant, 19th Regiment, on guard duty on Welland Canal, Saturday night, an arrest has been made of the soldier in whose hand the revolver rested when discharged.

The prisoner is Private Shaw, Elm street, St. Catharines, Sergeant's closest friend, according to their tent comrades.

The two young soldiers had been fooling with two revolvers left in the tent and that held by Shaw is said to have been the one in which the empty chamber was found. Shaw is heart broken; the mother of the victim is seriously ill in the General and Marine Hospital

FRENCH TROOPS POUR NORTH TO CHECK FOE: RESERVES FOR PARIS DEFENCES: WAIT ORDERS

Many Leaving French Capital Fearing Siege is Near--No Announcement From War Offices of the Allies as to What is Transpiring at the Front

Paris, Aug. 31.—An official statement issued this evening summarizes the situation to date as follows:

On our right we have taken the offensive and the enemy is retiring before us.

In the centre we have had alternative checks and successes, but a general action is now being fought.

On our left by a series of circumstances which turned in favor of the Germans, and despite lucky counter attacks, the Anglo-French forces were obliged to give way. As yet our armies, notwithstanding a few incontestable checks, remain intact. The morale of our troops is excellent in spite of considerable losses, which also are being rapidly filled from regimental depots.

MORE FIRING OFF DOVER.

London, Aug. 31.—(Noon).—Heavy firing was heard at Dover this morning, which appeared to come from vessels along the French coast. The official bureau, it is announced, has no information on the subject.

GERMANS ARE REINFORCED.

London, Aug. 31.—An official telegram received in London, declares that fresh forces of Germans have made their appearance on the Prussian front and that at some points they are taking the offensive against the Russians.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

London, Aug. 31.—A St. Petersburg despatch to The Telegraph says: According to reports brought here by German prisoners, it has been announced in Berlin that American residents are preparing to hoist the American flag at Kiao-Chow, in order to keep the city from the hands of the Japanese. The St. Petersburg newspapers publish the report and ask whether it is possible that Germany has some arrangement with the United States whereby the trick played with the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, may be repeated with the stronghold on land.

SERVIA OUT FOR CONQUEST.

Rome, Aug. 31.—Via Paris.—A telegram from Nish received in Genoa, Italy, says that Servia is preparing to invade and conquer Bosnia and Herzegovina

600,000 MORE FRENCH TROOPS.

Paris, Aug. 31.—Additional French forces, totalling 600,000 men will be ready for active service in about six weeks, as a result of the decision announced yesterday to call out the 1914 young men and the elder classes of the reservists, it is stated. The reservists will be equipped and ready for the field in a few days.

MORE TROOPS HURRIED UP.

All night long troops from the south and west of France have been arriving at the capital and passing by rail around the city to the locations in the encircling fortifications to which they have been assigned.

There is great activity on the part of the municipal military administration in completing the details of the plans for the defence of Paris.

PEOPLE LEAVING THE CAPITAL.

No official information regarding the military situation on the frontiers had been made public up to noon to-day.

The unusual animation to be noticed on the streets of Paris to-day was caused chiefly by the thousands of persons who are preparing to leave the capital. People are departing and taking their families with them as a matter of prudence. It is felt here that the fewer the number of non-combatants in the city the better.

Tickets for trains leaving Paris today to the west and the south were all sold out last night.

THE BRITISH HELD ON TILL REINFORCED BY THE FRENCH

Neutral Diplomats Sent Account to Washington of Plucky Fight--Allies are Encouraged

Washington, Aug. 31.—Seventy thousand British troops, for the last three days held in check two hundred thousand German troops until relieved by French reinforcements, according to information here today through neutral diplomats. The advices did not give the place of battle.

Although the German forces broke through the British lines in many places, the English held their own until French reinforcements arrived and then retired in good order. Military experts of the allied forces were reported to have been greatly encouraged by the manner in which the British forces withstood the superior forces of the enemy. The information came from Paris through diplomatic sources.

Protest By Great Britain.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Great Britain has joined with France in objecting to the purchase by the United States of any German liners in connection with the plan to build up an American merchant marine.

Move Capital to Bordeaux.

France is considering the advisability of moving the seat of her government from Paris to Bordeaux as a precautionary measure, according to official advices received here to-day.

All Safe in Brussels.

Washington, Aug. 31.—All foreigners are safe in Brussels, according to a message received today from American Minister Whitlock. He reported that the German occupation of Brussels was completed by General Von Luettwitz, that a civil government was being established and that excellent order prevailed.

Slavs in Germany Mutiny; Kill Officers, Aid Russia

London, Aug. 31.—According to The Times' St. Petersburg correspondent, Russia's appeal to the Poles to re-unite against the common Teutonic foe, has had an extraordinary effect among the Slav soldiers in the German service.

Information received in St. Petersberg, it is said, indicates that the Polish soldiers belonging to the Sixth Breslau Army Corps, serving on the western frontier, mutinied and killed their officers

The Slav regiments in the Austrian service are also declared to be notoriously disaffected. The Novoe Vremya states that one whole Austrian regiment went over to the Russian side.

WHAT IS COUNCIL DOING?

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir:

What is the City of Peterborough doing towards a relief fund? Special funds are all well enough, but they do not help us to face the situation here in Peterborough. What is the Council doing?

PATRIOT.

ACCURATE WAR NEWS

In the midst of a multitude of reports and rumors from all sources, much of which is given unrevised publicity by many papers, it is a fine thing that there is at least one great newspaper which maintains its standard of authenticity.

It seems scarcely necessary to state that this newspaper is the NEW YORK HERALD, which, in its daily and Sunday issues, not only contains the most extensive, comprehensive and authentic war news, but presents it with a rare clearness.

At the head of the war desk is the ablest foreign news editor in America, and he is surrounded by a staff of a dozen men, exclusive of artists and statisticians, who connote and weave together the necessary fragmentary cable news flashed past the rigid foreign censorships. The utmost care is held with reference to names, dates, titles, movements of troops, regiments, divisions and corps, as well as every phase of war which requires special clarity of presentation.

The newspaper world at large has long recognized the NEW YORK HERALD as a standard to be strived for, and in this most titanic of all wars the NEW YORK HERALD Sunday and daily, stands out greater than ever.

For all the war news, first and accurate, you must get the NEW YORK HERALD, daily and Sunday.

Order your copy at once, or send your subscription direct to the

NEW YORK HERALD.

BODY OF HUSBAND OF SLAIN WOMAN FOUND IN CREEK

Buffalo, Aug. 31.—On a slab in the county morgue lies the body of Frank Krupa. Near it lies that of his wife, who was found with her throat cut from ear to ear in a field near Grant street and Scajaquada creek. Krupa's body, the lungs filled with water, was found in the creek, 1,000 feet from the scene of the murder.

Inquest will be held Tuesday morning in city court into the death of Mrs. Krupa. No inquest will be necessary in Krupa's case. Medical Examiner Cook has decided he committed suicide by drowning.

"Except for a rosary, nothing was found in Krupa's pockets," said Dr. Cook. "There are two slight scalp wounds on the head, caused probably by the grappling irons used by police Wednesday and Thursday, and two flesh cuts on the neck.

"I think Krupa jumped into the creek soon after he informed neighbors of his wife's death. Bodies seldome come to the surface until the third day and Krupa's appeared this morning, the third day after the crime."

It is thought Krupa jumped into the creek about 600 feet from the point where his wife met death. The body was carried down stream into shallow water, where Pauline Nazid, No. 304 Amherst street, discovered it.

Discovery of the body confirmed one of Chief of Detective Taylor's theories concerning the case. He believes the liquor drank by Krupa at the wedding celebration prior to the crime partially crazed him.

SEEK SLAYER AS FUNERAL IS HELD

William Beierlein Buried This Afternoon While Sheriff and His Men Follow Up Clues Leading to Assassin,

Buffalo, Aug. 31.—Deputy sheriffs in automobiles left the office of Sheriff Becker at 5 o'clock this morning to pursue the trail of the mysterious man who shot Wm. B. Beierlein early Sunday morning near Swinebrook. Up to a late hour none of the various tips as to his whereabouts had materialized but the authorities were poking into every corner of the farming country. Sheriff Becker is inclined to believe that the man suspected by Beierlein's three brothers has made good his flight to the West. Hope of arrest in the case has dwindled.

Funeral services for the slain man were held this afternoon from his mother's residence, No. 451 Michigan Street, Following the burial Sheriff Becker will go into details of the shooting with Mrs. Beierlein in an effort to develop some new line of action. It was Mrs. Beierlein's description of the man who murdered her husband which led to the suspicion that a former Buffaloniam with a police and prison record had been hired to "get" Beierlein.

CITY COUNCIL HESITATES TO VOTE NUCLEUS AMOUNT FOR PATRIOTIC RELIEF FUND

Ald. Stratton's Motion That Council Votes $3,000 as a Starter for a Patriotic Relief and General Relief Fund, Together With $5 for Each Gallant Volunteer for the Empire's Defence Voted Down--Finance Committee Will Report on Just How Much Council Can Afford.

The initial steps toward forming a patriotic fund for the relief of the families of our volunteers for the front were inaugurated by the City Fathers last night.

In this connection of the Peterboro Cereal Co. will donate 300 bags of flour, and Mr. B. F. Ackerman $100.

Ald. Stratton suggested that were the ladies out of their fund were to furnish warm clothing, bedding, etc., for distressed families, the city might surely find the funds necessary for food, fuel and rent. Each soldier should be able to allow his family $5 a week, and surely it would be an easy matter for the city to do the rest. He moved that the council rate $5 for each volunteer going to the front, and $3,000 as the nucleus of a Patriotic Relief Fund and a General Relief Fund, to be supplemented by the government and citizens in general; assuming also that the county will donate a similar sum.

Ald. Stratton talked in a spirited and patriotic manner on his resolution, but could get no seconder.

Ald. Duncan would have seconded the resolution had Ald. Stratton eliminated the $5 each man clause; but the latter stood firm to his opinion, that those men who are plucky enough to volunteer in our Empire's defence should receive some personal demonstration of their home city's appreciation. What he proposed, he urged, is very small to what other cities are doing.

Ald. Langford would have seconded the resolution had it provided that the $3,000 go to the Patriotic Relief Fund Alone. Both he and Ald. Johnston inclined to the opinion that general relief, incident upon conditions engendered by the war should be handled by the Charity Board. His Worship did not like the word "charity" appearing in present circumstances.

Ald. Duncan contended that something must be done by the city at once to relieve the families of some volunteers.

The question was batted about as a ball on a tennis court for about an hour.

Finally, on motion of Ald. Johnston and Green, a Patriotic Relief Fund will be established, the Mayor to name a Committee in charge of same.

On Ald. Johnston's suggestion other cases other than those of families of volunteers will be relieved through the Charity Board.

Ald. Stratton again moved that $3,000 be voted the Patriotic Relief Fund but received no seconder.

Finance Minister Anderson thought this amount more than he could raise under existing conditions, and suggested $500 just now and more later if practicable.

Ald. Duffus and McIntyre moved that the Finance Committee report on what amount council can afford for the Patriotic Relief Fund.

Send in Contributions.

Citizens may send in contributions, either in money or commodities, for this fund at once to the Mayor.

Provincial Action

A provincial meeting to discuss ways and means for relieving industrial and other distress throughout this province will be held to-day in the City Hall, Toronto, at 2.30 p.m. His Worship and one other city representative will attend, and report on suggestions made and action taken to provide work and relief.

CITY'S ACCOUNT TRANSFERRED TO THE BANK OF MONTREAL

Will Float Short Line Securities for Small Amounts in Town and Country to Raise Money to Pay for Work by Present Unemployed--Hydro-Electric Will be Taken Over at Specified Date.

The City Fathers met in special session last night, to take up systematic measures for handling the patriotic fund for the relief of the families of volunteers for the front, and those in distress through war operations in Europe. Another main feature was the transfer of the city's bank account from the Bank of Toronto to the Bank of Montreal.

There were present his worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Anderson, McIntyre, Langford, Johnston, G. Walter Green, Duffus, A. H. Stratton, Duncan, and Saunders.

Mr. George A. Gillespie, M.P.P., spoke in the interest of this city securing the convention of Eastern Dairymen this year. He advised that the committee which will fix the place for the next convention will meet at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, next Tuesday, at 10 o'clock, and suggested that the city send a deputation there and bid for the convention. Council will consider action in this matter.

Preparing For Winter.

On motion of Alderman Stratton and Johnston, the Board of Education will be given free use of the city's road roller, with which to roll the grounds back of the old collegiate Institute building, in preparation for a free open air skating rink.

Committee of the Whole Report

Ald. Saunders submitted the following:

Gentlemen:—

Your Committee of the Whole beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That Barrie's Limited be allowed to place Luxfer Prisms in the sidewalk opposite their new building not greater in extent than 4 feet wide, according to plan supplied by them and attached to this report.

2. That the laying of sewers and sidewalks and the carrying on of street work which has been outlined for this year be curtailed to such an extent as the Board of Works may decide.

3. That Foley & Gleeson's cheque deposited with their tender for street paving be returned to them if they furnish a maintenance bond for like amount satisfactory to the City Solicitor.

4. That a committee be appointed to make financial arrangements to carry out the public undertakings of the City and to sell debentures which the City has and will have to sell, the committee to consist of the Mayor and Ald. Anderson, Chairman of the Finance Committee.

5. That the Mayor and Clerk be a committee to obtain information regarding the volunteers who have gone or go to Europe to take part with the British Army in the war.

6. That a request from the Board of Education for the use of the City's road roller to roll the grounds back of the old Collegiate Institute building be granted, the Board to have the use of the roller when it is brought back from the East Ward and to pay $5.00 a day and expenses for it.

7. That the City Solicitor ask to have the date in the proposed guarantee bond offered by Foley & Gleeson, at which the paving work must begin, extended to July 1st, 1915.

The report was adopted.

To Borrow $90,323.88

A bylaw to authorize the borrowing of $60,000 for current ordinary expenditures passed its several readings.

This money will be borrowed from the Bank of Montreal at 6 per cent. per annum.

A bylaw to borrow $90,323.88 from the Bank of Montreal, and to hypothecate certain city debentures to secure said loan, passed its several readings.

This means that the city has changed its banking account from the Bank of Toronto to the Bank of Montreal.

Finance Minister Anderson explained that while the Bank of Toronto had carried the City's account for years, they had recently positively refused to advance the city $100,000 necessary to take over the Hydro-Electric system, together with money for ordinary expenditures, imperative to find work for many unemployed. The city had heretofore paid the Bank of Toronto 5 per cent. on overdrafts and although the city offered any reasonable advanced rate of interest, they

Mr. Glenn Curtiss, famous aeronaut, made a successful flight on an aero plane which was built years ago by Mr. S. P. Langley, the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. The machine was brought from the institution for experiments, which completely vindicated Mr. Langley, who it will be recalled, died while ridicule was being heaped upon him in connection with his attempts to fly.

GOLF LOOKS EASY UNTIL YOU TRY IT

Fascination of the Game and its Effect on the Player

What is the secret of its fascination? Probably at bottom that it looks so easy and is so hard. Nothing can well seem simpler than hitting a stationary ball with a club. But in actual fact the human body proves to be curiously ill-adapted for any such task. The problem of dispatching that insolent ball in the desired direction becomes suddenly terrifying. Weak little men with hardly an effort send it flying a sixth of a mile. Huge burly fellows, with a blow that would shake St. Paul's, hit it 30 yards. It is the most baffling, tantalizing vexatious of games.

But if the sorrows of golf are great, so also are its rewards. There is a feel and a glow about a clean-hit drive, or an approach that dribbles up to the hole, that very few strokes at polo, cricket, lawn tennis, or billiards are able to evoke. In the course of a two hours' round a player has every variety of chance to cover himself with glory or disgrace. It depends altogether on his own skill and nerve and self-control. One suffers for one's own shortcomings; one profits by one's own prowess—with just enough luck and chance thrown in to remind one of the mutability of life. And to many people this sense of standing on one's own merits or defects, and of being solely responsible for victory or defeat, is part of the attraction of golf. It comforts the diffident, it inspires the self-reliant; and the essential companionableness of the game saves it from egotism. Judgment and concentration and the courage never to submit or yield, and evenness of temper; these are all tested and disciplined by golf; while as a physical exercise it has the supreme virtue of being equally good for the young, middle-aged, and the old of both sexes. A veteran of fifty-five with a touch of lumbago defeats a champion of twenty-seven; a boy of twenty disposes of famous and seasoned masters of the game who have been playing it longer than he has been alive. People may point at the golfer as a but too typical product of our soft and leisurely age; but golf itself, so long as it remains a game and does not grow into a disease, needs no excuse.

USES CATS AS HOUNDS

Big Felines Trail, Point and Retrieve Like Hunting Dogs

T. G. Nimmo, of Missouri, probably has the strangest "pack of hounds" in the world. It consists of two huge domestic cats, which he has been training for more than three years until they trail, point, and retrieve small games as well as any dogs ever seen in his district. The cats are named Tom and Jerry, and are used principally in hunting rabbits, tree squirrels and quail, though they have tracked and helped kill opossums and raccoons, both of which are plentiful in that part of the South.

According to their owner, who began training the cats when they were kittens, on sight of a rabbit, squirrel or quail they assume rigid positions, like that of a pointer, except that they move their tails slightly, and wait for him to come up and shoot the game they have found. They have never, since he finished their training, rushed forward to kill the game themselves, or to attempt to stalk it. When the shot is fired they retrieve the fallen animal or bird, and if it is not quite dead give it a quietus by biting it in the neck.

The especial value of these cats, Mr. Nimmo says, is in their ability to trail, capture, and kill wounded squirrels which flee to the tree tops after being shot.

Yacht Fortunes

Few men have spent so much money on racing yachts as Sir Thomas Lipton, and few have won so many races as he has. The cost of racing yacht construction varies considerably, depending a great deal upon the kind of material used in the hull.

Racers are built up nowadays of wood, composite, bronze, aluminium, and steel. A racing yacht of composite construction—steel frames planked with wood and sheathed with copper—will, if of 20 tons measurement, cost, roughly, $10,000; of 40 tons, $17,500; of 90 tons, $35,000.

The suits of canvas required for racing yachts generally need renewing every season, and the cost often runs into big figures. The cost of a racing season, inclusive of fitting out etc., would be: for a 20-ton boat, $3,000; 40-ton boat, $6,000; 90-ton boat, $10,000.

Surgery Extraordinary

There appears to be no limit to the daring and skill of the modern surgeons, which are nowadays so amazing that they verge on the miraculous. Recently there were the case of the restoration of a blind man's sight by transplanting sections of the cornea from a boy's eye which the surgeon had been obliged to remove; and of a girl, part of whose brain had been taken away, without the least harmful consequences.

In another case the heart of a woman, who had been stabbed, was sewn up at a Paris hospital; and a few minutes later she walked off as sound and well as ever. A Swiss surgeon removed the entire stomach of a patient, who gets along just as well without it, eating and digesting through the gullet; and a noseless man was provided with a new organ from one of his own fingers. The patient's arm was encased in plaster, and for four weeks he had to hold his "live" finger to his face until it took root, when it was amputated, to flourish as a nasal organ!

USES DOG AS CADDY

Scarcity of Boys Causes Innovation on English Links

An innovation was made by a player on the Tyneside golf course at Rytown, England, which is likely to be adopted on other courses. At Rytown, in order to overcome the difficulties created by a scarcity of caddies, the player in question trained his dog, a Labrador retriever, to carry his clubs and hunt for lost balls. The experiment was so successful that it may not be long before the professional caddies on most of the golf courses will find their occupation gone. The inventor of the idea first taught his dog to hunt for balls. After a few days this proved so successful that the retriever not only brought in the ball he had been bidden to find, but others which had been missing for months.

The dog's next lesson consisted in learning to carry the clubs. A strap four inches long with a hook in the end was sewn to the mouth of the club bag. The hook was then attached to the dog's collar, and the bag was hung in place by a girdle encircling the dog's body and the bag. In speaking of his dog caddy, the golfer said:

"It is curious that the idea has never been developed before. There is no question that my dog's caddy work is much superior to that performed by any human caddy I have ever used. The dog being used to shooting, keeps well in "at heel," so that I can snatch the various clubs from him without any difficulty. When I lose a ball I merely have to order him to "find dead bird." If he has to range a good deal I unhook the golf bag so as to give him more freedom in his movements. Since I have been using my retriever as a caddy I have never lost a ball, and my game has been much swifter.

"From every point of view the dog is so much the superior of the boy as a caddy that I expect to see dogs used universally in the future. With a dog as your caddy there is no one to hear you swear, and no one to make fun of your play."

The Homing Instinct

The story of an Airedale terrier that tramped back home 125 miles is only one of many such instances. It did the journey in twenty days. Another dog was taken a hundred miles by train, and arrived back home in three weeks. A fox terrier was taken a distance of 150 miles, but within a few days it found its way to its old home.

A farmer took a horse from an island to the mainland three miles by boat, worked it all day, and let it loose. The next morning he was surprised to find the horse grazing near his stable, though still very wet.

A tame pigeon used to accompany a boy to school, a distance of one and a half miles, remain during lessons, and return with the boy.

A grey cat was taken by train over sixty miles, and yet returned home in a few days; one walked a distance less than 282½ miles in four weeks.

Wireless Waves and Birds

Observations made in sections of world where there are many wireless stations indicate that birds are disturbed in a singular way by the wireless waves. It is stated that gulls are particularly the principal sufferers, but that also large numbers of doves are in some way prevented from finding their way home when there are wireless stations in the line of flight. This strange phenomenon is attributed to some effect of the ether waves not yet understood.

Accommodating Lights

Many apartment houses in Europe are equipped with electric lights which may be switched on when a person enters and which automatically extinguish themselves a few minutes later, when he has had time to reach his room.

Small Cooking Outfit

About the smallest cooking outfit yet designed consists of a six-inch electric stove, chafing dish, tea samovar, coffee percolator and nursery equipment all heated from a single unit.

WHERE FIRE-FLIES MAKE FLASHLIGHTS

Men and Women Wear Them While Travelling Through the Forests

Travellers and tourists in Mexico are invariably attracted by the wonderful skill and ingenuity displayed by the Indians in the making of miniature objects which they offer for sale. The little dolls, for instance of Cuernavaca, half-inch tall, and dressed in finely embroidered raiment, are the admiration of everyone who sees them.

But perhaps the most wonderful of all are the tiny dressed fleas which may be bought in Mexico City. They are all mounted in small boxes, which are little more than quarter-inch in dimension. There are a bride and bridegroom, the former with her bridal veil and orange blossoms, and the latter with his Prince Albert coat and silk hat. Latest dancers dressed in true Spanish dancing costumes, bull fighters in full regalia, and water carriers with their water jugs are also represented among the dressed fleas of Mexico City.

Some further interesting facts regarding Mexican insects are related in the "National Geographic Magazine." It appears that many of the Indian colors are made from Mexican insects, while one of the most remarkable of the many curious foods eaten by the natives is made from the egg of a species of marsh fly. This fly deposits its eggs in incredible quantities upon flags and rushes. The eggs are then gathered and made into cakes which are sold in the markets. These little cakes are somewhat like brickbats, and the Indians enjoy a meal of them with as good a stomach as white people enjoy cheese. The eggs resemble the fine fish roe, and when mixed with corn meal and fowl eggs form a staple article of diet, particularly during [illegible]

Incomes of Wealthy Germans

The following are stated to be the largest incomes in Germany: The Emperor. $5,500,000; Frau Bertha Krupp, over $4,500,000; Prince Henckel, $3,000,000; the Duke von Ujest, $1,500,000; and Herr Ziese, shipbuilder and landowner, about the same.

Chief Fire Ranger writes, "The fact of no fires the next summer is proof positive that the majority of them faithfully kept their pledge." During the course of a few months sixty-three Indians voluntarily visited the Chief's headquarters to discuss the plans of the Forestry Branch in the matter of conserving the remaining forests in Western Canada.

Many of these Indians are sufficiently well educated to serve as fire rangers, and, following its policy of obtaining the best men possible for this work, the Dominion Government has enlisted quite a number of Indians in the fire ranging service, for which their knowledge of the country and their enthusiasm for the work make them admirably adapted. Several towers have been established, enabling rangers to scan at one glance

The German attempt to give Belgium the "third degree" may react on the Kaiser and his country.

The death of Judge C. A. Dugue means a real public loss. He was severe—and so is justice.

The Next Important Step

The next vital step in the resurrection of Mexico will be the election of a regular and constitutional president of the republic. In the memorable agreement duly signed and promulgated March 26, 1913—more than a year and five months ago—by the chiefs and officers in command of the Constitutionalist army occupies Mexico City Venustiano Carranza, or whoever may succeed him in command of the army, will be appointed ad interim head of the executive power, and he shall call a general election as soon as peace is established and shall deliver the power to the man who shall be elected."

So far as is known, the chiefs and officers of the Constitutionalist army have thus far faithfully carried out the numerous articles of their covenant throughout nearly a year and a half—a fact that entitles them to greater confidence and consideration than many persons are disposed to accord to them. Gen. Carranza has appeared to have adhered strictly to the letter and spirit of the agreement to which he was a party in the beginning of the revolution. He now even insists upon being called chief or head of the executive power in the terms of the agreement and not "provisional president."

Consequently it is only fair to think that Gen. Carranza and the men about him will meet their obligation with reference to the election of a president. The fact that even Gen. Villa insists that there shall be a civil government, not a military dictatorship, is a good omen.

Good-by Old Backache Nerviline Will Fix You

Stiffness is Rubbed Right Out; Every Sign of Pain Disappears.

Gee whiz—think of it!

No more stomach dosing necessary to cure your lame back.

Every trace of lameness, every bit of stiffness, every sign of weakness in the back's muscles can be rubbed away for all time to come by good old "Nerviline."

No other liniment can do the work so quickly, can penetrate so deeply, can bring ease and comfort to the back-weary sufferer as Nerviline invariably does.

Backache isn't the only malady Nerviline is quick to cure. For lumbago or sciatica you would go far to find relief so speedy as Nerviline gives. For chronic rheumatism there are pain-destroying properties in Nerviline that give it first rank. The way it limbers up a stiff joint and takes soreness out of strained or rheumatic muscles is simply a wonder.

If you have an ache or a pain anywhere, if you have a sore back, a stiff neck, a stiff joint, a strained muscle—if you have lumbago, congested chest or sore throat, just try Nerviline. Rub it on plentifully—it won't blister, it can't do anything but cure you quickly. The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, of course, but you can, from any dealer, also get the 25c. small size of Nerviline, the king of all pain-relieving remedies.

British Victory In North [illegible]

At last the great North sea fleets, which have had little mention for the last few days on account of the engrossing land events which are riveting the attention of the public, have been heard from.

The British dash into German waters in the immediate neighborhood of Heligoland, was a bold and well conducted venture, carried out according to the best traditions of the navy which has in the past boasted such heroes as Nelson, Rodney, Howe and Drake.

The Germans are reported to have lost three cruisers and two torpedo boat destroyers, besides sustaining other damage, while it is claimed that the British squadron was practically uninjured.

Though, compared with the tremendous fleets which represent the mustered forces of Great Britain and Germany, the ships which fought off Heligoland must be regarded as outposts, the clash was more than a skirmish—it was a real battle, rising to the dignity and magnitude of war on a considerable scale. Undoubtedly the chief object of the British squadron is essaying this attack was to feel out the German positions, and it seems to have accomplished this, besides inflicting severe loss on its antagonists.

WAR DOES NOT STOP WRIGLEY

Goes Rright Along With New Building in Toronto

BUSINESS IS GROWING

More Room Needed to Turn Out Wrigley's Spearmint Gum

Work has been stopped on many Toronto buildings pending a settlement of the war, but Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Company, Limited, manufacturers of the famous Wrigley's Spearmint, are going right ahead, and excavating is now in progress for the largest and finest chewing gum factory in the British Empire, which will be built on Carlaw Avenue, Toronto. Such great advances have been made in the Wrigley business in the last four years that a large plant was determined necessary. So many improvements have been made in the process of chewing gum manufacture and methods of packing, such as air-tight wax wrappers, that special construction will add much greater efficiency. The building is to be an all-steel concrete and brick structure of the best known pattern, four storeys in height with quarter-cut oak trim.

The action of this firm in going along with its plans in spite of the war is commended by the Toronto newspapers, who appreciate the fact that it will keep busy many laborers and artisans who would otherwise be out of work.

Probably many of the Canadian volunteers will carry Wrigley's Spearmint to the front in the war, as did the Greeks in their war with Turkey. The soldiers found it a great thirst quencher on long marches and in battle, chewing gum served the same purpose, as well as steadying them under the nerve racking strain.

MONK EASTMAN IS NABBED IN BUFFALO

Buffalo, Aug. 31.—Detective William Jordan of the superintendent's staff made an important arrest when he got Monk Eastman, gang leader and New York thug, also a Sing Sing long term man. Monk was walking across the Evans Street bridge with two pals and a valise. Jordan questioned them regarding the valise; was not satisfied with their answers and brought them in.

Monk Eastman is a gunman, having drawn more than once. For some years he was allowed to practice his profession without molestation in New York, but an especially raw piece of work, engineered with the help of the notorious Paul Kelly, Italian gangster, proved his undoing. They tried to separate a young millionaire from his role on 42nd Street, not knowing that a battalion of straight-shooting private detectives surrounded the gilded youth. Monk went down for ten years at the hands of Recorder Goff but was paroled at the end of five years by the parole board on which George A. Lewis of Buffalo sat.

It is believed he has been mixed up in numerous postoffice robberies in eastern New York recently. Thirty pearl-handled pocket knives, a dozen unset diamonds and some cheaper jewelry were found on them, as were a bottle of nitro-glycerine and some drills.

They are being held on an open charge at the present time. One of Monk's pals served six years in Elmira and ten years in Auburn and though the police do not recognize the other, they believe he is wanted. They gave their names as John Marvin, Joseph Brown and Thomas Fitzgerald. May Berk, 24 years old, also a member of the gang, was later arrested in a South Division Street rooming house.

RELATIVES SEEK EACH OTHERS LIVES IN BIG CARNAGE

Niagara Falls, Aug. 31.—Many residents of this city are deeply interested in the outcome of the European war. No matter which side proves victorious there will be rejoicing and also heartaches.

F. C. Fagard, a merchant on Falls Street, believes that he has more relatives in the conflict than any other person in Niagara Falls. He has 13 cousins under arms. Two are in the French army, five with the German army and six with the Belgian army. Mr. Fagard is a Belgian and has resided in this city several years.

Beyond the meagre news, received on postal cards, that they had joined their respective commands, Mr. Fagard has received no information from his relatives.

Eugene Gerard, steward of the Shredded Wheat Company, has seven cousins in the conflict. Four are with the German army and three with the French army. A brother of Mr. Gerard married a German and took up his residence in France and a sister married a German and went to Germany to live. The cousins are believed by Mr. Gerard to be opposing each other in the Vosges mountains. Mr. Fagard's cousins are all believed by him to be fighting in Belgium.

Mrs. Eric Krueger of Whirlpool Street, has three brothers in the German army.

Many other relatives of Falls citizens are with the British army and they are all anxiously awaiting information as to their safety or whereabouts.

William Cartilidge, aged 10, was killed in North Vancouver, beneath the wheels of his father's wagon near his home.

Mrs. A. Blackman of Burnaby, disappeared on July 14 and has not been heard of since. Her friends are searching for her.

Many camps have been robbed in the vicinity of North Vancouver. The police believe that an organized gang of hoboes is at work.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,860 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,806 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,776 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

City's Account Transferred To Bank Of Montreal

still refused any further advances. He and his worship then interviewed the General Manager of the Bank of Montreal in Montreal, who consented to advance all the money this city needs at 6 per cent., with a modified rate as soon as normal financial conditions are reached.

Ald. Stratton thought that had the city advertised its need of money, competition would have engendered, resulting in securing the money from some bank at a less rate than 6 per cent.

His Worship took exception to this, advanced that it was well known by all local bankers that the city needed money, yet none came forward; and eulogized the Bank of Montreal for coming to the city's rescue in its hour of need.

Short Time Securities.

A bylaw authorizing the city to raise money for public work on short time securities for amounts from $1.00 up passed its readings.

His Worship offered that Mr. Burnham, M. P., and Mr. James Lynch, had offered to take $2,000 and $1,000 worth of these securities, respectively; and a considerable sum can be raised in the city in this way. This will enable the corporation to furnish considerable work for the unemployed.

The arrangement with the Bank of Montreal enables the city to take over the Power plant for Hydro-Electric purposes this month.

GERMAN WOMEN HELD AS SPIES

London, Aug. 31.—The Duchess of Marlborough presided at a crowded meeting in connection with the Women's Emergency Corps which was held at the Shaftesbury Theatre. The services which women will be able to duchess spoke of the great variety of services which women will be able to perform in place of the men who have gone to the front.

She urged that provision be made for a fund for the payment of a living wage to workers and recommended the establishment of provision depots where surplus food could be distributed.

The American women living in London are working hard to prevent distress. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen is in attendance daily at a factory which she has been instrumental in establishing, and where 20 women are employed. Mrs. Owen hopes there will be established a system of workshops all over London which will be managed by American women.

The American Woman's Hospital for 200 patients will be ready for occupancy in less than a fortnight. Mrs. Archer Huntington has contributed $1500 to the fund.

It was learned that some of the German and Austrian women whom the British foreign office has been allowing to leave here for the continent have carried back information of such value to the enemy that the Britons have been forced to prevent any more women of German and Austrian nationality from going home. A decision to this effect was communicated to the American embassy, which is representing German and Austrian interests.

BACK TO THE LAND

A Son's Observations on His Father's Choice of Professions

A bright young man living in a city dropped into our office recently for a chat on farming matters. The young man was filled with enthusiasm in general, and had a genuine case of the "back to the land" fever. He was looking for a farm location.

"My father was a good man and a good farmer, and particularly good and kind to his children," the young man stated. "When we were children we worked on the farm, but our lives were made easy by the hard labor of father and mother. We were sent to school whenever possible. The one thing for which my parents were to blame in raising their children was that they forced us into grooves of life for which we were not prepared. Henry was raised with the one idea of being a lawyer, and a poor lawyer he proved to be. My own life was shaped for the ministry, and in spite of my disinclination, my desire not to offend my mother's lifelong wishes led me to accept the charge. Time proved that neither my brother nor I were fitted for the life-work for which we were prepared by our parents. The regret of my life is that my father did not take me into comradeship in the conduct of the farm, that he did not teach me the things he was a lifetime learning that he did not impress on my mind the advantages of farming, the only life for me worth living, for now I am bound to be a farmer just as my brother has become."

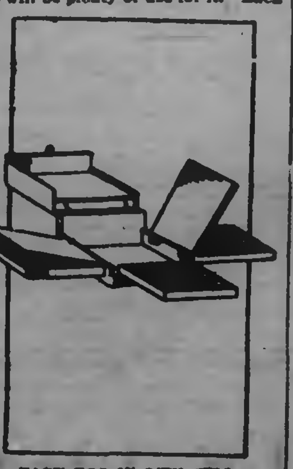
As this young man told us of this personal history, we could not help but think of the many parents the country over who are making the same mistake with their children. There are many boys who leave the farm simply because their parents do not teach them the advantages of a good farm, and that a good farmer is as much to be respected and honored by his fellow men as a good lawyer or a good preacher.

We recently visited the farm of a prominent breeder of pure-bred cattle. He had sent his only son, who had previously wanted to leave home, to the agricultural college. When the boy came home he was full of enthusiasm and interested in the farm and herd. He told his father what he had learned in college about farming and about stock, and made some suggestions, later carried out, which the father told us really made him money and benefited the farm. The boys and girls are the most important crop on the farm after all, and the farm is the best place to keep them. They will not all stay there but they ought to know that the farm is not such a bad place after all, before they get ready to leave it.—The Maritime Farmer.

EGG CARRYING CASE

Layers With Many Compartments Fit Over One Another

Since the parcel post has been in effect, inventors have been busy turning out all sorts of carrying devices. A woman has planned the egg case shown in the illustration, and if it carries eggs as safely as she claims there will be plenty of use for it. Each side of this case is a different height and to each side is hinged a flat box that is divided into numerous cells, each just large enough to hold an egg. One side for example, is the full depth of the case, while the others are respectively three-fourth, one-half and one-fourth of the depth. So that when the different boxes are filled and their lids fastened down they are turned into the central space and form four separate layers, each containing a certain number of eggs and with each egg in a separate cell.



EACH EGG IN OWN CELL.

MAINE SHIP LOST, CAPTAIN DROWNED

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 31.—Nine members of the crew of the schooner Emily P. Wright, picked up on the mainland yesterday by Brazos island life-savers, told of the foundering of the vessel Saturday, off the Mexican coast, 100 miles south of the Rio Grande, Capt. Peterson, they said, was drowned.

The ship was owned in Portland, Me., and was bound from Galveston for Tampico with a cargo of war munitions.

Thomas A. McIntyre, a prominent hardware merchant of Grand Forks, B.C., has mysteriously disappeared.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Fog Gun Started by Wireless

A system of wireless control that is now being applied successfully at several points in Scotland seems to have solved the problem of distant control of acetylene fog guns located at points difficult of access, and provides a means by which a number of such installations may be operated from one wireless station without the necessity for visiting the different signals, except for making repairs and replenishing the supply of gas. The gun automatically feeds and fires itself at regular intervals until stopped or until the supply of acetylene runs out, and the wireless control simply provides a means of starting it when there is a fog and stopping it when the fog clears, without going near the signal. Furthermore, the wireless apparatus is so arranged and tuned that it is not interfered with by the more powerful waves that may be sent out by passing ships or by other wireless stations.

TRAINING WILD ANIMALS TO ACT BEFORE THE FILM

Ambitious wild animals, that until lately have hoped for fame only in the circus or on the vaudeville stage, have found a new field for exercising their talent. A private dramatic school has been established near Fort Lee, New Jersey, which devotes its time exclusively to training beasts for the moving picture stage. Paul Bourgeois, a young French animal tamer, first thought of teaching the jungle inhabitants to appear before the camera, and he immediately founded the school of which he is still director. When a film requiring beasts is to be made, the animals are first trained regularly in their simple movements until the performance becomes a habit, since they can respond only to instinct, not to intelligence. Originality must be used by the trainers to make their charges do the right thing at exactly the proper time for the camera men. For this purpose common devices are coating tree branches with honey to keep Bruin aloft the entire length of a scene, or exposing a chicken off the stage when the fox should jump out of a window.

The Delusion of "Nowadays"

Text: "There be many servants nowadays that break away every man from his master."

That word "Nowadays" has a familiar ring. We really hadn't thought it to be in the Bible. Somebody said it when you were a child: "Nowadays you don't know whom to trust," and you rather believed it and felt that the speaker's youth must have been spent in a golden age.

Behind the hopelessness in looking forward, which we call pessimism, there is always a reason in the character of the speaker. He may be wicked, he may be ignorant, or of an erroneous doctrinal outlook, but the gloom is ever within his own soul.

In this Biblical instance the speaker was a wicked man. The chapter is entitled "Nabal, the churlish man." It is an angry-looking word, that adjective, churlish, and Nabal at once looms up in your imagination with a forbidding scowl and a clenched fist. The outlawed David needed provisions for his followers, and, hearing of Millionaire Nabal, who lived at Carmel and had three thousand sheep and one thousand goats in his pasture, he sent to ask for a supply of food.

Nabal's answer was short. You can almost hear him blare it through his nose, or hiss it through his teeth: "Who is David? Many apprentices leave their masters nowadays. Shall I then take the food from my own workmen to feed a ragged regiment of adventurers?" And he turned away to superintend his sheep-shearing. He declined the subscription with a fine display of angry scorn.

So here is one type of the pessimist in a wicked rich man. A man who has made money honestly is invariably an optimist. But a usurer, a miser, a crusher of men, is usually morally and socially a croaker.

Nabal was impatient with the aspiration of common folks. He called the patriot David a runaway. He was like the Earl of Luxmore was towards John Halifax, gentleman. The old aristocrat grumbled: "Nowadays every digger wants to rule; nowadays every shopkeeper wants to go to Parliament; nowadays every apprentice wants to wear a silk hat." So Nabal was against reform. A new king? Well, Saul has done well enough for me. A better king? Would that make my sheep give more wool? We want no unrest. This David agitation is unsettling business, I tell you. The upstart should be put down."

The Nabals all have great respect for the existing order of things. Those of King James' day were loath to give up the doctrine of the divine right of kings. Those of King George's reign have fought very stubbornly for the divine right of lords. To them these are evil times when a Welsh lawyer can be Chancellor of the Exchequer. "Nowadays anybody can get to the highest office in the land."

Nabal's own churlish soul gave him his view of the world. He found a certain comfort in believing the whole nation to be retrograding. There is no nobility in a crotchet. He cannot believe that amiability and sincerity exist. Tact, to him, is nothing but hypocrisy. "Who is David? An adventurer, I tell you. Advise him to go back to his master and keep his place in which he was born."

Ignorance is often the parent of pessimism. Nabal had insufficient data. He was so busy looking after the sheep that he had no idea of popular movements. He had not felt the nation's pulse. Some people are pessimists because they never go away from home. Why, the Philistines knew more of Israelitish affairs than Nabal did. They were already calling David the king of the land. They knew the song, "David hath killed his tens of thousands!" But Nabal, a neighbor and a fellow-tribesman, did not know of the reforms that were leaping up about him. He saw David's famished and ill-clad followers, and judged them by their ragged uniforms. They must have looked like Washington's barefooted men at Valley Forge, or like Garibaldi's half-naked men in the Alps. So the grouch of Carmel mistook progress for rebellion.

Dead Cats as Scarecrows

A novel method of scaring away birds was adopted by a Kentish farmer. He had killed a number of cats, had them stuffed, and placed them in various attitudes among the branches of the fruit trees in his orchard

TEETH AND APPLES

The Use of the One as Food Will Preserve the Other

Dr. Sims Wallace, late dental surgeon to the London Hospital, voices the astounding belief that there are some 21,000,000 teeth in Great Britain ruined through eating sweets. He urges the adoption of a diet containing a good quantity of farinaceous food in a form which will stimulate mastication—brown bread, and the eating of fresh fruit with every meal.

The importance of the proper care of teeth during childhood is becoming universally recognised, and the London County Council established a centre for the treatment of dental troubles of schoolchildren with X-rays.

According to investigation it was found that about 39 per cent. of the children of well-to-do parents have bad teeth, as against 27 per cent. from poorer homes. This is probably accounted for by the fact that, as the latter have more coarser food, their teeth have more work to do, and are consequently stronger and cleaner. Their sweets are also fewer, and are mostly of the cheap, boiled sugar variety. These sweets break up cleanly in the mouth, whereas the caramels and chocolates eaten by the children of indulgent parents cling to the teeth and ferment.

Boys and girls should be given fruit in preference to sweets. Nuts and all hard fruits encourage mastication. The best fruit for this purpose is the apple. Eaten at the conclusion of a meal it leaves the teeth and mouth sweet and clean.

Our Debt to Negroes

We gladly gulp down the soothing drug the doctor brings us, but we rarely wonder in what romantic way it first came to light, or who took all the risks of testing it upon himself.

It was Humboldt, the great discoverer, who many years ago brought to light the fact that the South Americans and Indians could bear fatigue and hunger to an extraordinary extent by chewing the leaves of a certain shrub. The name of that shrub was coca, from which we now get the wonderful drug cocaine.

And how many of the millions of invalids who have been indebted to the tonic virtues of quassia know that we owe its discovery and name to one Quassi, a negro slave, who had successfully experimented with it during the terrible fevers in Surinam?

It was in the early part of the seventeenth century that the wife of the Viceroy of Peru was attacked by a severe ague, and the natives induced her to try quinine, with such surprising success that she brought the good news to Europe.

Some Schoolboy Howlers

"The people of India are divided into casts and outcasts."

"The seven great powers of Europe are gravity, electricity, steam, gas, flywheels, motors, and Mr. Lloyd George."

"Tennyson wrote a beautiful poem called 'In Memorandum.'"

"During the Interdict in John's reign, births, marriages, and deaths were not allowed to take place."

The following were given as examples of the uses of ships: "To go to teach countries and teach savages how to dress"; "To poets, who can get their living writing about ships"; "To take Mrs. Pankhurst to a lonely island"; "For the god-parents of a child who is to be confirmed to send a letter to him."

Sheet Rubber in Armor

The British admiralty is experimenting with warship armor composed of thin sheets of steel with a sheet of rubber between, the theory being that the rubber will stop shells as sand bags stop bullets.

Convertible Wagons

Children's wagons can be converted into sleds by the use of new runners with clamps to engage the wheels.

Nature's Aeroplane

For experiments with model aeroplanes a French inventor mounted the wings and tail of a crow on a wire frame.

Measures the Steam

A recording meter to measure the amount of steam used in an industrial plant has been invented to check waste.

A Wise Player

Ira Thomas some day will probably be an officer in that oft-predicted capital-labor war, and Ira will not be a captain in the army of labor either. Ira, unless something unforeseen intervenes, will be a general in the camp of capital. The former Tiger catcher owns 34 houses and 2 stores and he is looking for investments of the same kind. In the five world's series in which he has figured, first with Detroit and later with the Philadelphia Athletics Thomas received $11,314 as his share of the spoils.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND

Don't grumble or fume when tough
work lies ahead,
But make up your mind, man, to
do it!
Show courage and pluck, don't
coward's tears shed,
If quickly you'd see yourself through
it.
Should gathering clouds your horizon
obscure,
And the storm in its fury burst,
Don't flinch from the ordeal, but
bravely endure,
And boldly prepare for the worst.

Be manly, and tackle your duty each
day.
Prove you've nerve and the will
power to do it.
Help your fellows along, who have dropped by the way.
Give cheerfully; you'll never rue it.
'Tis a kind action here, and a little help there
From a comrade who's willing to give it
That heartens a fellow his trouble to bear,
And finally sees him outlive it.

If e'er you are tempted to whimper
and doubt
When the pathway of duty is rough,
Remember the heart that is steadfast and stout
Is the one that withstands a rebuff.
And tackle with confidence, valor,
and skill
All hindrances placed in your way.
You'll quick climb the hill if you work with a will.
Make your mind up, and do it
"to-day."

MRS. R. WARE

It's not that society women have lost confidence in the police force, but big, ugly dogs have become fashionable in New York. Mrs. Richard Ware, who returned from Europe, brought with her as one of many trophies a big, savage-looking Belgian "police dog." It's a bold highwayman that will attempt to molest Mrs. Ware when Prinz is on police duty.

CANADA'S LOG RULES

Several Different Measurements Exist Throughout Canada

It is interesting to compare the International Log Rule with those in most common use in Canada. A sixteen-foot log twelve inches in diameter contains, according to the International Rule, 106 feet, board measure, of lumber; according to the Scribner Rule, used in the Prairie Provinces, 75 feet, board measure, and according to the Doyle Rule, in most common use in Eastern Canada, only 64 feet, board measure, of lumber. The disparity is even greater in smaller logs and it is small logs which make up the greater part of the cut in Canada to-day. Thus, so far as stumpage dues are concerned, it is safe to say that very often the lumbermen pay for only half the merchantable lumber the average log really contains. It is significant that when the British Columbia government recently decided to increase the royalty paid on timber cut in the interior of the provinces, it accomplished that purpose merely by stipulating that the British Columbia Log Rule should henceforth be used in that region instead of the Doyle Rule, thus increasing by 45 per cent. the amount of estimated lumber in the logs cut.

It is possible that in other parts of Canada the bonus paid by the lumbermen in addition to stumpage dues makes up for this loss in scaling. But, other things being equal, lumbermen operating under a lenient rule have an unfair advantage over those whose logs are more closely scaled and the only final remedy would seem to be the adoption of a general rule such as the International, or, better still, the substitution of cubic measurement of logs, a practice which has long been in operation in Europe where high lumber prices make accuracy not only desirable but necessary.

Yesterday's Police Court.

At yesterday's police court, Albert Parker, a blacklister, was charged with having been under the influence. Albert, at Chief Thompson's request, was remanded for a week. A local young man was fined $5 for having been drunk. The $5 was imposed because it was a Sunday drunk.

City Work For Workers.

Within the next few days local capital will be given an opportunity to provide work for the unemployed was the substance of a brief address by Mayor Buller yesterday afternoon, in replying to a deputation of 50 workingmen, who with Mr. J.H. Burnham, waited upon the Mayor to urge that the city provide work for local men.

Juvenile Court.

Three boys aged 12 years were charged at the Juvenile Court yesterday with stealing $15 worth of tools and hid them in the bushes. They pleaded guilty. The theft was committed on Sunday. The mother of one of the boys spoke for her son, who is only twelve years old. She was willing to use a strap ion the boy but did not want him "sent down." The boys were let go with a warning.

Back to Blue Law Crime.

Mr. Dumble, police magistrate, advocated yesterday a renewal of the former system of putting petty offenders in the "stocks." That is, seating them on a bench, confining their ankles between hollowed out logs so that the rabble can pelt the prisoner with ripe eggs, dead cats, tomato cans or decisions from the police court. It would seem that the world is now two laps, at least, ahead of such anachronistic methods.

Local Chauffeurs.

The Government is calling for 100 motor car volunteers, 72 artificers (mechanics or car repairers) and 120 cleaners for immediate enlistment. The latter will receive $1.60 a day, while the wages to drivers and repairers ranges from $1.60 to $2.80. These men will work on lines of communication to the Allies, probably to the Canadian troops alone and need herd no more serious explosion that the noise of a busted tire.

A Lindsay Mix-up.

At the last council meeting Dr. Irvine, Chairman of the Board of Works, saw fit to hand in his resignation. Dr. Irvine said that he had been hampered in his work, and that slanderous attacks had been made on his work and character by the Mayor. He was a busy man and did not want the position in the first place. He then commended the work of Commissioner Williams. The Doctor acknowledged that he had made mistakes; there is still left about $200 worth of street oil, that was bought early in the summer but since this had to be carried over till next year, he and Commissioner Williams were willing to pay the interest on this money invested.—The Warder.

A Cloudy Weather Ball Game.

The ball game at Riverside Park yesterday was somewhat slow. The threatening weather seemed to take all heart out of the players. The lowering clouds even seemed to put a damper on the yelling of the fans. However, the game was played through and ended just in time to let the fans away for their respective homes, before the rain fell. Crossing Hunter Street bridge, several dainty clad fanettes seemed, when the rain began, to fall, and they gathered their respective skirts up to save what a sailor would call their "top sails that they had forgotten to fit to the two masts their main sails. This is however, a degression from the ball game story. Tracey pitched a good game for the Petes. He was hit but he fooled the Erie bunch. The final score stood, 3—2, Erie.

WINTER TRAINING DONE AT HALIFAX

Valcartier Too Chilly for Manoeuvring—Quebec Then a Closed Port

Ottawa, Sept. 1.—Late in the year the mobilization headquarters for the Canadian troops will likely be changed from Valcartier to Halifax. The winter is very severe at Valcartier, and there would be difficulty in procuring and training the men in the heavy snow. In addition Quebec is a closed port in the winter, and the transports would have to be sent from Halifax or St. John.

Mobilization All Winter.

Mobilization will continue, it is expected, all winter, and as fast as troops are despatched to the front others will be trained and prepared to go to the aid of the Empire. It is believed that before the winter is over Canada will have a hundred thousand men in the battle line. Col. Hughes has already announced that two more army divisions will be mobilized, and if required it is expected there will be four or five divisions sent.

City Regiments Called.

In addition, it is expected that the militia regiments in all the cities will be mobilized, so that they can get in training without delay by using their city Armouries. Recruits for the overseas forces would be asked for and drafted as the numbers warranted. The city regiments on peace footing number 20,000 men, but if mobilized and recruited up to full strength they would number 40,000.

RELIEF BUREAU IS STARTED IN ROME

Needy Americans Get Aid; Few Destitute But all Eager to Return to United States

Rome, Aug. 30.—Advices from Vienna report that Henry S. Breckinridge, Assistant Secretary of War at Washington, arrived from Berlin Wednesday and began the work of aiding needy Americans. Aided by Frederick C. Penfield, the American ambassador, he opened a relief bureau in the Hotel Imperial.

It is estimated that there are between 400 and 500 Americans in Vienna, a majority of whom are prosperous but anxious to return home quickly. There is a much larger number in Budapest, where Captain Cross has already gone with $1,500 in gold. According to latest information, the total number of Americans now in Austria-Hungary is about 1,900.

KAISER INVITES OVERTURES

New York, Aug. 31.—Count Johann von Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States, said to-day:

"The war has been fought and won," and followed immediately with these highly significant words:

"Germany did not begin the war; she did not want the war. She is ready for peace at any moment."

HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH AFTER THIS TREATMENT

(Helps to Beauty)

Science has aided in simplifying the banishing of hairy growths from the face, and according to a beauty specialist, the most effective treatment yet devised consists of applying a delatone paste to the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. When this paste is removed and the skin washed every trace of hair has vanished. Be sure to get real delatone.

GERMANS ARE UNSUCCESSFUL IN CUTTING OFF ALLIES

Every Move Made by the Kaiser's Troops Has Been Designed to Surround the French and British and Shut Them Off From Their Base of Supplies

London, September 1. — Concentrating all of their enormous energies along the French left and centre, the German army was today fighting with redoubled energy in another attempt to crush completely the allied armies. It is now certain that every move made by the Germans for the last 10 days has been designed to surround the allies and cut them off from their bases of supplies. That these efforts have failed have been due to the British-French plan of strategy, which provides for the withdrawal of the entire battle line as soon as the attack reaches a certain height. By adhering to this plan the allied armies are still intact and in withdrawing they have inflicted enormous damage to the enemy. Meanwhile hints of important developments are being given at the war office. Some reports suggest that the British have landed another large force in Belgium, and that they are contemplating an offensive movement aimed at the German communications, and possibly to try to flank the German right wing in French territory.

Meanwhile the operations in the East are reported to be working out exactly as planned. It is stated that while the Germans are heavily reinforcing their lines, and at certain points have essayed the offensive, they have been unable to check the Russian forward movement. Circumstantial rumours of disaster to the British expedition brought an emphatic denial from the Paris war office to-day.

Paris, Sept. 1.—Stubbornly holding the line from near Rheims to Lafere, which guards the alleys of the Oise and Aisne rivers, the combined French and British armies again to-day felt the whole weight of the German assault. Four German armies, those of the Grand Duke Albrecht, and Generals Von Klug, Von Buelow and Von Hausen, are pounding at the French flank; which has continued to crumple ever since the frontier was crossed by the German hosts. These are the armies that have been assigned to besiege Paris but so far they have been unable to inflict a decisive defeat on the allied columns. The latter, intact, are following out a defensive plan and as they slowly retire from position to position, carefully selected in advance, are inflicting enormous damage on the enemy. In the centre the army of the German Crown Prince has penetrated France through Luxemburg and the "Gap of Treves," and a general battle is admitted in official reports to be taking place in the Mezieres-Rocroi region, and along the Meuse to Verdum. The French army in Lorraine continued today to act on the offensive. They have shoved the Germans back from their immediate front, and the war office says that "Successes here are material and important." Paris was quiet today, although the exodus from the city continued.

MAY AVENGE LOUVAIN.

A story has been circulated that the Russians are preparing to avenge Louvain by treating the city of Berlin in the same way as the Germans treated that city. Many of the populace who can get away are going to Norway, Denmark and Switzerland.

TROOPS LAND AT OSTEND TO ATTACK ENEMY IN REAR

Immense Number of Troop Said to Have Been Disembarked At Belgian Seaport During the Past Few Days

London, Tuesday, Sept. 1.— A despatch from Antwerp says:

"Large numbers of troops were landed secretly at Ostend all during the night and marched south, according to reliable information here. The troops are believed to be English forces on their way to strike the rear of the Germans. It is said that several British transports have been lying off Ostend today, and that other troops will be landed tonight." The despatch continues: "The enemy has abandoned the region of Merchsoutem and Vilvourden, also the Huydenburg, Tremelon and Haecht provinces. At Aerschot Germans are constructing entrenchments, which appear to represent a position for falling back upon. This afternoon violent cannonading was heard nine miles south of Antwerp. Aerschot is 24 miles to the north-east of Brussels. Merchmonten, Vilvourden and Haecht lie between Antwerp and Brussels."

In The Problem Of The Women's War Fund

Editor Times,

Sir,—There has been a great deal in the papers during the past few days on the subject of the care of the families of the men who have gone to serve their country, and a statement may be interesting:

In regard to the Women's War Fund —after consulting the Mayor, it was decided that the problem was too large to be undertaken by the women and could only be dealt with by the City Council—that is, the fuel, food and rent—and that the Women's Fund was to be used at the discretion of their Committee, for clothing and nourishment in the case of sickness and emergencies.

All the families have been visited by Mr. Miller, who is acting under the Mayor's instructions, or by some member of the Women's Committee. It has been arranged that each family will be visited regularly.

It would be better if, instead of writing anonymous letters to the papers, people who are interested in this work would either inquire of Mr. Miller or any of the Relief Committee of the Women's War Fund for correct information.

Yours truly,
M. C. Ritchie, (207 Hunter Street),
Treasurer.
H. L. Clegg, (237 Charlotte Street)
Convenor
Women's War Fund.

AUSTRIANS HELD AS MURDER SUSPECTS

Ottawa, Sept. 1.—An Austrian who gave the name of Wasyl Sydlausky, was arrested by the police here today. It is believed that he may have had something to do with the shooting of Patrick Morgan, the C. P. R. guard at Smith's Falls. Through an interpreter he told the police that he had walked here from Kingston. His clothes were torn and the police believe he has been hiding in the woods. He is held on a charge of vagrancy.

The authorities of the Provincial Penitentiary at Portsmouth are of the opinion that the man who shot and killed the guard at Smith's Falls the other was the convict Szymondski, who escaped from the penitentiary farm here about two weeks ago. They have received a footprint of the murderer, and will see if it corresponds with the boots the convict wore.

CHARITY VS. WORK

Now that the City is creating a relief fund for those who cannot get work by reason of conditions created by the war, it might be in place to suggest just what form such relief should take. "Charity" is as ugly a word to the honest working-class as it is to those nurtured under more fortunate circumstances, and the application of the general relief fund in a manner which would relieve any able-bodied man accepting assistance therefrom of the onus of receiving charity should be acceptable. Unquestionably the families of those volunteers at the front will be taken care of; and the helpless women and children suffering from general depression must also be provided for. But what about the able-bodied man, the head of the family or not? He wants work, not charity; and the City would be wise in furnishing as much work as possible. With this end in view this journal suggests that a fair proportion of the monies contributed to the general relief fund, together with the $8,000 Council should contribute thereto, be applied to corporation activities, thus giving men the opportunity to earn by manual labor their own relief. A huge majority of the men in distress to-day never accepted financial assistance of any kind; they are honest, proud, and independent, and while willing to take off their coats and earn their own living, would rather starve than appeal to the Charity Board for help. Therefore, we say, let the City authorities exert themselves to provide WORK, using as much of the funds contributed to the General Relief Fund as practicable for that purpose. Don't let any man stultify himself by accepting charity, when it is possible to offer him work. A certain portion of any community is always open to charity; these days a big and valuable portion of our city is fighting hard against its acceptance. Let the Corporation aid them in that commendable struggle.

PIUS DISINTERESTED IN EARTHLY THINGS

Paris, Sept. 1.—A Rome dispatch to the Havas Agency says the will of the late Pope Pius X, written clearly in his own hand on white paper, covers three pages. His Holiness began by recommending his soul to God by an invocation to the Virgin.

The will then stipulates some legacies, the fulfillment of which he recommends to his successor. The testament will be published as a document in honor of the Pope and to show his disinterestedness in earthly things.

BIGID CENSORSHIP CAUSING ANXIETY

London Daily Graphic Complains That English Are Treated as Children

London, Sept. 1.—The Daily Graphic, in an editorial protested against too rigid a censorship, says:

"The dangers of the present policy of concealment are very grave indeed, because it creates a feeling of anxiety and suspicion. Englishmen are not used to being treated as children who cannot be trusted to know the truth. When their government so treats them they naturally suspect that the situation is much graver than the government declares.

"This argument applies solely to cases where the enemy knows the facts and we are not permitted to know them. The moral factor in war is not the least element that goes to success, and it is impossible for the nation to co-operate wholeheartedly with the government, if it is left in the dark as to what is being done."

GERMAN FEARING DEFEAT, ENDS LIFE

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Fearing that Germany would be defeated in the war and obliterated from the map, John Stongel, forty-five years old, a native of Germany, committed suicide by taking paris green.

Since the beginning of the war Mr. Strongel had read a great deal of the conflict and of the conflict and of late had shown signs of mental depression. He confided to friends that he feared Germany would be defeated and that he could not live to see his native country humbled by the allies. He He took poison last night and died in the hospital here this morning.

SATIFACTION IN INDIA

Simla, India., Aug. 31.—The employment of Indian troops in fighting Britain's battles on the continent of Europe will create a firmer bond and better understanding btween India and England, it is believed here. A feeling of pride and satisfaction pervades the country since the departure of the first of the Indian contingent.

BRITISH ALONE MAY PREVENT THE ENEMY REACHING PARIS

New attack in Force Will Probably Stop Only When Within Range of City's Fortifications Unless Flanking Movement From Ostend Succeeds

London, Aug. 31.—Despatches from Amiens to-night says that the German army is occupying the town in force and that there has been a general forward movement during the last 24 hours, completely investing La Fere and Laon.

It now develops that most of the German troops withdrawn from Belgium have gone to give impetus to the "flying wedge" that is headed for Paris and which, according to latest despatches, has its apex to night at Amiens, its right shoulder or wing running thence to St. Quentin and Guise and its left shoulder or wing extending from Amiens to La Fere and Laon. This puts the German army is a most ideal position in point of strategy and numbers, in that the left side of the wedge can, at the opportune moment, move in echelon or by the left obliquely toward Paris, while the right wing by the same "left oblique" can "overflow" southward and reinforce the left wing, or move beyonh it to the south-east or south-west, and invest the whole northern section of Parisian suburbs.

The movement of the Germans now is headed for Compeigne, Braisne, Aumale, and Beauvais, with Compeigne as the central objective. The army of the Meuse is headed for Neufchatel, Rheims and Bourgoyne, and the army of the Moselle is striking toward Chalons sur Marne, Vitry and Troyes.

Once effected, the German lines would extend from Amiens to Troyes in unbroken front the three distinct movements concentrating in converging lines with Paris as the objective—a point ever narrowing and becoming the more impregnable the closer the Teutons get to their objective.

FRENCH STRATEGISTS DECEIVED.

It is now clear that the French strategists have been deceived as to the German plan, and that the German strength is centred on La Fere and thereabouts, but that its strength has been screened by its feints toward the north-west to draw attention from the gradual movement toward the south-west of the second line of attack, which within a day or two will be ready for a mighty onslaught that may stop only when within the range of the Paris fortifications.

To divert and offset this movement British troops are said now to be hurrying from Ostend with a view of flanking the Germans on their right. But it is pointed out that all this may be too late—that the British are probably wasting their efforts, because the German right is so well protected and the ground to be traversed by the British so barren and harrasing apart from the distance to be traveled, as to be practically impossible of accomplishment in time to be effective.

The real situation or plan of the Teutons was not developed until Friday, last, since which time not enough British, it is asserted, could be landed or transported with effect.

17,000 PRISONERS TAKEN IN FOUR DAYS FIGHTING

Official Statement From Russia War Office Claims Sweeping Victory--120 German and Austrian Guns Were Captured by the Victors

St. Petersburg, Sept. 1.—An official account of the situation at the front was made public by the war office to-day. It says,—"The German defence has stiffened, and we are sustaining some severe losses, but the Germans are losing far more than we are and despite the arrival of fresh troops who have strengthened the German lines, the enemy will be unable to withstand our assault. As a result of the general engagement which lasted from Aug. 26 to Aug. 30, we took 17,000 prisoners and captured 120 Austrian and German guns. Austria now has armies in the field opposing the second and third Russian armies. The first is in East Prussia, and has not less than a million men. Lemberg is now invested and its capture is believed to be certain. The Russian armies now operating in Austria are numerically the superior of the Austrians and are expected to completely overwhelm them."

St. Petersburg, Sept. 1.—Admitting that the entire Austrian active army now seems to be the theatre of war in Galicia, the war office today declared that "The Russian advance continues; severe fighting is still in progress." The war office insists that the Austrian line is giving away. The Russian army is now within less than a day's march of Lemberg proper. In Eastern Prussia the Germans have been steadily reinforced. The Russian advance is now threatening the entire outlying forts along the vistula.

Large Excursion To Be Run To Public Execution To-day

Bay Springs, Sept. 1.—The public hanging at Bay Springs to-morrow morning of Rose Johnson, the negro highwayman who robbed and killed Roose Kirkpatrick, paymaster of the Gilchrist-Fordney Lumber Company, is going to be made a holiday.

It is expected that a crowd of fully 6,000 persons will witness the gruesome event, the board of supervisors having ordered a public execution. For the first time in the history of such events in Mississippi the railroads entering Bay Springs will run special trains for the accommodation of the crowds, and the citizens of Bay Springs have made preparations to feed the hungry multitudes that will assemble for the official neck-breaking.

The condemned man is in the county jail at Bay Springs. No further attempts have been made to lynch him.

At the last session of the Legislature an attempt was made to secure the anactment of a law requiring that all legal executions be in private.

WORLD WILL FACE SHORTAGE OF FOOD

New York, Sept. 1.—A London cable to The Trubune says:

"Timely warning to prepare against an inevitable shortage in the world's supply of foodstuffs is given by Lord Milner, who points out that, although the present harvest is abundant, an immense decrease in production in 1915 must result from the fact that all the ablebodied males of France, Germany, Austria and Russia are now engaged in fighting.

"Of the 650,000,000 quarters of wheat and rye annually produced throughout the world, 350,000,000 comes from these countries and the other producing countries cannot possibly make up the deficiency. Lord Milner predicts that in the latter half of next year, if not before, all nations which live of wheat and rye will be competing fiercely for a share in the diminishing supply."

GERMANS LURED FROM THEIR BASE

French Think Paris Too Vast and Forts to Far-Reaching to Be Taken

London, Sept. 1.—The lure of Paris is leading the German main armies further from their base, probably nearer their ultimate destruction. It would be surprising if today, which is the anniversary of Sedan, would not see a theatrical stroke and quite possibly a further step on the pathway towards Paris. "Take Paris or die," is the Kaiser's injunction.

The German Advance.

From the scraps which filted through it is apparent that an immense German army which the English and French punished so severely last week is still pushing southwards, possibly trying to break through the left centre of the allies, while a second army pressing forward from Luxembourg.

But whatever success may attend under the Prussian Crown Prince is this determined and splendidly-organized push of German armies from the north, they will never see the France of 1870. Never again will France stand for her future upon armies shut up behind fortifications.

The Times somewhat ominously publishes today a map of Paris with its zone of fortifications, but great fighting and heavy losses must still stand between the Kaiser's army and that goal. While the great Frenchman, Monsieur Clemenceau, presumably speaks for all that is best in France when he declares in the Daily Mail to-day:

Clemenceau's Boast.

"Even if we were to be defeated again, yet again we will still go on." Clemenceau adds

"We are fighting for the right of civilization to continue to exist. We are fighting so that nations may continue to live in Europe without being under the heel of another nation. It is a great cause. It is worth the great sacrifices. The Germans cannot invest Paris. Its size is too vast, and the fortifications are by no means as feeble defences as they were in 1870. The situation is in no was desperate. However desperate it were, you may tell the people of England with the certainty of truth that France will fight on an on until this attempt to establish tyranny in Europe has been completely overthrown."

WAR OBSTACLE TO PROCESS SERVER

New York, Sept. 1.—Here is a new obstacle to the process server. Supreme Court Justice Giegerich ordered papers served on Capt. Ernest Kyriss of Stuttgart, Germany, and Capt. Fritz Janner of Amberg, Bavaria, just before the European war began. When the process server tried to find these men he was told they were at the front in Belgium. Now the process server must either seek them on the battle fields or the court probably will have to name someone else to accept service.

The two officers' presence was required to have a clause in the will of Dr. Louis Schaefer construed. The wives of the officers are heiresses under the will.

The Schaefer estate had a large sum of money on deposit in one of the British banks and when the war broke out the British government declared this German fund confiscated.

BOARD OF EDUCATION IN REGULAR SESSION

The Board will declare a school half gular monthly session last evening, Chairman, Dr. Morrison presiding. There were also in attendance Trustees John Crane, J.J. Turner, jr., Smith, Hill, Ackerman, Dr. Burnham, Col. Miller and McGrath. On motion of Col. Miller and J.J. Turner, the Board's account was transferred from the Bank of Toronto to the Bank of Montreal.

The Board wil. declare a school half holiday on Friday, Sept. 18, to permit the children to attend the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

Both Principal H. R. H. Kenner of the Collegiate Institute and Inspector Mowat of the Public School reported good attendance yesterday, the opening day.

THE SITUATION IN BELGIUM

London, Sept. 1.—A despatch to the Reuter Telegram Company from Antwerp gives the latest official communication issued there. It says:—

The situation throughout the country is stationary. The Germans have evacuated Aerschot, and railway communication has been restored over the greater part of Campine country.

Malines was bombarded for an hour, although the town was not occupied by troops. There was a fresh crime against the civil population.

A despatch to The Post from Antwerp, says that the Germans have evacuated the province of Antwerp, presumably as part of their scheme for the withdrawal of unnecessary troops, who will be used to replace those taken from service against Russia. Part of the forces in the province of Lomberg have also been withdrawn.

PORTRAIT POSING

Amateur photographers do not, in many cases, pay sufficient attention to the composition of the picture they are taking, particularly when the photograph is a portrait taken indoors. A quite plain person will often make a charming picture if suitably and gracefully posed against a good background.

Most amateur indoor photographs show too much furniture. As a matter of fact, a better picture is invariably obtained when a greater part of the furniture is moved out of range of the camera. It does away with that crowded appearance seen in so many otherwise good photographs, and gives, instead, a sense of space and proportion.

Amateurs may obtain excellent effects by posing their subjects before a mirror. The portrait, which should always have a dark, hanging background, may be taken in profile with the full face reflected in the mirror. Or the position may be reversed, the profile outlined in the mirror, and the full, or three-quarter, face looking at the camera.

WHITE LEGHORNS ON FARM

Upon close analysis it will be found that Leghorns are better adapted to artificial conditions of poultry keeping than are most other breeds, says M. A. Jull in Weekly Witness. They are a small, active, breed with a nervous disposition, and they will stand crowding more than will general purpose or meat breeds. Under average conditions they will give better success when artificial conditions of hatching and rearing are employed than with heavier breeds. The chicks are easy to raise. For two years in succession we have raised far more White Leghorn chicks in proportion to the eggs set than can be said of our utility classes of poultry, so that, all things concerned, the White Leghorn will probably stand a little rougher use and more careless treatment than other breeds, although this is not to be considered as a distinct advantage. On the other hand, it is doubtful if the Leghorns will stand our winter weather quite as well as our Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, or White Wyandottes. I think they should be given warmer houses, and then they will do practically as well. We have had some White Leghorn cockerels with some Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels in a colony house 8x12 feet, and it dropped to 20 below zero in the house during our cold snap. The Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red cockerels had their combs frozen, while the Leghorn cockerels had their combs frozen off almost entirely.

The chief value of the White Leghorn lies in its ability to produce broilers quickly, and more especially to produce a large number of eggs rather cheaply. Leghorn, of course, is not a good table bird except as a broiler, and the broiler business must be considered as a side line in poultry keeping. No attempts should be made to fatten Leghorns for roasting purposes, as such attempt usually results in loss of time and money. The great asset of the White Leghorn is its egg laying ability, and this is the factor which should be considered chiefly in keeping of White Leghorns on the farm or on commercial poultry plants. Then, above all, more important than breed is the strain, and by all means great care should be taken to select and breed as good a strain of Single Comb White Leghorns as is possible to obtain.

Fable of a Land-tiller

Once there lived a farmer who worked so hard he was too tired to go to church on Sunday. His hired men refused to stand for the first and last call to breakfast at 3.45 a.m. and left before the end of the week. His wife milked the cows and hoed the garden because help was so hard to keep. The farmer voted against hard roads, and when he was elected to the School Board hired for teacher a young girl just out of High School, because she would take the job for thirty dollars a month. In short, he squeezed the dollars so hard the eag[illegible]

THE STAGE IN CANADA

Montreal Journalist Protests Against Second-rate Productions Here

The Dramatic Mirror (New York) and the Montreal Star had a friendly argument of late concerning American and English plays, and their comparative worth to the play-going public of Canada.

Mr. S. Morgan-Powell, in the Star, sized the situation up very neatly in the following:

"I said the American companies sent to Canada were, as a rule, inferior companies. I do not understand the Mirror to question that assertion. We have been assured, time after time, that we were to see 'the original New York company,' and we have seen a company which contained sometimes two, sometimes one, and very often none, of the original New York cast. We have been 'fed up' with second-rate casts and second-rate productions until we are sick and tired of them. And the plays that have been sent to us have been, on the whole, very poor, though there have been some which, as the Mirror points out, we have praised. In general, however, it has been necessary to exercise a great deal of patience and endurance.

"If the Mirror can exercise its influence with New York producers to convince them that Canada wants their best, and will gladly support their best, but that Canada does not want, and will no longer endure, being made the dumping ground for their second-rate dramatic productions, the Mirror will be doing not only Canada, but the producers themselves, a favor.

"I have argued in season and out of season in favor of all-English plays for Canada, because Canada's experience of such plays has been that, on the average, they are much superior to what the United States has sent us.

"Art has no nationality; but so far we have been getting an unpleasantly strong impression that the American type of play and player, judging from the samples that visit us, is not as good as we want. It is up to the United States to eliminate that impression 'right away.'"

Wife's Message of Reproach

Letters reproaching her husband for his laziness were read at the inquest held by the Liverpool coroner concerning the death of Ellen Moyses, twenty-nine, who was discovered hanging from the banisters at her house. The husband joined a ship for West Africa, but left it before it sailed, and his wife wrote to a friend saying she felt "broken up" by his action. The coroner remarked that the husband had not been seen since, although the police had searched for him. An extract from the woman's letter read as follows: "My sin is great enough, but I consider it is a greater sin to bring children into the world, and be too lazy to provide for them." One witness stated that on hearing of the tragedy she went to the house and found Mrs. Moyses lying on a couch dressed in a suit of her husband's clothing, and with a photograph of the husband pinned on the clothing. A verdict of "Suicide whilst temporarily insane" was returned.

Street Promenading Girls

Street promenading by young persons was called attention to at a conference of the Dundee Committee on Public Morals. Chief Constable Carmichael stated that the practice of promenading the chief streets was more prevalent on Sundays than on any other day of the week. No offence appeared to be committed, and the police could not, therefore, interfere. It was reported that the Aberdeen committee was prepared to co-operate and it was decided to ask the police and the Salvation Army to unite in endeavoring to deal with evils attendant upon street promenading.

Clerk's Rescue Attempt

How Sydney James Turner, a clerk, made an heroic effort to save a drowning man in one of the most dangerous spots in the Swift-flowing Kennet was described at the inquest at Reading on Frederick William Newman, a groom. Turner saw Newman being rapidly borne down the stream, and fully clothed as he was, he jumped into the rescue, a drop of nearly [illegible] feet. Swimming strongly, he caught Newman when the latter was in the act of sinking, but he failed to retain his grasp. The water was very deep.

QUEER TASTES OF ANIMALS

Some animals and also birds have very extraordinary tastes for different foods and drinks quite apart from those with which Nature has provided them, and it is in the knowledge of these peculiarities that the skill of the trapper lies.

So marked is a monkey's taste for an intoxicating liquor made from the fermented juice of rice that this drink is invariably used for trapping these creatures. Bears are very partial to alcohol, and many of the performing variety find their highest reward in honey and beer, or rum-and-water mixed with sugar.

Canaries delight in eating lettuce, which is well known for its narcotic properties, and they will eat it to such an extent as to leave themselves stupified for a long time afterwards.

Foxes, ordinarily the most cunning and, consequently, the most difficult to capture of animals, readily succumb to a trap baited with the body of a dead cat.

Stoats, weasels, etc., the bane of the gamekeeper, are seldom proof against a trap sprinkled with oil from fish.

REGAINS VOICE THROUGH SHOCK

Men, Dumb For Years, Given Power to Speak in Marvelous Manner

The recent case of a young woman in England who, after being deaf and dumb for twenty-one years, is slowly recovering both hearing and speech—the shock of the tragic end of her brother, who drowned himself in the Stour, being regarded as responsible for the miraculous example of shock succeeding where doctors have failed—recalls similar instances, says Charles Lewis in "Tid-Bits."

Some time ago the narrow escape of a boy from drowning off North Shields fish quay had a remarkable sequel. While efforts were being made to restore the apparently-drowned boy to consciousness by means of artificial respiration, a man who had been deprived of speech two years earlier as the result of an accident pushed through the crowd merely out of curiosity. As soon as he saw the prostrate boy, although not in any way related to him, the sight gave him such a shock that his speech suddenly returned and he fell to the ground in a state of collapse. Upon recovering he continued to speak freely, and has suffered no further impediment since.

It is not many years since a remarkable case of dumbness excited great interest in medical circles in Germany. Twelve months earlier a Bavarian cattle-dealer had been kicked by a horse, with the result that he completely lost the use of his voice. A year later he was riding a doomed horse to the knacker's yard, when the animal, who clearly had plenty of life in him, began to kick and plunge in a dangerous manner. The man, we are told, lost his head completely in wild excitement, and after a few minutes began to talk, regaining his speech to the boundless astonishment of his friends.

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

WINGS FOR AEROPLANES

Linen the Best Material; Silk Lighter But Not so Durable

Although to the lay mind the suggestion that aeroplanes should be fitted with silk wings may seem an unnecessarily extravagant idea, there are certain advantages to be gained by such an innovation which would warrant the extra expense. Not that the latter would be very great. The cost of using silk on a modern biplane would not increase the expense by more than $100 per machine, while it is estimated that it would reduce the weight by about 20 pounds. Such a saving in weight, of course, is high-ortant, and when it is mentioned that from $5,000 to $8,000 is usually spent on a biplane, the item of cost seems in no way considerable.

In the opinion of experts there are certain objections to using silk for aeroplane wings. It is pointed out that while it is superior to linen which is now used, in regard to strength, it does not stand exposure to sun and rain so well. Furthermore silk does not lend itself so well to dressing with tautening liquids which is essential in order that the wings may not suffer unduly from the vagaries of the climate.

Various experiments have been made not only with silk, but with every kind of material in making aeroplane wings—catgut, cotton transparent celluloid films (in the hope of invisibility), fine aluminium foil (for fireproofness), wooden slats, and feathers. None of them, however, equal linen, which when dressed with the tautening liquids seems impervious to everything except accidents.

The dressings, which consist of solutions of casein, are applied after the linen has been stretched over the framework. Three or four thin coats are applied, and the effect of the dressing is to pull the whole fabric together in every direction. When the coats are dry the linen rings like a drum to the flick of the finger, and affords a fairly smooth surface, which is sometimes further improved and rendered water-resisting by a coach-builders' flexible varnish. It is estimated that the dressing increases the strength of the linen by some five per cent.

Our Point of View

If the war lasts for eighteen months, as Lord Kitchener predicts, the dogs of war will find themselves very hungry before the end comes.

When peace spreads her snowy pinions o'er the scene Belgium will have a fine assortment of ruins to show the tourists.

New York surgeons have replaced a man's spine with a new one of steel but they can't come up to the work of nature which has given so many men wooden heads.

When we come to think of it, the dove of peace is having a hard time to find a place to roost. Even in this country we are engaged in a war on food prices.

A Kansas editor who has made a study of the characteristics of the gentler sex says the new garters, which are decorated with lace, will not only keep the stockings up but the skirts also.

Kaiser Bill has distributed $1500 worths of his photographs to his regiments. Quite a gracious act of course, but it is a safe bet that the soldiers would have been better pleased if he had given them beans.

There are days and days. Chicago is to have a "book day," when everybody in the city who has a borrowed book is expected to return it. Now is the time for some one to take the floor and suggest an "umbrella day."

Says the German ambassador to Washington: "I believe Americans will prove themselves fair enough to weigh carefully all the news that comes from English and French sources." They will and also the news that comes from the New York Staats-Zeitung.

Herman Ridder, the eminent military expert of the New York Staats-Zeitung, assures us that Germany will not attempt to invade Russia. This shows the wisdom of the Kaiser's general staff. The front of each Russian army is protected by terrible entanglements which are constructed by tying together the barbed-wire names of the commanding officers.

It is known that indictments will be called for against men charged with having made illigitimate use of war conditions to gouge the public with increased food prices. This is good news, but if anybody is convicted of the brigandry, we shall hope that no fines will be imposed. That form of punishment is a sham which leaves the thief free to thieve again. What the situation calls for is jail sentences, and good stiff ones at that.

Magic "Nerviline" Ends Stiff Neck, Lumbago

Any Curable Muscular or Joint Pain is Instantly Relieved by Nerviline.

GET A TRIAL BOTTLE TO-DAY.

You don't have to wait all day to get the kink out of a stiff neck if rub on Nerviline, And you don't need to go around complaining about lumbago any more. You can rub such things away very quickly with Nerviline. It's the greatest liniment, the quickest to penetrate, the speediest to ease muscular pain of any kind.

One twenty-five cent trial bottle of Nerviline will cure any attack of lumbago or lame back. This has been proved a thousand times, just as it was in the case of Mrs. E. J. Grayden, of Caledonia, who writes:—"I wouldn't think of going to bed without knowing we had Nerviline in the house. I have used it for twenty odd years and I appreciate its value as a family remedy more and more every day. If any of the children gets a stiff neck, Nerviline cures quickly. If it is earache, toothache, cold on the chest, sore throat, Nerviline is always my standby. My husband once cured himself of a frightful attack of lumbago by Nerviline, and for a hundred ailments that turn up in a large family Nerviline is by far the best thing to have about you."

The Aviators in War

If the dispatches concerning the movements of the aviators of the warring nations in Europe are correct, there is something doing and a good deal of it by those adventurous patriots of all sides. There has not been much bomb-dropping by them, or if there has, it has not been of a generally effective character. But a number have apparently had much success in their efforts to see out the enemy and inform their side of his movements.

On the other hand, a number have come to grief and some to sudden death, being fired on by the enemy below as relentlessly as though they were foemen marching on land. Pegoud, the noted French aviator, for instance, has gone back to Paris for a new aeroplane, after having sailed nearly 200 miles over German territory and getting away with the one he was using, though it was riddled with shot.

An official notification to the people of England requests them to be watchful of aeroplanes, which are evidently expected to drop dispatches telling of army movements, and to forward at once to the persons addressed. This indicates the employment of many British aviators in the field of war.

Duration of the War

Lord Kitchener's speech in the British Parliament, indicating that the empire is preparing for a war lasting three years or more, is disconcerting to those who have felt that a struggle so vast as the present European war could not possibly last beyond a few months. We have an idea, however, that the British War Minister is not speaking his mind. It is more reasonable to assume that, believing the end is to come quickly, he is striving to arouse Great Britain to a realization of the immensity of the task before her, the peril involved and the necessity for making supreme sacrifices in order to insure victory to the allies.

On the probable length of the war one man's guess is as good as another. A layman's opinion is likely to be as good as a soldier's.

When we say the war will be long or short we speak relatively. It is conceivable that we shall see the end before Christmas. That would be a short war. In olden times wars extended over long terms of years. But only a portion of the male population went to them. In this frightful catastrophe each nation is sending its whole strength to battle, millions are involved, the losses in dead, wounded and prisoners in a few weeks will be greater than all the forces that met at Waterloo, and the daily waste of treasure is staggering.

It is impossible, therefore, to see how the present struggle could last much more than a year without bringing most of the nations involved to a condition of complete exhaustion.

Most of the wars of the last half century have been brief. In 1866 Prussia and Austria fought only six months. The tremendous clash between France and Prussia in 1870 endured less than a year. In 1895 Japan crushed China in a few months. We declared war against Spain in April, 1898, and the fighting had ceased before September. With more than a million men arrayed against each other Japan and Russia were glad to make peace in a year. Hundreds of thousands died in the Balkan war in 1913, but its duration was only a few months.

England, France, Russia, Germany, Austria, Belgium and Servia are fighting in a theater less than the size of the United States. There are ten million of their people under arms. One or the other group is bound quickly to be crushed.

Let us hope, in any event, that such will be the case. It will require generations to repair the damage which has already been done. The longer the war lasts the greater the ground civilization will have to recover.

BRITISH AND AUSTRIAN SHIPS MIX "OFF N.O."

New Orleans, Sept. 1.—An encounter between an Austrian and a British ship occurred in New Orleans harbor Sunday afternoon, and, though it is said that the ramming given the stern of the Britisher did considerable damage, not the least of which was the upsetting and ruin of the finest dish of plum-duff that ever ship's cook prepared, and the rude interruption of the English skipper's afternoon nap, the war correspondents of the battling European nations got badly scooped on the story.

Instead of furnishing a matter for settlement at The Hague when warring Europe gets down to the business of making peace, this case of the violation of Uncle Sam's neutrality will be settled in the United States District Court at New Orleans, where the British skipper late Thursday afternoon filed a libel against his Austrian assailant for $1900 damages.

In his libel Captain Mills, skipper of the British vessel, the Heiredale, declares that during a heavy squall which struck the harbor Sunday afternoon the Austrian steamship Clara was swung about by the wind so fiercely that her stern finally collided with that of his ship, setting and breaking plates and generally causing a damage of $1200. The British skipper declares that the blame rests with the commander of the Austrian vessel for anchoring so close to the Heiredale.

NOTHING TO GERMAN GUNNER BUT NOISE'

Officer Says Kaiser's Battery Was Destroyed Before it Could Unlimber

London, Sept. 1—Reuter dispatch from Paris says a French Zouave officer, who has returned wounded from the front, describes some of his impressions.

"My regiment," he said, "took part in the fighting around Charleroi. I was surprised at the lack of effectiveness of the German artillery. Their shells did comparatively little damage. The soldiers, quickly perceiving that the chief characteristic of the shells was noise, soon get accustomed to them.

"On the other hand, the French artillery fire was deadly and its accuracy was little short of marvelous. I saw a German battery appearing in the distance, but before it could unlimber it was destroyed by the French fire.

"The ravages caused by the French artillery were enormous. Whole ranks of infantry were mowed down by shrapnel.

"The bravery of the German troops is wonderful especially that of the imperial guard which did not flinch before the most murderous fire. The morale of the French troops also is splendid. They are not in the least disheartened by the temporary check and I am convinced that if they are well led they will achieve wonders."

SHIP WRECKED OFF MEXIC COAST; SKIPPER IS LOST

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 1.—The 90 ton schooner Emily P. Wright of Portland, Me., laden with war munitions and bound from Galveston for Tampico, was wrecked off the Mexican coast 100 miles south of the mouth of the mouth of the Rio Grande during a storm last Saturday.

Nine members of the crew of ten were sighted making their way along shore yesterday by the life savers of the Brazos Island station and rescued. Captain Peterson of the wrecked schooner, who became separated from his companions, could not be found, and is believed to be dead.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

The well is now down 1,860 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (18 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

Origin of "Lumber"

The word "lumber" is said to have had its origin in Boston because the merchants lumbered the wharfs with "wood goods." The term, it is claimed, is merely a modification of the word "Lombard" because the Lombards were the first pawnbrokers and because it originally carried with it the notion of rubbish.

Telling the Time by Oil

Do you know that every miner when descending into the pit to work, takes with him a couple of clocks? These are not ordinary timepieces for they have neither wheels, springs, dials, nor any of the usual appurtenances. The "clocks" are simply his lamp and oil flask. By noting the quantity of oil consumed—or that left—the miner can tell to within a few minutes any hour of the day or night.

When a miner's lamp goes out, as it not infrequently does, in almost any circumstances he must not relight it himself. Instead, though he may be left in pitch darkness, he must grope his way to the lamp cabin, or to some other point where he can obtain the proper assistance. He does the "groping" with his hands, stooping down until he touches the tram lines along which the coals are taken, and sliding his hands along the metals until he reaches his destination or meets someone going in the same direction.

A coal hewer's earnings depend on the weight of coal he gets, and also on the number of fathoms cut. A cubic yard of coal weighs about eighteen hundredweight, and the outstretched arms of an average man extend to about one fathom. By these measurements, independent of the official ones, each man can roughly calculate his earnings for any particular shift.

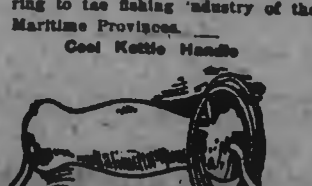
Cool Kettle Handle



Although a wooden handle on a kettle is supposed to protect the hand, it frequently happens that the handle absorbs enough heat from laying on the metal part of the kettle to cause severe burns. Besides, it has frequently happens that the handle is burned or charred. A good way to prevent both of these happenings and keep the handle cool is to attach a coil of wire to one side of it, as shown in the sketch. This keeps the handle away from the kettle, and while it may get warm will never get hot.

COW TESTING

One Man Has Had an Increase of of Thirty-five Dollars a Month

Speaking of his experience with cow testing for three years one farmer near St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, recently expressed himself as very well satisfied. He had good reason to be for his 9 cows now average 1,203 pounds of milk each, a total of 10,830 pounds. Three years ago the average was only 823 pounds, the total only 7,411 pounds. In other words, his income from the nine cows has increased thirty-four dollars in one month.

Instances very similar to this may be found in every county where cow testing has been taken up intelligently. Near Listowel, Ontario, is a herd of 26 cows that gave on the average 2,700 pounds of milk more per cow than three years ago. The addition of four hundred and thirty-two dollars per year to one's income, without increasing the number of cows, is a substantial and tangible result of intelligent weighing and sampling.

Again, at Wooler, Ontario, is a herd now giving 8,207 pounds of milk per cow, an increase of almost 2,000 pounds per cow.

AS LIGHT AS LAGER
BUT BETTER FOR YOU

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilises as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

A Boudoir Cap

The Questions of the Child

Dr. Helen Webb, of London, England, believes parents will do well and rightly to answer, as fully and as truthfully as may be possible the questions asked by the children in the home. Dr. Webb says that one of the causes of ill-temper and ill-deeds in children is intellectual starvation—a condition easily relieved by judiciously imparted parental information. Dr. Webb might have amplified the discussion of this theme by adding that parents who make shift to answer the questions of their children establish a habit and a bond which can be made of the greatest use in retarding steps along the wrong path by the child. That child who is rewarded with, "Oh, shut up, will you?" or "Oh, stop your noise, can you?" soon learns to seek information from other than parents' sources, you know—and there is a big risk that such a child will gather an unsavory mess of misinformation, don't you think? Of course, it may be a little difficult to reply to all the questions asked by a keen-minded child—but one ought to be proud of the child with such a mind, don't you [illegible]

GARDEN MEDICINES

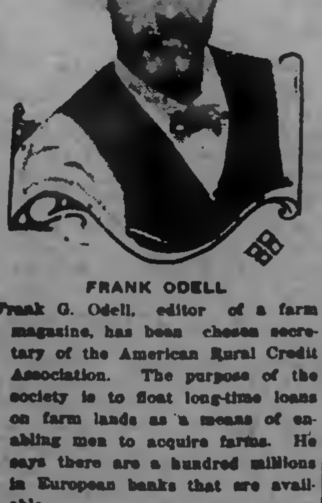
Every vegetable garden is a medicine chest full of remedies that are recognised by physicians as of considerable value in the treatment of various diseases.

Onions, for example, contain sulphur oil, and are recommended for insomnia and as an aid to gastric digestion. They should have a prominent place in the diet of sufferers from rheumatism, for they help to allay the pains.

Turnips and parsnips both have peculiar oily principles which are of value as an aperient and diuretic. It is also claimed that they are good for coughs and hoarseness.

Carrots are useful for correcting derangements of the liver. They are also excellent as a dressing for painful wounds and swellings.

The tomato exercises medicinal effects which are not completely explained by the presence of alkaline salts. There is a principle present which, when taken in a concentrated state, produces salivation and a free stimulation of the liver.



FRANK ODELL

Frank G. Odell, editor of a farm magazine, has been chosen secretary of the American Rural Credit Association. The purpose of the society is to float long-time loans on farm lands as a means of enabling men to acquire farms. He says there are a hundred millions in European banks that are available.

Footrace Decides Rent

An ancient custom of a race deciding the rent was witnessed at Bourne (Lincolnshire) recently. A race was run by two boys during the letting of the Whitebread Meadow, and upon the return of the winning boy the last bidder was returned the tenant for the year. After expenses are paid the rent money is spent in bread, which is distributed to householders in the town.

"WHEN THE MISTS HAVE CLEARED AWAY"

TEXT: "For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face."—I Corinthians 13:12.

I tried it yesterday in the modern sense, for I looked out through a frosted pane. Beyond was a fine stretch of Canadian landscape, the gardenspot of a province, with the border-line of lake as a background. But I saw through the glass darkly, for on the glass was frozen mist. A little boy, annoyed at the hindrance, thawed out a little spot with his breath, and kept scraping the edges with his finger nails, to enlarge the transparent area, but the frost king regained his grip almost instantly and my laddie had to content himself with an occasional peep through the wee clear corners. It was the best we could do and we soon turned back to our magazines, where pictures took the place of the real scenery so provokingly withheld from our gaze.

That is the modern picture of the text. The figure is just a bit changed. In Paul's time the glass was of scraped horn, thin enough to admit light and yet so opaque that only the dim contour of things could be seen through it. Now since we no longer have to see through a glass darkly, we change the metaphor to the times. The hymn-writer has spoken of the mists through which we must look, and has sung:

"We shall know each other better
When the mists have rolled away."

A COUNTRY BOY'S CREED

I believe that the country which God made is more beautiful than the city which man made; that life out of doors and in touch with the earth is the natural life of man. I believe that work with nature is more inspiring than work with the most intricate machinery. I believe that the dignity of labor depends not on what you do, but how you do it; that opportunity comes to the boy on the farm as often as to the boy in the city; that life is larger and freer and happier on the farm than in the town; that my success depends not upon my location, but my self; not upon my dreams, but upon what I actually do; not upon luck, but upon pluck. I believe in working when you work and playing when you play, and in giving a square deal in every act of life.

ROBINNE

Paris has awarded another prize. No medal was given, no ceremony was held, but unofficially all Paris come to the agreement that Mlle. Georgette Lemanier, known in the theatre as Robinne, is "the most beautiful woman in France." There are many beauties in France, but not one has tried so far to take away Robinne's laurels.

FUR FARMING INCEASING

Over $10,000,000 a Year Realized in the Sale of Pelts in Canada

The Ontario Department of Lands, Forestry and Mines, which has charge of the administration of Algonquin Park, has announced a policy of wholesale encouragement of fur-farming in Ontario. Since the park, with its magnificent natural retreats, has been a game preserve, fur-bearing animals have muultiplied so numerously in it that they can be trapped alive in large numbers without serious depletion of the colonies in the woods. The department has been selling a few mink and marten, but no effort at providing a systematic supply of animals for domestic breeding has hitherto been undertaken.

In connection with this effort to encourage domestic propagation of these fur animals it is interesting to note that the Commission of Conservation has paid considerable attention to the question. J. Walter Jones, the author of "Fur-farming in Canada," gives some valuable information summarizing the status of the fur-raising industry in Canada. He says:

Would it surprise you to learn that the value of the fur skins produced each year in Canada is from three to five times the value of the wool and hides of Canadian sheep? The production of fur pelts on this continent is estimated variously from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000, and Canada's share of this is at least $10,000,000. What part of it comes from Ontario is not ascertainable. But the province is an important producer. The North-west country—the northern parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the vast territory north of the provincial boundaries—is one of the richest game areas in the world. For instance, Ernest Seton Thompson estimates the number of caribou in this area at thirty million head, but they are rapidly being decimated, and so are also the small fur-bearing animals.

In the United States, Government interest in domestication of the small fur animals has preceded interest in Canada. The Federal Government at Washington ordered in 1912 that experiments in breeding mink and marten be started, and its programme includes Alaska seals, foxes, and other animals. So that in taking up this question for Ontario, the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines is moving in company with other authorities.

In the past twenty years a great change has taken place in the fur industry. There is a tremendous demand for all kinds of furs, and a large decrease in the supply of high-priced varieties. Ten years ago skunk, muskrat and mink, for instance, were considered of little value, but these are now beginning to find a permanent niche in popular esteem. The rising prices have made the raising of some of the varieties a paying proposition, and this is now the case with mink, marten, fisher and perhaps beaver. There is, of course, no comparison between the commercial prospects in breeding these animals with the silver and black fox industry of Prince Edward Island. The tremendous financial plunging and juggling which has made fortunes overnight for so many fox-farmers on the island will not be repeated in Ontario. In this province there are now about fifteen fox ranches, and many ranches for other animals. The demand for foundation stock has been keen, and directed principally to the Algonquin Park authorities. Now that a regular scale of prices has been set, and publicity given to the distribution of foundation stock, a lively market is expected.

HAPPY CONVICTS

A Swiss prison appears to be the very place in which to spend a cheap holiday, as you have practically all you want—a comfortable cell, central heating, electricity, good food, a fair quantity of wine or beer and tobacco, and a library. You can learn a trade, have plenty of exercise, and there is little work to do in return for all these advantages. Until a year ago, at Thorberg Prison, good conduct prisoners were even allowed out once a week on "parole," but, though no prisoners escaped, this custom has been suppressed.

Of all the Swiss prisons perhaps the jolliest is that of Kreuzlingen, in the Canton of Thurgau. The inmates have weekly smoking concerts, when the latest music hall songs can be heard, and good music, with the result that at evenings the townspeople—Kreuzlingen has nearly 6,000 inhabitants—gather enviously under the prison walls and promenade in the street enjoying the free entertainment, especially as some of the convicts have good voices. On these occasions there is no warden to prevent a conversation between the prisoners and their visitors across the wall, and thus the former learn the latest news.

It is noticed that the prisoners are very polite when young women are present. Packets of cigarettes and other small luxuries—not on the regular menu—find their way over the walls, and this custom, though strictly forbidden, is winked at. These pleasant little "soirées musicales" are now threatened with extinction.

It is only fair to the authorities to say that crime is decreasing, as the population increases, in the country.

CHURCH TOO DIGNIFIED

Terrible Effects of Alcohol Outlined by Speakers

There were scenes of stirring enthusiasm at Massey Hall, Toronto, when Rev. J. R. Patterson told the convention of the Dominion Alliance the story of the "Catch-My-Pal" movement. The transformation scene which came over Armagh and other Irish cities and towns and villages was told in a manner which brought tears to the eyes of a great many.

"I want the men who make the problem to go and solve it. The desire for drink was lost in the desire of saving. The Church's work is half-damned with too much dignity. Go down into the gutter and pick up your fallen brother and sister."

Dr. J. Edmond Dube of Laval University, treated the subject of temperance from the standpoint of the scientific man. Scientific opinion and the results of experiments declared alcohol to be a poison.

"I have a large practice myself," said the doctor, "but I never prescribe a drop of alcohol." The dire results of drinking by enciente women upon their children, causing all sorts of deformities, and the dangers as far as heredity goes were sketched with no uncertain effect.

"Alcohol in the blood of a father is an awful thing," said the doctor. "Morrell has stated a law that children of alcoholic parents will disappear after the fourth generation. The easiest road to tuberculosis," said the speaker, "is lined with whiskey bottles."

PROTECTION FORESTS

Functions of Government Reserves Outlined—How Trees Help Soil

A perpetual timber supply, resulting from systematic methods of cutting is commonly, and correctly, supposed to be the chief purpose of making forest reserves.

Another purpose, scarcely, if at all inferior, is that of regulating the run-off from the water-sheds of rivers, on which, on account of the fact that the land is unsuited for farming, through its being too poor in quality or too rocky, or being too high a level and so exposed to frosts, trees form the most profitable crop.

Forests maintained for this latter purpose are called "protection forests." Possibly the best example of such a forest, and certainly the largest protection forest in the world, is he Rocky Mountains Forest Reserve in Alberta, which now has an area of 20,896 square miles.

Fortunately the Dominion Government early recognized the value of such protection forests, and, by the creation of forest reserves in the West, the great rivers of the plains having their source in these watersheds were saved from the disastrous floods, the low-water stages, and the filling up of the river-beds with eroded soil, so characteristic of the rivers originating in the denuded watersheds of the eastern United States.

In this latter region many areas in the Appalachian mountains, which cover a large part of Pennsylvania, Virginia, the Carolinas and other States were very severely cut, and have been repeatedly swept by fire, so that the forests have been entirely destroyed. When rain falls on such an area, the water runs off almost immediately; if, on the other hand, the area were covered with forest, the soil would be more spongy and able to retain water, and the water would be hindered in running off by the tree-roots and the debris on the ground. Moreover, the water, in its rapid run-off, gradually takes with it the soil, and, where the soil covering the rocks is thin, it is apt to be washed away entirely. Hence there is lost any possibility of growing a new forest on the now bare rock. The soil carried away eventually found its way to the larger rivers and harbors, and did actual harm by silting these up.

Lost in Sturgeon Lake

There was a very heavy fog on Sturgeon Lake and boats had a hard time finding their way around. In fact several of them got lost and had quite a time finding their way into port. Yesterday's Police Court

At yesterday's police court, Robert Brown was charged with a violation of the Railway Act. It seems that Robert was stealing a ride on a freight train. Edward Stevenson pleaded guilty to a similar offense. It seems the chief had received a telegram from the C.P.R. stating that two men were stealing a ride in a freight car and that it was suspected the men might have been those who shot a man at Smith's Falls. They were fined $10 each with the alternative of a two days' meal ticket at Castle Nesbitt.

He was convicted and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Bridge Guards Fired On.

Detectives Keating and Foster guarding the C.P.R. bridge, were standing on the track yesterday morning when suddenly a shot was fired from the bushes on the east side of the river, and the bullets struck the bridge but a few inches below their feet, rebounded into the river. There are four officers guarding the bridge, working six hour shifts, one on the east and west ends, respectively, of the bridge. The officers who were fired upon guarded the east end and were off duty. Upon seeing the smoke emerging the officers hurried into the bushes, but were unable to locate the culprit.

"Near Guila and Lipa the enemy occupied a staong position of such strength that it was considered impregnable. They also desperately attempted to stop our advance by a flanking attack in the direction of Hal ura.

"We repulsed the Austrians, inflicting severe losses. We burried on the battlefield 14,800 Austrian dead, captured a flag and 32 guns, and a quantity of supplies, and made many prisoners, including a genetal.

"On the sauth front, in the Warsaw district, all the Austrian attacks have been repelled with success. Assuming the offensive on our right wing we fo(ere the Austrians to retreat, capturing 3 cannon, 10 rapid fire guns, and over 1,000 prisoners. According to statements made by the latter the Rustrian losses were heavy.

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS NARROWLY ESCAPES EXECUTION

London, Sept. 2.—That Richard Harding Davis, novelist and war correspondent, barely escaped execution as a spy by Germans outside of Brussels, was the word brought here today by a refugee from Belgium. He said he had talked to Davis, and that the latter had told him of four days' detention by German military authorities, while they debated whether or not he should be shot. Davis was said to be under the strictest surveillance, even after the Germans released him from imprisonment.

Mrs. J. S. Erskine, widow of a former captain of the Tenth Royal Hussars, who was for a time attached to the staff of Lord Kitchener, now English war secretary, has given an interview in which she discusses the chief of the English war department at short range.

Long before Mrs. Erskine met the army officer who eventually became her husband, she knew Kitchener — at that time attached to the engineering corps—and has continued the acquaintance since. At the first meeting she was a ,ade of four in short skirts and blouse. To-day she is in the neighborhood of 40 and is residing temporarily in New York.

"You have seen a great deal printed showing the austere side of this great man's character, but very little relating to the human side, and the human side is very strongly developed in Lord Kitchener," she said. "Then, you have seen him described as a woman hater, but he is far from that, although he has never married. He holds that an army officer can best serve his country by remaining single, that his chief duty is to his king.

"I was at the engineering depot at Woolwich with my parents when I first saw the then engineer Kitchener. wasn't. In truth I was just the oppo- He was most shy and diffident, but I site, and probably that is the reason we became fast friends. Even now I can remember how he started when I asked him to please fasten my garter. He did it, but he blushed. Not long after that when he was called to Egypt, he gave me a doll, and I treasured it many years."

Mrs. Erskine told how, when she was eight or nine, Kitchener returned on leave, and renewed the acquaintance, telling her all about the Soudan and teaching her French. Next time she saw him she had reached the mature age of nineteen and was in love with Captain Erskine, of his staff. It was then that she learned of his objection to the marriage of any army officers. He was Sidar of the Anglo-Egyptian army then, and England was beginning to take some notice of him.

Rebuke For His Government.

"When my husband's leave of absence expired I went to Algiers to be near him," said Mrs. Erskine, "and there got a better idea of Kitchener in the field. I remember one incident distinctly. The Sidar wanted a certain modern make of gun and so specified in a requisition sent to the war office. In due time he received a reply saying the government would send a different make. Immediately he returned the order, across which he had written: 'You make keep your guns; I can throw stones at the Arabs myself.' It is needless to say he received the weapons he desired.

"It was during his campaign that he recommended for D. S. O. (distinguished service order) a Roman Catholic bishop named Robt. Brindle, and was approached by a member of his staff who remarked he hardly thought this would be popular in England unless a Church of England divine was also named. 'I recommend a man for distinguished service,' the general quickly replied. 'His religion has nothing to do with the matter. Personally, it doesn't concern me what the people at home have to say.'

"When Kitchener went home after conquering the Soudan I met him in Marseilles. He was wearing a blue serge suit and a derby hat and was much less conspicuous than the members of his staff. And this in spite of the fact that he was about to be made Lord Kitchener of Khartoum. I remember distinctly one thing he said to me. It was this: 'I had always haped my little girl wouldnot marry a soldier.' 'Why)' I asked. 'Because,' he replied, 'war is long drawn out torture for a soldier's wife. Do you realise you'll have to play second fiddle to your husband?' 'Yes,' I answered, 'I know that, but after all he loves me best.' 'True enough,' said Kitchener, 'he loves you, but in the event of war he'll have to leave you. War is his profession and he'll have to follow it.'

"If Kitchener was determined in war he was equally determined in peace. One thing he had set his heart upon was an English college in Khartoum. He was always raising money for it, and I remember after he had been made a lord he raised 25,000 pounds by his determination. There was to be a banquet in the city, as we term the centre of London, and the promoters wanted him as their chief drawing card. 'I'll be there if you'll subscribe 20,000 pounds for the college,' he said. The committee finally offered 10,000. 'Now it will cost you 25,000' said his lordship—and he got the entire amount.

"Later on, Lord Kitchener, my husband and myself attended an affair in the general's honor. It was held in the corn exchange at a small country seat near London, and we had to listen to eulogies of his lordship from a very small, pompous master of ceremonies. On the way home we passed an ice cream cart on which were lithographs of Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales, and our companion. 'That, and that only, is fame,' declared his lordship, flicking his own dust covered picture with the end of his riding whip."

BRITISH AND FRENCH TROOPS ARE HOLDING THEIR OWN VALIANTLY

LONDON, Sept. 2.—"With the Germans so near there has not been a day in the last month when Paris presented the appearance of such complete calm," says the Paris correspondent of The Chronicle. "More shops are open and rows of chairs have appeared before the chief cafes.

"The possibility of a German raid is very slight. Solitary fortresses may be unmasked, but the attempt to cut down the Oise Valley toward Paris, except as a trivial raid without first routing the masses of the army is madness.

HAMER AND ANVIL.

"We may assume, therefore, that if the Germans have faced eastward and turned their backs on the British and other forces gathering in Picardy (an old province in the north of France, but now forming the Department of Somme and part of Oise, Pas-de-Calais and Aisoe). they must either win an immediate victory or risk being caught between the hammer and anvil. If they win they will still ha e to meet other armies, including the large garr son army.

"Common sense is shown in preparing against any contingency. More than one edition of any newspaper is prohibited on pain of permanent suppression, and the lights on the Seine bridges and the riverside have been greatly reduced, no doubt out of regard for the Zepplins and aeroplanes.

BEST GERMAN TROOPS TIRED.

"No considerable change is perceptible in the military situation, and it is believed that the main French army and the British wing still hold the line. So far the German turning movement by Western Belgium, which cost enormous losses and risks, has been successful, but now the position is very different. The best Prussian and Hanover troops are now exhausted, and the Germans have now the main bodies of the allies to meet.

"The forts on which so many brains have been spent, are not silence.. What prospective defeat, flight and piecemeal slaughter is open for the Germans!

"A brief official review, just issued, reveals the vast extent of this unprecedented battlefield, seventy-five miles long.

TWELVE NURSES WERE KILLED.

"The Red Cross ladies here have been officially informed that 12 of their number were killed and that o hers are missing.

"Many wounded continue to arrive in Paris, some with trophies, such as swords and helmets, etc."

Newman, Travel Lecturer Arrested in Berlin As Spy

Boston, Sept. 2.—A recital with thrills in it was related by E. M. Newman, the noted travel lecturer, who was thrust into jail while in Berlin and who came near being shot as a spy.

"I arrived in Berlin July 15 to take some pictures, and more particularly some moving pictures for my travel lectures. I was furnished with permission from the royal chamberlain to take photographs of various royal properties. When the war demonstrations began I continued to go about as usual, taking pictures of the marching students and other scenes of excitement.

"When war was declared between Germany and England the Germans changed the name of the Hotel Bristol to Hotel Deutschland and the Piccadilly to Vaterland. Everywhere crowds surrounded buildings where there were any English signs displayed and compelled the proprietors to tear them down. The anti-English sentiment was extraordinarily bitter.

"About midnight that night, as I sat in my room in the hotel, there came a knock at the door and two officers entered. I was put under arrest without ceremony and told that I was a spy. They seized my camera, thinking they had possession of the film showing the pictures of the war demonstrations I had taken shortly before. Fortunately, however, they procured only an unused film, the other one being hidden in my clothes.

"They kept me in prison three days, during which time I was not permitted to see or speak t any one. Finally, on the third day, I succeeded in bribing my jailer to let his wife take a message about my plight to Ambassador Gerard. This effected my release on the fourth day, when I was led from the prison to the depot and put into a troop train with a lot of horses. It was a box car, and I couldn't get out at any time or see what was going on.

"In this way I was carried to the Belgian frontier, where they turned me loose and told me that I could walk to the nearest Belgian town. I saw some fighting at Lie— but left at the earliest possible moment, and reached England with just such inconveniences as others had to put up with."

More Than 1,000,000 European Reservists In United States

Washington, Sept. 1.—Approximately one and one half million unnaturalized foreigners more than twenty years old who are natives of warrin European nations are in the United States, according to latest reports of the Census Bureau. Most of them are liable to military duty.

Including women and children there were 9,865,479 foreign born persons in the United States who came from nations at war. That is about one-tenth of the entire population of the United States.

The nations of the Triple Entente and Belgium could call upon 792,-908 of their countrymen in the United States for military duty while Germany and Austria Hungary could call 650,952. These unnaturalized foreigners over 21 years of age were divided as follows:

Great Britain and Ireland, 197,626; Canada, 150,718; Russia and Finland 418,428; France, 16605, and Belgium 8,691.

On the other side Germany has 127-103 and Austria-Hungary 583,859.

In addition to these the other European nations might call from the United States men who have not been naturalized here as follows:

Italy, 488,442; Switzerland, 10,338; Norway, 3447; Sweden, 52,041; Denmark, 14,107; Holland, 81706. Portugal, 14,552; Greece, 58,288; Turkey, 37,494; Roumania, 42,569; Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro combined, 24-552 and Spain 9,213.

For Sallow, Blotchy, Rough or Greasy Skins

Some skins require constant grooming to keep them from becoming oily, muddy, blotchy or rough, or if such condition has developed, to overcome it. In such chronic cases it is particularly inadvisable to keep piling on cosmetics which clog the pores, collect dust and dirt, making the complexion worse than ever. It's a lot more sensible to use ordinary mercolized wax, which literally absorbs a bad complexion. Apply the wax, like cold cream, before retiring; next morning, in washing it off, you'll wash away fine, flour-like particles of the unsightly cuticle. Repeat for a week or two and you'll have an entirely new skin—soft, satiny, spotless and beautiful as a child's. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any druggists, is all you'll need.

If the skin be wrinkled or flabby, here's the best possible remedy: Mix ½ pint witch hazel and 1 ounce powdered saxolite and use as a face bath. It works like a miracle, yet it is entirely harmless.

HOW THE HIGHFLYER GOT THE KAISER WILHELM

London, Sept. 3.—The Evening News publishes a despatch from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, giving an account of the sinking of the North German Lloyd transatlantic liner, Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse off the coast of Africa by the British cruiser "Highflyer," which was reported last week. This is the first authentic details received of the engagement.

Lieut. Deane, a British army officer, who was taken prisoner by the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse from the British steamer Galician on the high seas, is the authority of the Las Palmas correspondent, and in an interview he gives a graphic account of how the great liner was destroyed.

Lieut. Deane was not on board the German liner; he had been sent over to the collier Arucai, from which the liner was coaling. When it was seen that the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was doomed, the German captain sent his sword, a despatch box, and a letter to his wife to the collier, his secto doing this the captain of the liner retary being the messenger. Previous had announced that he would blow up his command rather than surrender.

When the Highflyer opened fire on the liner, Lieut. Deane continues, the collier was still fastened to her big hawser, and owing to some delay certain prisoners on board the liner did not get a chance to leave the ship. The Kaiser Wilhelm was bow-on to the Highflyer and the British cruiser had some difficulty in finding her mark. She manoeuvred to get broadside, and the ensuing cannonade lasted for forty minutes.

All the shots from the Kaiser Wilhelm appeared to be falling short. From the collier it was seen that she had been hit three times, and on catching fire she ceased replying to the shots from the British cruiser. When the liner had been silenced the Highflyer also stopped fire.

By this time the Arucai which had separated from the liner, had gotten too far away to perceive anything more than that she was still burning. The Germans kept on board the Kaiser Wilhelm only her officers, her guns, crews and a few engineers. The remainder of her men were transferred to the collier.

FEW HOSPITALS FOR MIDDLE CLASS

Most of Those in England Are Charity Institutions, Barring Those Able to Pay

London, Sept. 2.—England's lack of hospitals for people in moderate circumstances is the thing that most impressed the members of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America, who recently met in London. All of London's wonderful hospitals, where the visitors have been watching operations by the great British surgeons, are charity hospitals. People who can afford to pay are barred, and must either go to the inadequately equipped private nursing homes or be operated upon in their residences.

Dr. Franklin H. Martin, of Chicago, general secretary of the congress, felt this condition keenly, as he had a touch of appendicitis during his visit to London, and then learned that the hospitals he had been admiring would not have received him had he been forced to go under the knife.

"This method of conducting hospitals amazes us from North America," said Dr. Martin. "Palatial buildings, occupying acres of the most valuable land in the capital of the world, are devoted solely to non-paying patients, excluding from their advantages the patient of moderate means and made prohibitive to patients of health. This works injustice both ways. With their large endowments, these hospitals can afford the most elaborate equipment of operating rooms and laboratory diagnostic facilities. Yet patients of means are compelled to go to the imperfectly equipped private hospitals or to nursing homes with their makeshift arrangements. This must in turn have a pauperizing effect on people of small means who enter the hospitals as charity patients when they would gladly pay a small sum.

"The injustice worked on the paying patient may be serious, as nursing and private homes can not afford expensive apparatus such as the latest X-ray machines and the like."

Dr. Martin has only praise for the British surgeons. He believes them to be fundamentally better equipped for their profession than the American. By this he means preliminary training and the necessity of each English surgeon being a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, which standardizes requirements.

"The average English surgeon is more deliberate in the technical performance of his work than the average American or Frenchman," Dr. Martin declared.

$14,000 for Pee,.

Brampton, Sept. 1. The County of Peel maintained its reputation as "Loyal Old Peel" this afternoon. A special meeting of the County Council was held in the Court House with Wm. Rutlidge, Warden, in the chair. It was called for the purpose of considering a grant to establish a patriotic fund for the county. After explaining the object for which the meeting was called, a deputation of Brampton citizens, composed of Mayor Mara, Messrs. Charters, McFadden, Duggan and McDonald, addressed the Council, making the request that a tax of one mill on the equalized assessment of the county be imposed. A bylaw introduced by Mr. Porter of Toronto Gore, embodying this request was carried unanimously. There was considerable discussion as to the details, but all were agreed on the necessity of prompt action. The equalized assessment of the county is $146,-000,000. This at one mill provides a fund of $14,600 which will be available when the taxes are paid in December.

Paris Raises $2,200.

Paris, Ont., Sept. 1.—At a meeting held in the Council room to organise a patriotic society, $2,100 was subscribed, the Council leading off with a contribution of $500. The Paris Patriotic League was formed with the following officers: President, Mayor Patterson; Vice,President, Dr. A. S. Lovett; Secretary, Thos. McCosh; Treasurer, A. Finnemore.

ORDERS WELLAND NURSE TO FRONT

Welland, Ont., Sept. 2.—Miss Donna Burgar, well-known Welland nurse today received telegraphic orders from the American Red Cross society at Washington, D.C., to proceed at once to New York city and join a contingent of Red Cross nurses and surgeons for duty in the European war zone.

Miss Burgar has for some time been a member of the American Red Cross society and has been awaiting orders for European duty for several weeks. The nurse states that 120 American nurses and thirty American surgeons will make up the party which she will join in New York.

The orders received by Miss Burgar did not state when the corps would sail for Europe, but it is probable that she will be a passenger on the steamer Hamburg of the Hamburg-American line, which has already been chartered by the American Red Cross society and is expected to sail Saturday.

The Hamburg will be renamed the "Red Cross," will fly the American and Red Cross flags and will be recognized as neutral by England and France. Miss Burgar's first stop will be England, if she sails on the steamer Saturday.

AUSTRIAN'S SURRENDER AND GATHER SERVIA'S HARVEST

Zurich, Sept. 1.—Fugitives from Austria give graphic descsiptions of the perilous state of the whole country. Reports of mutinies in many of the regiments of Salavonic soldiers are fully confirmed. The Salvanic population in many parts of the country is said to be wildly agitated and on the verge of open rebellion.

It is known in Vienna, the refugees state, that large bodies of Austrian troops, engaged in the campaign against Servia, deserted to the enemy and were disarmed and were disbanded on Servian soil after having pledges of good conduct. Many, of them are now engaged in reaping the Servian harvest and doing other neglected work.

Demand Work or Bread.

In all the Austrian manufacturing towns unemployment is declared to be reaching such dimensions that the condition of the great part of the population is desperate, The women of Brun, marching in procession to the municipal headquarters, demanded work or bread, and, being denied of both, broke shop windows and perpetrated many deeds of violence. The police, both mounted and foot, were called out to disperse the rioters, among whom there was not one man.

The fury of the women is said to have been extraordinary. They resisted the police with absolute ferocity. Many policemen and women were injured before order was finally restored. Similar riots led by women have taken place at Prague and Pilsen.

Vienna Gloomy.

A profound gloom has settled over Vienna. Owing to the strict censorship of all kinds of news, the people are entirely ignorant of the actual facts of the situation, but rumours which are in circulation cause them to think matters are worse than really is the case.

Fear of the Russian invasion has gripped the entire population to such a degree, the refugees assert, that the government will hardly be able, it is thought, to hold the people in check when the Russian force advances further into the country.

BRITISH ARE IN THICKEST OF THE FIGHT

Are Pitched Against the Flower of the Kaiser's Army—Desperate Fighting Reported

London, Sept. 2.—Still retreating before superior numbers, but delivering enormous damage on the German advance, the Allied lines were falling back towards Paris today. The War Office added nothing to the French official announcement that the German right was still pushing forward. It is admitted that the British have been engaged almost constantly since Sunday morning and that their losses are large. As a tribute to the British skill, it is admitted the German right wing includes the crack regiments of the German army, the real backbone of the Kaiser's forces. These troops cannot be replaced. The British cavalry is reported to have taken a number of cannons, estimates varying from ten to thirteen, in a desperate charge against a German fortified position. It is also reported that in another charge the British captured several German officers of high rank who are members of the general staff.

SALMON FISHING

Other Fish Are Neglected by the British Columbia Canners

The interest in the British Columbia fishing industry has so far been centered almost entirely in salmon packing, and there is no lack of capital and enterprise in that particular branch, which has been exploited to the neglect of other important features of the business. The reason of this salmon run is short, and the canneries are closed down most of the year, while herring can be taken all the year round along the entire coast although the heavy run is during the winter months. This would enable the factories to continue operations throughout the year and would obviate to a large extent, the difficulty of securing a sufficient number of hands to handle the business during the high season in the salmon-canning industry. It is only in recent years that halibut have been taken in commercial quantities on the British Columbia coast, and, so far, the packing of sardines is practically an untried enterprise. The herring, which are caught in large quantities, are now mainly used as bait in the halibut fisheries, and for that purpose only the larger fish are kept. Nothing is done with the smaller ones, which could be packed for sardines. There are, along the provincial coast, scores of fine sites for sardine factories where the fish could be caught in adjacent waters in unlimited quantities and at small expense.

Naming of St. Lawrence River

The St. Lawrence River owes its name to the accidental conjunction of the Festival of Saint Lawrence with the day upon which the first explorer imagined he had discovered the river Jacques Cartier in 1534 heard from the natives of the Magdalen Islands of a mighty stream threading the continent to an unknown source, and it was while testing this legend that he called up the gulf until he could see the land on each side.

CANADA'S LOG RULES

Several Different Measurements Exist Throughout Canada

It is interesting to compare the International Log Rule with those in most common use in Canada. A sixteen-foot log twelve inches in diameter contains, according to the International Rule, 105 feet, board measure, of lumber; according to the Scribner Rule, used in the Prairie Provinces, 75 feet, board measure, and according to the Doyle Rule, in most common use in Eastern Canada, only 64 feet, board measure, of lumber. The disparity is even greater in smaller logs and it is small logs which make up the greater part of the cut in Canada to-day. Thus, so far as stumpage dues are concerned, it is safe to say that very often the lumbermen pay for only half the merchantable lumber the average log really contains. It is significant that when the British Columbia government recently decided to increase the royalty paid on timber cut in the interior of the provinces, it accomplished that purpose merely by stipulating that the British Columbia Log Rule should henceforth be used in that region instead of the Doyle Rule, thus increasing by 45 per cent. the amount of estimated lumber in the logs cut.

It is possible that in other parts of Canada the bonus paid by the lumbermen in addition to stumpage dues makes up for this loss in scaling. But, other things being equal, lumbermen operating under a lenient rule have an unfair advantage over those whose logs are more closely scaled and the only final remedy would seem to be the adoption of a general rule such as the International, or, better still, the substitution of cubic measurement of logs, a practice which has long been in operation in Europe where high lumber prices make accuracy not only desirable but necessary.

PLAYING THE FLUTE THROUGH THE NOSE

Strange Custom of Tribe of Agricultural Experts in the Philippine Islands

The Tinguians who live in the northern part of the island of Luzon one of the Philippine group, are by no means savages, even if they do prefer a fashion which does not include much clothing. They are really expert farmers. Their country gets very little rain. So they terrace the rich soil on mountain sides from hill to hill down to the valleys. Then they divert mountain streams, controlling their flow ingeniously so that the streams drip down from one terrace to another, soaking the thirsty land and making it bloom like the rose.

Tinguian Playing Nose Flute

There are very many interesting things to say about the Tinguians, but we started out to tell you about the Tinguian musicians who play flutes with their noses. This is the music which is played at the people's dances.

A plaintive little tune is played on the nose flute by gently blowing with one nostril while the other nostril is blocked with wax or any handy substance.

An old man with a flowing white beard, who cried as he gave his evidence, told the judge at the Old Bailey court in London that a young man in the dock was "as great a hero as any man in the country," and had performed deeds "quite equal to anything that Captain Scott did."

The prisoner was John Dicks, aged 23, a stenographer, who was found guilty of causing of wounding a man named Phillips.

Dicks pleaded that he had been "goaded on by an unknown power," and set out his only possible explanation of "what led me to do such an act" thus:

"Having the misfortune to lose both feet and top joint of right thumb, and being deported against my will from Canada.

"Overstudy and having no prospects, turning out a failure after struggling against odds. Not being able to

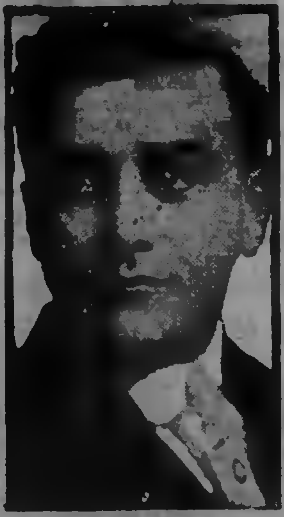
This "Movie" Actor Talks



AL ERNEST GARCIA

who has been everything from the daring Daniel in the lions' den and handsome gladiator in the Roman arena to the gentle hero who woos by moonlight to the accompaniment of the dulcet mandolin. But he depends more upon his vocabulary for, while Garcia's profession is soundless, he is not a silent actor—he talks in very forcible terms during some of the scenes in which he appears. He says it helps to say what you are trying to "put over."

To Save Fenceposts

A new bulletin is now available at the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, describing some simple and inexpensive methods of preserving fenceposts from decay. It has been found that the generous application of hot creosote to well-seasoned posts stripped of bark, even when only painted on with a brush, will add at least ten years to the life of the least durable woods. Many common Canadian woods which hitherto decayed too rapidly to be so used are thus made available for fenceposts. The saving in first cost and transportation more than balances the cost of treatment, while the cost of placing the post will be much less when considered as an annual charge.

WHAT WAR MEANS

Soldiers on Active Service a Veritable Scourge—French Honor Mothers

"All's fair in love and war," runs the old saying, and Mr. E. A. Vizetelly, in his volume of reminiscences, "My Days of Adventure," proves the truth of it. Referring to the appearance of the railway station at Nantes during the Franco-German War, he says:

"Never since have I seen anything resembling it. A thousand panes of glass belonging to windows or roofing had been shivered to atoms. Every mirror in either waiting or refreshment rooms had been pounded to pieces; every gilt frame broken to little bits. The clock lay about in small fragments; account books and printed forms had been torn to scraps, partitions, chairs, tables, benches, boxes, nests of drawers, had been hacked, split, broken, reduced to mere strips of wood. The large stoves were overturned and broken, and the marble refreshment counter—some thirty feet long, and previously one of the features of the station—now strewed the floor in particles, suggesting gravel. It was, indeed, an amazing sight, the more amazing as no such work of destruction could have been accomplished without extreme labor.

"When we returned to the inn for dinner, I asked some questions.

"'Who did it?'

"'The first German troops that came here,' was the answer.

"'Why did they do it? Was it because your men had cut the telegraph wires and destroyed some of the permanent way?'

"'Oh, no! They expected to find something to drink in the refreshment room, and when they discovered that everything had been taken away they set aboutu breaking the fixtures.'"

Mr. Vizetelly discloses this interesting fact: Whenever letters were found on the bodies of men who fell during the Franco-German War they were, if this man was a Frenchman, more usually letters for his mother, and if he was a German, more usually letters for his sweetheart. Many such letters found their way into print during the course of the war. It is a well known fact that a Frenchman's cult for his mother is a national characteristic.

GREAT INVENTORS WHO MADE NO MONEY

Not All Geniuses Can Make Money—Lawsuits Have Robbed More Than One of the Fruits of His Labors

That the man who invented cold storage should die of starvation, and that one of the greatest mechanical geniuses of the age, whose inventions made millions of dollars for others, should either fall overboard or commit suicide because he was harassed by creditors, call attention to the fact that not all geniuses make money out of their inventions. Teilier, the inventor of cold storage, lacked business ability, and while Diesel was reputed to be a rich man, it is known that other people made a hundred thousand dollars for every dollar he made from his oil engine.

Rev. Hannibal Goodwin, who ought to be recognized as the inventor of the photographic film, lived and died unknown, and actually lost money through his wonderful discovery. Goodwin was a Newark clergyman, who spent every spare moment in his attic in chemical experiments. In 1887, after years of hard work, he invented the photographic film. But he could not secure a patent, a wealthy photographic firm securing an injunction to stop him. He began suit, and the company entered a counter-suit. The case dragged on, the corporation being equipped with the best lawyers that money could hire, and the poor clergyman doing the best he could with much less valuable legal advice. Years passed, and Goodwin died, poorer than ever. A company bought his rights to the disputed patent, and stock was issued to his wife. After a series of lawsuits lasting twenty-six years the Supreme Court decided in Goodwin's favor.

Woman's Greatest Happiness

Miss Rae Potter, known as "Chicago's most beautiful working girl," disdaining the offers of wealthy suitors, has married a poor railway clerk. "To keep house, to wash dishes, and sweep and cook for the man you love," said the bride, "this constitutes a woman's greatest happiness."

Wild Bee Honey in Tree

A party of Renfrew hunters, who were back of Foiger, chopped down a tree and secured 40 pounds of wild bee honey, which they strained through a pan in which they punched holes and then through cheese cloth.

Concrete Replaces Wood

Economy of material was the explanation of the erection of a house in Los Angeles in which every part was made of concrete in the same forms they would have been if made of wood, then nailed or wired together.

Scientific Rest

According to a French physician a short period of rest suffices to prepare a person for new exertion after heavy but not protracted work, while longer rest is necessary after continuous work of lighter nature.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyse a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(2) About 500,000 shares of the stock have already been sold, and are now in the hands of the investing public.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

WHERE FIRE-FLIES MAKE FLASHLIGHTS

Men and Women Wear Them While Travelling Through the Forests

Travellers and tourists in Mexico are invariably attracted by the wonderful skill and ingenuity displayed by the Indians in the making of miniature objects which they offer for sale. The little dolls, for instance of Cuernavaca, half-inch tall, and dressed in finely embroidered raiment, are the admiration of everyone who sees them.

But perhaps the most wonderful of all are the tiny dressed fleas which may be bought in Mexico City. They are all mounted in small boxes, which are little more than quarter-inch in dimension. Here are a bride and bridegroom, the former with her bridal veil and orange blossoms, and the latter with his Prince Albert coat and silk hat. Ballet dancers dressed in true Spanish dancing costumes, bull fighters in full regalia, and water carriers with their water jugs are also represented among the dressed fleas of Mexico City.

Some further interesting facts regarding Mexican insects are related in the "National Geographic Magazine." It appears that many of the Indian colors are made from Mexican insects, while one of the most remarkable of the many curious foods eaten by the natives is made from the eggs of a species of marsh fly. This fly deposits its eggs in incredible quantities upon flags and rushes. The eggs are then gathered and made into cakes which are sold in the markets. These little cakes are somewhat like brickbats, and the Indians enjoy a meal of them with as good a stomach as white people enjoy cheese. The eggs resemble very fine fish roe, and when mixed with corn meal and fowl eggs form a staple article of diet, particularly d[illegible]

Incomes of Wealthy Germans

The following are stated to be the largest incomes in Germany: The Emperor, $3,500,000; Frau Bertha Krupp, over $4,500,000; Prince Henckel, $[illegible]; the Duke von Ujest, $1,500,000; and Herr Stinnes, shipbuilder and landowner, about the same.

Chief Fire Ranger writes, "The fact of no fires the next summer is proof positive that the majority of them faithfully kept their pledge." During the course of a few months sixty-three Indians voluntarily visited the Chief's headquarters to discuss the plans of the Forestry Branch in the matter of conserving the remaining forests in Western Canada.

Many of these Indians are sufficiently well educated to serve as fire rangers, and, following its policy of obtaining the best men possible for this work, the Dominion Government has enlisted quite a number of Indians in the fire ranging service, for which their knowledge of the country and their enthusiasm for the work make them admirably adapted. Several towers have been established, enabling rangers to scan at one glance [illegible]

Our Point of View

Judging from the character of the war news that comes from Sayville, Long Island, a well-equipped fake factory has been established there.

—o—

Do not sneer at the temple of peace which The Hague boasts of. It is likely to serve as a barracks before the summer is over.

—o—

Sweden has rejected woman suffrage. This means that there will be war in that country also just as soon as the suffragets can mobilize.

[illegible] the greatest [illegible] in [illegible] gold in Europe. We have experienced the same trouble in this country, and see no reason why they should kick.

—o—

Chauncey Depew says you could put the whole of Germany and Switzerland into Texas. Maybe so, but who hates the two countries so much as to want to do it?

—o—

The failure of Bulgaria to bulge into European rumpus and help the other nations kick Kaiser Bill's dachshund around, will have to be classed as a mystery.

—o—

Being unable to pronounce Kiao-Chow without choking themselves, a great many Americans are taking no interest in what Japan is doing these days.

—o—

The picture postcard industry on the other side of the Atlantic is in a bad way. The fighting in Belgium has already mussed up a good deal of fine scenery.

—o—

The German musicians who enlisted in the kaiser's army had to get rid of their long hair. They were told that it would seriously hamper their progress through barbed-wire entanglements.

—o—

The Hon. Ted Roosevelt has discovered that he is not pleased with Harvey D. Hinman as a candidate for governor. As a matter of fact, the only person who would be satisfactory to the Hon. Ted is the Hon. Ted.

Richard Harding Davis, who went to Europe as a war correspondent, is frank enough to admit that there isn't anything to write about, but we note that it takes a column for him to say so.

Chest Colds Cured

NERVILINE HAS NEVER FAILED TO CURE.

Don't suffer.

Nerviline is your relief.

Nerviline just rubbed on, lots of it, will ease that drawn, tight feeling over your ribs, will destroy the pain, will have you smiling and happy in no time.

"I caught cold last week while motoring," writes P. T. Mallery, from Linden. "My chest was full of congestion, my throat was mighty sore, and I had the fiercest stitch in my side you could imagine. As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed on, and then got into a perspiration under the blankets. This drove the Nerviline in good and deep, and I woke up next morning fresh as a dollar and absolutely cured. Nerviline is now always part of my travelling kit, and I will never be without it."

The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, or you can easily get the 25c. trial size from any dealer.

The Martin (Tenn.) Mail says: "Mrs. Mattie Hedges had the misfortune to lose a fine calf. It was running and fell and broke its neck" This is the first time during the current year that we have heard of a fall in meat.

If Paris is Won

Latest reports from the scene of war in Europe indicate that the Germans have had time to move forward their base up to the point allowed by the advance they made as a result of last week's four days' battle, and are now hammering away once more at the lines of the allies. That they will be able to lay siege to Paris within the next two weeks or possibly sooner is now, apparently, within the realm of possibility.

Apart from the moral effect of Germany's winning her way to Paris, however, it is easy to over estimate the advantage she will gain by doing so. When she gets to Paris, she will yet have to capture the city, and it is fortified for a long and stubborn defence. She will have exerted her utmost strength. She will have paid a staggering price. And she will not yet have encountered the most stubborn resistence that lies between her and the goal of victory in this war.

The expeditionary force which Great Britain has thrown into the field of war in Europe is but a fraction of her military strength. At the present time, the British people all over the [illegible] determination, in the traditional manner. Apart from the undoubted fact that they have permitted Germans years of advantage, because of delusive and traitorous "peace propaganda," they are flocking to arms as never before. They are preparing for a long and stubborn war. The task, once Germany has won the initial battles of the fight, will be harder, but it will be attacked in good spirit and with bull dog tenacity. These first German victories must serve to convince Britons that their Empire is at stake. The British navy will keep John Bull alive, but he must make supreme efforts to conquer the enemy on land. He will do it.

A great many careful observers hold to the opinion that the final and decisive battle in this war will not be fought until the Germans have laid siege to Paris and come to grips with the Russians. Then a British invading army will take the field, prepared by months of steady training, and given the occasion, some modern Wellington will be found to crush the modern Napoleon. But that is looking into the future; the present task is not visionary. It is grim action.

LIEUTENANT CREPY KILLED IN AMBUSH NEAR SIRE'S STATUE

Paris, Sept. 2.—Among recent casualties reported was the death of Jean de Crepy, a lieutenant of Hussars and the grandson of General Chanzy, one of the heroes of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. Lieutenant Crepy was killed in ambush near the French town of Buzancy, where a statue was raised by France to General Chanzy's memory.

FOOD SCARCITY IS BEING FELT IN BRUSSELS

London, Sept. 2.—A Belgian business man, has just arrived in London, said that food was already very scarce in Brussels.

"Only about one person in a hundred can afford eggs and milk," he said. "People who are rich enough to have milk twice weekly are considered very lucky. The Germans have directed the suburb of St. Gillies to supply to the military 400 bottles of wine daily. Brussels proper has to contribute daily 70,000 pounds of bread, while the suburb of Anderlecht supplies 40,000 pounds of meat."

MRS. BRUSH SAYS HUSBAND POINTED REVOLVER AT HER

But Alexander D. Brush; Defendant in Separation Action, Declares Story is Untrue

Buffalo, Sept. 2.—Alexander D. Brush, member of the firm of Brush Brothers and a relative of the late Mayor Alexander Brush, is the defendent in a separation action brought to the notice of Justice Bissell in special term of Supreme Court today. Mr. Brush is being sued by Burnetta F. Brush, University of Buffalo and Masten Park High School graduate and the daughter of a battalion chief in the Buffalo fire department. The matter came before the court in an application for counsel fees and alimony. Justice Bissell granted Mrs. Brush's attorney $50 fees and ordered trial of the action before him on Thursday.

Mrs. Brush, according to affidavits, charges cruel and inhuman treatment, alleging that on one occasion her husband pointed a revolver at her and threatened to kill her, besides boasting of his relations with other women before marriage. Brush denies all the allegations and asserts that without reason his wife deserted him five months after marriage.

The couple were married in 1911, and it appears all went well until five months afterward when Mrs. Brush is claimed to have gone to her father's home after leaving her husband a note. The defendants inject a counter-claim of desertion in the action. The claim was made that Mr. Brush is a devisee under the will of the late Mayor Brush and is superintendent of Brush Bros. at $100 a month.

Mrs. Brush was graduated from the pharmacy department of the University of Buffalo in June and is now earning a small salary. It appears she played a piano in a moving picture show in order to pay for her tuition.

VESSEL ASHORE

Curling, N. F., Sept. 2.—A big tramp steamer, grain-laden from Montreal for Liverpool, is reported to have been beached on the Newfoundland west coast, 110 miles north of here. The steamer struck an iceberg in the Straits of Belle Isle Friday night and was compelled to run ashore with her forehold full of water. Several rescue steamers have gone to the scene.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A MASTER MARINER

The great liner fills the public eye, but the greater part of the world's work on salt water is done by the "tramp" steamer, and it is the "tramp" captain who is the real hero afloat. There have been few finer feats of seamanship ever accomplished than that of Captain Charles Charleton, of the Liverpool ship Harold, a master mariner of rare courage and resource. Unable to get officers for his ship at Adelaide, Melbourne, or Sydney, Captain Charlton took the amazing resolve of navigating his ship home with his crew, all of whom, with the exception of two men, were foreigners. He brought her safely into Queenstown Harbor, after a voyage of 15,000 miles during which he was his own skipper and mates as well. Captain Charleton went for stretches of six weeks without removing his clothes, and slept on the poop of the ship on a cabin chair during most of the 108 days the voyage lasted.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

The well is now down 1,850 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 800 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

T. R.'S ANSWER TO BARNES' LIBEL SUIT

New York, Sept. 2.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt's answer to the libel suit brought by William Barnes, chairman of the State Republican Committee, was served yesterday on Mr. Barnes' attorneys and probably will be filed today in Albany County. Details concerning the reply were not given out.

Recently attorneys for Col. Roosevelt sought a change of venue by mutual consent, but failed, and an application for a change of venue, on the ground that a fair trial cannot be had in Mr. Barnes' home county, is to come up for argument within a few days.

GARDEN MEDICINES

Every vegetable garden is a medicine chest full of remedies that are recognised by physicians as of considerable value in the treatment of various diseases.

Onions, for example, contain sulphur oil, and are recommended for insomnia and as an aid to gastric digestion. They should have a prominent place in the diet of sufferers from rheumatism, for they help to allay the pains.

Turnips and parsnips both have peculiar oily principles which are of value as an aperient and diuretic. It is also claimed that they are good for coughs and hoarseness.

Carrots are useful for correcting derangements of the liver. They are also excellent as a dressing for painful wounds and swellings.

The tomato exercises medicinal effects which are not completely explained by the presence of alkaline salts. There is a principle present which, when taken in a concentrated state, produces salivation and a free stimulation of the liver.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Javanese Marriages

A marriage among the Javanese is quite a lengthy ordeal. Such a thing as courtship is practically unknown. The parents choose partners for their children, although the latter are consulted and their consent obtained. The parents discuss among themselves the terms of the marriage, and then the girl's parents give a betrothal pledge to those of the bridegroom, who soon after offer the purchase price for the bride in silver, jewels, stuffs, food, and so on. Each of the girl's parents also receives some special personal gift. On the day when the presents are delivered all the relatives and friends on both sides are invited to a series of festivities and banquets, which last several days, being furnished first by one side and then by the other. The eve of the actual wedding, which usually takes place a week later, is spent by the future husband and wife in a vigil, without which it is thought that great misfortune would follow. Next day the happy couple, with their parents and friends, appear before the priest, who duly unites them.

COLD CHEERLESS HOMES

Igloos of Eskimos Crowded and Unsanitary

The igloos used by the Eskimos of the bleak north are small in size, necessarily overcrowded, and every crevice is carefully sealed during the long winter months in order to maintain a comfortable temperature within. The different forms of dwellings on the Arctic coast are the sea igloos which are the standard and are constructed on two different plans.

The first type of igloo, with windows and doors in the walls, is a frame structure of logs or lumber. The walls and roof are covered thickly with sod, and one or two windows are set into the walls. The home contains two separate compartments which are connected by a small door, the living-room proper and the entry or shed. The shed is somewhat smaller in size than the living quarters and is used as a storeroom for provisions, clothing, sleds, and other articles too numerous to mention. The entrance into the igloo is also constructed of timber, and covered with sod, but the plan of construction differs somewhat from the one just described. This igloo also has two compartments, a living-room and a storeroom, connected by a low passageway. The entrance into the home is through an open hatch in the roof of the entry by means of a ladder. Then by passing through the tunnel one enters the living-room.

The living-room of some of the igloos are curtained off to separate the sleeping quarters from other parts of the household, but the majority have no such arrangements, all the household duties being conducted in the single room. The furniture equipment usually consists of a small stove, a few dishes, and improvised beds. The board floor, which is usually fairly clean, serves the purpose of chairs and tables. A few of the families own sewing machines and occasionally a phonograph.

HUMAN NESTS STIRRED UP

Text: As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead him.—Deut. 32:11-12.

Mythology says that the swan lives to a great age. Just before death it sings a wonderful song, and dies. So Moses, living to the ripeness of a hundred and twenty years, sees his end approaching, and before he climbs to the mountain's summit he sings this, his swan song, which we may read now, three thousand years afterwards, in the thirty-second chapter of Deuteronomy. The man who, on Horeb, had complained of his slow and clumsy tongue, becomes most eloquent on Nebo; so magnificently eloquent that this, his farewell address, deserves a place among the masterpieces of oratory.

His song is all about God. The old statesman has passed beyond the petty things of time and place, and sees only the eternal glories of the Infinite. Somebody writes interestingly about a night spent at Hawarden during the last years of Mr. Gladstone's life. When family prayers were announced, the aged host himself sat down to the piano to lead the singing of a hymn. The visitor was curious to see what kind of hymn the great statesman would select. Soon the whole household was following the leader in singing.

"From all that dwell below the skies,
Let the Creator's praise arise;
Let the Redeemer's name be sung
Through every land, by every tongue."

So the theme of the aged statesman of Israel was God:

"Give ear, O ye Heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth. My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass. Because I will publish the name of the Lord: ascribe ye greatness unto our God. He is the rock, His work is perfect, for all His ways are judgment: a God of Truth and without iniquity, just and right is He."

Then he speaks so gratefully of God's dealings with Israel, tells of God's providence all the way from the Nile to the Jordan, how God found Israel in a desert land and in the waste, howling wilderness, how He led him about, instructed him, kept him as the apple of His eye. And having mentioned the miracles, the chastenings, the blessings, yes, even the reproofs, he cries:

"As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone did lead Israel."

This is the picture; God is a mighty eagle, guarding the nest, and His children are the brood. We can afford to stand before this picture with uncovered heads and grateful hearts.

The eagle is the king of birds, the emblem of royalty. He is the sovereign of the air. He soars higher than any of his feathered brothers, and scans the earth with piercing eyes. He lives among the crags, and flies among the clouds.

Even the eagle mother's nest is regal. In the loneliness of the lordly pine or the highest cliff the eyrie is built, far from the haunts of beasts, and beyond the reach of the fowler's arrow. This castle is a yard square, with walls of sticks and branches, bound together with twining vines, and lathed with birchbark and balsam, and carpeted with hair and wool, and feathers and down, until it is as soft as velvet. There she lays her eggs and hatches her young. There her lord, never polygamous, like the Mormons, but always loyal to one wife, patrols the air, as the sentry of the nest. Thither is carried the spoil of sheepfolds, and there the eaglets are fed with the choicest of morsels. There, when the giant pines sway in the beating storms, she croons over the little ones and tucks them into their feather beds. There she waits until the soft down of her children's coats is changed into sprouting feathers.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

Suggestion For Making Croquet a Game For Dark Nights

Sometimes a game of croquet has to be curtailed because of the trouble in finding the arches or wickets in the dusk. The wire is so near the color of the ground that as soon as the light of day fades a bit it is necessary to have some one locate each wicket before the player makes his shot. A good way to obviate this difficulty is to get a short length of white rubber tubing and slip it over each arch so that it will cover the top. This will make the arches stand out against the dark background of the earth in the evening. If desired, this tubing or the entire arch can be painted with a phosphorous paint that [illegible]

CANADIAN GAME BEST

McGill's Coach Likes It Better Than American Football

Frank Shaughnessy, McGill's American coach, says Canadian Rugby is a better game than American football by a city block. "Shag" claims all the possibilities of the game are brought out under the Canadian rules.

"The one defect in the laws of the game is the three-yard tackling rule, which will always be a source of dissatisfaction till it is removed. It is never interpreted twice in the same way by a referee because it is impossible for him to decide. The official guesses at it. I have seen wings rush down under a high punt and stand as far as five yards from the back, who allows the ball to bounce, and, as is frequently the case, the leather takes a freak hop right back toward the wing men. The halfback races up and grabs the ball before the wings can get away the required distance. A fair catch is all that is needed with penalties meted out when the back is charged after kicking."

FARM MANAGEMENT

Executive Ability is Needed as Well as Training

Farm management is the application of business principles to farming. A farm enterprise must be organized for the purpose of securing the greatest continuous profits. It is not enough to raise good crops or to secure a large animal production; these must be produced economically. This is accomplished only when capital and labor are so adjusted to existing conditions that maximum yields are obtained at the lowest cost. Every department must be well organized and must be co-ordinated with the others.

In the days of our fathers the farm provided almost everything needed by the family. The few things not raised on the farm were received in trade from the village store. Very little money was required or handled by the farmer. The measure of his success was his ability to produce his own food and clothing rather than his ability to organize his business and buy and sell. Since machinery has been introduced in the factory and on the farm, money has become necessary for the farmer. No longer can he raise or trade all he needs. He must sell his products and buy most of his requirements. All these changes mean that the farmer of to-day, in order to be successful, must be a business man. He not only produces, but he sells and buys. The kind of business ability needed is not alone that of the trader, but also that of the executive, who can organize the farm into a successful enterprise. An idle horse in the barn is often a greater source of loss than a bad deal in horses. Failure is caused by poor management as well as by poor crops. The successful farmer must consider and plan his work ahead of time. He must give a plan for stormy days as well as a plan for field work. He must foresee most things that are about to go wrong, and prevent them from going wrong. The more the farmer thinks and the more his brawn is intelligently directed by his brain, the greater will be the resultant satisfaction and success.

HAND WASHING EXTRAORDINARY

Cleanliness Given More Credit Than Skill For Saving Lives

Most people attribute the immensely decreased rate of mortality in cases of severe surgical operations to the increased skill of the profession, to their greatly improved instruments, and the more skilful nursing which is obtained in these days. But the surgeon himself would tell you that it is almost all a matter of absolute cleanliness, the fact that nothing is left undone to insure absolute freedom from infection of any kind. This fact is emphasized by the extraordinary hand-washing regulations which are in force at the various hospitals. Everybody who is even remotely connected with an approaching operation is supposed to spend twenty minutes in the all-important process of washing his hands. For five minutes the surgeon washes his hands with soap and water, and then cleans his finger-nails. When he has done this, he spends another five minutes doing it all over again. But this is but a preparation for a third and far more drastic ablution, for this time he must wash his hands in alcohol. Not content with this cleansing process, however, he must now put his hands through a process of sterilization by soaking them for at least five minutes in a wash of corrosive sublimate. By that time he may commence his duties, which mean life or death to some patient, with the satisfactory feeling that he has done his best to approach his task with clean hands.

ELIZABETH MALONEY

who says that "most of the girls in cities become waitresses so as to get something to eat. They come from the small towns, work for a while in offices or big department stores, and then, when they get hungry, they turn to work in restaurants."

CANADIAN LIVE STOCK

Statistics of live stock in Canada, published by the Dominion Government, throw interesting light on the state of the beef and dairy industries. In the six-year interval, 1908-14, there was a decrease of 244,460 in milch cows; in "other cattle," beef cattle chiefly, the falling off was 1,266,305. The decrease in sheep was 772,259, and this finds an inadequate set-off in the increase of 64,468 in the number of swine. To make the case worse, the decreases were steady, while the single increase was due only to a spurt for 1914. The inference to be drawn from these statistics is obvious, and the lesson they convey is equally so. In the face of frequently reiterated warnings the farmers of Canada, and especially of Ontario, have persistently ignored the signs of the times, have continued growing grain for export in the old way, and have sold themselves so short of live stock that it will take years to fill up the vacuum which has been allowed to occur. While the meat-eating population has been steadily increasing the supply of meat has been steadily and rapidly decreasing, and, worst of all, the falling off in milch cows means inevitably a continued, perhaps an increasing, scarcity of calves. There are no sure indications observable that any stay has taken place in the downward trend, and the farmers who might be making a handsome profit out of live stock appear to be still bent on taking chances with the cultivation of grain.—The Globe.

William H. Hollobaugh, aged 42, of Pittsburg, thinks he is the lightest "iron-horse jockey" in the world. When he mounts his 72-ton steed in his jumpers, he weighs in at 106 pounds. Hollobaugh has been an engineer for 19 years. He drives a huge locomotive on the Union railroad. "Weight doesn't count," he says.

Pharoah's Serpents

A cone of mercuric sulpho-cyanate, when ignited, burns with the development of a tremendous amount of ash. The cone seems to swell and writhe away like a serpent, hence the name. Any boy can make the cones at little expense. To a solution of corrosive sublimate, add a few drops of ferric chloride. Dissolve potassium sulpho-cyanate in water, and slowly add this to the other solution, until, after stirring, a red color remains. Filter through a sheet of muslin and form the white curds into little balls or cones. Dry, and you need only touch a match to produce Pharoah's serpents. Do not breathe the vapors.

Ostrich Feather Plucking

During the course of the sitting of the Dominions Royal Commission at Port Elizabeth, the question of the supposed cruelty attending the plucking of ostrich feathers, as affecting the market, was raised, when a witness, Mr. Evans, stated that while in London he delivered a lecture with lantern slides showing the method of plucking. After the lecture a lady told him she had not bought feathers for three years on account of the cruelty she supposed was involved in the plucking, but after the explanation which had been given, she expressed her intention to purchase some next day.

Origin of Greenbacks

Few people, perhaps, are aware why the national American currency is printed with green backs. Ever since the adoption of paper currency it has been the constant study of bank-note engravers to get up some plan of printing bills that could not be counterfeited. In this they only partly succeeded till as late as 1857, when a man named Stacy J. Edson invented a kind of green ink, which he patented June 30th of that year. It is called anti-photographic ink, because it cannot be photographed and cannot be dislodged with alkalies by counterfeiters to get a complete facsimile of the bills. As it is a secret known only to the American Bank Note Company and the inventor, it is impossible to counterfeit the greenback money.

Even if the composition of the ink was known, it would be of no use, as the work could not be copied from the genuine bills with any other kind of ink.

Dug up a Watch.

As a well known gentleman of Lakefield was digging potatoes in his garden, a few days ago, his spade on which drops of well earned sweat fell, turned up the soil, the amateur gardener and saw something glitter. He stooped and found a silver watch of ancient fruitage.

When a Coin was Found.

Messrs. Wellwood & Co., who recently opened a fine cigar store at 339 George Street, had a rather peculiar experience yesterday. Yesterday's Police Court

At yesterday's police court two drunks were fined $2 each. Alfred E. Peak, on an enlarged case, charged under by-law 1773, referring to "transient traders" was discharged. It seems that Peak, who was defrauded by Mr. F. Kerr, had been boarding at the Munro House and taking orders for rain coats. He had the coats sent from Toronto to his customers. A blacklister who had been remanded for a week was fined $10. He said he was supplied with his whiskey by a man named Patterson who is now at Valcartier.

A Patriotic Move.

Mr. W. H. Romaigk, manager of the Academy of Music, is the first citizen to come forward with an offer to hold a patriotic concert, the proceeds to be devoted to a fund for home needs. This generous offer, it is unnecessary to state, has been accepted, and the concert (which by the way, will be one of a series to be held) will take place in the Academy of Music on Friday evening next. Admission will be by voluntary contribution, and the nature of the program will be such as to make it worth while to attend.—Lindsay Post.

Sergt. Brown of the local police force has returned to duty after a two months' visit to Scotland. Some of the firms are offering their employees five pounds (twenty dollars) a month and one shilling (25c) a week for every child, to those who wish to go to the front. Officer Brown's friends in the city will be pleased to learn of his safe return and extend best wishes to Mr. Brown and his recently acquired bride.

Patriotic Cheese Board

The Cheese Board sounded a patriotic note yesterday morning. Mr. Duff, of Selwyn moved, seconded by Mr. Coughlin, of Hastings, that each factory in this district give one day's make of cheese to the Patriotic Fund. The motion was carried with a standing vote. A rough estimate of the proceeds from this source is $2,000. W. S. Cook, buyer, introduced the matter. At Sterling and Campbellford he said, the farmers had decided to give a day's make of cheese. The makers offered their services free for the day. A splendid enthusiasm was shown on both boards. The method they adopted was that the salesmen should take the proposal up with their patrons and report back at the next Board meeting. If any patron did not wish to give their milk, they need not send it to the factories.

Local Cheese Board.

The Cheese Board chronicled a new price record this morning. The salesmen went home to their farmer patrons with the best of tidings. W. S. Cook and G. A. Gillespie bought the market at 15 1'16 cents. Mr. Flavelle opened fire at the 1,497 cheese with a quotation of 14c. Gillespie raised to 1-8 and from that point the bidding was unusually keen, as follows: Flavelle 4-2, Norton 5-8, Cook 15-16, Flavelle 3-4, Cook 13-16, Gillespie 7-8, Gillespie 15 cents, Cook 15 1-16c. This was the limit, but it was a merry struggle with the farmers smiling all over, and wishing the buyers would hit the sky. The cheese boarded were as follows: Shearer 90; Selwyn, 70; Villiers 65; Warsaw 80; Westwood, 115; Oakdale, 75; Myrtle 90; Daisy D. 70; Young's Point 40; Laing, 85; Ormonde, 125; Indian River, 67; East Emily 80; Trewern 60; Norwood, 130; Fleetwood, 70; Killarney, 75; Total, 1497. Mr. Cook secured Westwood, Villiers, Keene, Oakdale, Daisy D., Norwood, Killarney, Warminster, Warsaw Selwyn, Young's Point, Trewern, and Laing. Mr. Gillespie secured the balance at 25 1-16c., taking Shearer East Emily, Fleetwood, Ormonde, Myrtle, Indian River. The Board adjourned for three weeks. Notwithstanding the above quoted prices, Mr. Cook of Belleville, told the Times yesterday that contrary to reports in the evening papers of yesterday's prices being the highest on record, he remembers 15½c. being offered a few years ago.

IF PARIS FALLS, IT'S ONLY START OF WAR SAYS OSCAR STRAUSS

London, Sept. 2.—Oscar S. Strauss, former United States ambassador, to Turkey and member of the Hague peace tribunal, declared that if the German army enters Paris it will hardly be more than the beginning of the present war.

"And when this war is finally over I do not think there will be a monarchy left in Europe," added Strauss.

FATE OF PARIS HANGS ON BATTLE NOW RAGING---3,000,000 LOYAL DEFENDERS AWAITING INVADERS

Government Moved to Bordeaux No Signs of Enemy in North

Paris, Sept. 3.—(12.03 a.m.)—A proclamation has just been issued by the Government announcing that the Government departments will be transferred temporarily to Bordeaux.

The proclamation was issued by the Minister of the Interior, who said the decision had been taken solely upon the demand of the military authorities, because the fortified places of Paris, while not necessarily likely to be attacked, would become the pivot of the field operations of the two armies.

The building of supplementary defence works is proceeding vigorously. Several of the gates of Paris were closed to traffic last night.

Story of Day's Fighting

Regarding the progress of the battle which the Germans are waging on French and Belgian soil, both French and British Governments are virtually keeping silence. The movements of the troops are meagrely reported, and it has been impossible, through these reports, to form any adequate idea of how the tide of battle is flowing. The following official bulletins have been issued.

Orders have been issued for the removal of all wounded from Paris to Rennes and Nantes.

An official statement issued by the Paris War Office during the afternoon said:

"We are slowly advancing in the region of the Vosges in Lorraine, where a regular siege of the entrenched German position is in progress. For two days we have been slowly driving the Germans back.

"We suffered partial checks in the Neufchateau-Paliseul district, which obliged us to withdraw to the lines near the Meuse, where a general engagement began and now continues.

"The British-French wing has been attacked by a greatly superior force in the Chateau-Cambrai district, and in consequence it retired to the southward to prevent being overwhelmed or cut off.

"Our forces drove the Prussian guard and the tenth German army corps back at Oise with heavy losses, but because of the progress of the German right we were unable to follow up this advantage and were compelled to retire.

"The allied lines hold fast everywhere. At no point have the Germans been able to break through, and our general movements continue along the lines exactly as planned."

The communique issued at 3 o'clock in the afternoon said: "On our left wing during the 1st of September, German cavalry in their march toward the forest of Copiegne had an engagement with English troops, who took ten cannon. Another German cavalry force has pushed as far as the Soissons-Anizy-La-Chateau line.

Anizy-La-Chateau is only 13 kilometres south-west of Laon, capital of the department of the Aisne. Soissons is the same distance to the south-west of Anizy-La-Chateau, and is 129 kilometres (80 miles) in a direct line from Paris.

"In the Rethel and Meuse district the enemy has shown noactivity.

"In Lorraine we have continued to progress along the right bank of the Sanon

"In the south the situation is unchanged. In Upper Alsace the Germans appear to have left before Belfort only a curtain of troops.

"In the north there is no sign of the enemy at Lille, Arras, Toul, Bethune and Lens.

"It is announced from Belgium that fractions belonging to several German army corps are moving east, returning into Germany."

Fortifying Brussels

A despatch to the Havas Agency from Ostend says that the Independence Belge, of Brussels, is authority for the statement that the Germans are fortifying the environs of Brussels and that the cemeteries have been transformed into redoubts.

Other precautions have been taken with a view to strengthening the line of communications.

There is full confidence here that Paris will not be subjected to a bombardment, should the invaders finally reach the outer fortifications. The reason given for this belief is that the outer line of forts, all of which cover the ground between them by cross-fire, are at a distance of seven and a half miles from the fortifications, which is beyond the range of the siege guns.

The official news to-day that "the Germgns have gained ground on our left" means, of course, that the Germans are nearer Paris than they were yesterday, but it is believed that when the invaders get still closer to the capital they will be caught between the Paris forts and the army of defence on the one side, and the allied armies in the field on the other.

JAPAN ANNOUNCES TROOPS LANDED

But Name of Place is Not Given in an Official Statement

Tokio, Sept. 3.—According to official announcement made public here to day the commander of the Japanese squadron reports that on September 2 he landed a detachment at six o'clock in the morning. No enemy was sighted he declared, on land or sea. The place where the landing took place is not announced, but the commander says there are many military transports there and the scene was inspiring.

The war office also announced that the landing of troops (to operate against the German holding of Kiao-Chow) also has been successfully accomplished. Notwithstanding the bad weather, officers and men are in high spirits.

Official Announcement From Paris Says French Lines Are Holding

Paris, Sept. 3.—The only official word from the War Office to-day was the declaration by Gen. Gallien that the French lines still hold.

"Every attempt of the enemy to break through at any point in the north has been blocked," said the general. "The German centre has thrown its entire weight ggainst our lines, and has been unable to make the slightest impression. Their right has pressed our left back, slowly and in complete order, and we have inflicted enormous damage on their forces. The German right is engaged in a most hazardous undertaking. Every mile it is extended, its line of communication moves forward that far, and with their centre held, it may be possible that we will yet surprise them."

The general denied stories that the French and British wounded are being ill-treated by the Germans. Instead he said that the enemy gathers up the French and British wounded with their owo and gives them the best of care. It is stated that to-day's fighting has been general, but the fierceness of the German assault has been considerably lessened.

Amiens Occupied by Germans

A despatch from Amiens, France, to the Daily Mail, dated Tuesday, Sept. 1st, declares that the Germans have taken possession of Amiens after three days' fighting.

Amiens is the capital of the Department of the Somme. It is 70 miles directly north of Paris. It is a manufacturing city and has a population of 90,000. It is on the line of the railroad to Boulogne, and about 50 miles to the west of La Fere and other points in the Department of Aisne where there has been fighting during the past few days between the allied armies and the Germans.

Paris is Confident

In spite of the fact that the French Capital has formally been removed to Bordeaux and that the German army of the West, is within 30 miles of the outer fortifications of Paris, a strange air of confidence prevails to-day among the allies. The general feeling seems to be that the German attack is wearing itself out in hammering away at the allied lines, which give but do not break.

The heaviest fighting on the front to-day was that in which the French left and the German right are still engaged, the Germans throwing their greatest weight on an allied line that extended, roughly speaking from just south of Montdidier to Roye and to Noyon, 14 miles north-east of Compiegne. The German cavalry had swept south to the neighborhood of Compiegne and Soissons, and has been engaged for 48 hours with the United British-French cavalry divisions. This fighting covers a wide stretch, and is reported to be chiefly of a skirmishing nature. The fighting between Montdidier, Roye and Noyon is of the most sanguinary nature. The allied line is very strongly entrenched and is heavily supported with artillery and machine guns. It is admitted at the War Office that the Germans have brought many fresh troops into action and it is considered inevitable that a new line is being formed on which the allies will fall back.

Final Defence "Z" Shaped

So far as outward indications are concerned, the final line of defence will be extremely advantageous to the Allies. Roughly speaking it will take the form of a gigantic letter Z. The first line will extend north-east to a point in the vicinity of Le Fere. The second will extend roughly to the south-east of Rheims. The third will extend north-east again to Merieres; and the fourth south-east toward Verdun. This latter line, however, is mobile, inasmuch as the French are in very great strength all through this territory.

German Advance Amazing

The London Daily News correspondent, wiring from Gournay-En-Bay, a small town near Rouen, says:

"The German advance is amazing! A great battle is raging, with what results I know not, but I do know that the French and British armies are intact and still confident of ultimate success.

"Incredible as it seems the tremendous masses of men that the Germans have hurled at the allies have not overwhelmed them. It seems that while the Germans have the weight, the allies certainly have the wit and science and these, with reinforcements, will eventually win."

"General Pau had fine success, but in the centre and left centre the allies were not so successful, being forced to retire. As a result of Sunday's fighting the Germans now occupy———" (Name of town deleted by censor).

Grand Duke Nicholas Reports The Lemberg Victory To the Emperor

LONDON, Sept. 3.—In a despatch from Petrograd dated yesterday the correspondent of the Times quotes the message of Grand Duke Nicholas to the Emperor on the Russian victory in Galicia as follows:—

"I am happy to gladden yout majesty with the news of the victory won by the army of General Rusky. After seven days of uninterrupted fighting the Austrians are retreating in complete disorder. In some cases they are running away and abandoning their guns, rifles, artillery, packs, and baggage trains.

"Prior to this decisive victory General Rusky's army captured in the course of the seven days 24 guns, a multitude of fire arms, and a great number of machine guns."

If all indications do not fail, the report from the Russian capital continues, the Russians will be definitely victorious in Austria, and as a result the roads to Vienna and Berlin will be opened to the Russian armies.

A DISASTROUS EXPEDITION

Berlin, Sept. 3.—The Tageblatt publishes a despatch from Thorn, a town of west Prussia, on the right bank of the Vistula, describing an ill fated scouting expedition. A steamer equipped with machine guns and carrying about 70 soldiers steamed up the river into Russian territory reaching a point not many miles from Nieszam. The party landed to reconnoitre the country and was attacked by Russian Cossacks. Only ten Germans returned with the steamer.

THREE MILLION OF THE FRENCH ARMY TO DEFEND THE CAPITAL

London, Sept. 3.—The battle whose issue is destined to decide whether history will repeat itself in a second siege of Paris is still in progress, according to the latest official announcement here. Future military historians will write hundreds of volumes about the details of this battle, but all the British public knows officially concerning this titanic struggle—the most momentous one that British soldiers have fought since Waterloo, and the fiercest one ever fought—is contained in one sentence of an official report issued last night by the press bureau. This sentence was that:

"Continuous fighting has been in progress along almost the whole line of battle."

To this generally the French official communication adds the fact that the allied forces have fallen back toward the southwest to avoid an action which might have been engaged in under unfavorable conditions. How far, and to what line the allies have gone, is unknown.

There can be no revelation of military secrets, nothing which a patriotic censorship could criticise, in stating these facts, because the German army which is engaging the allies knows precisely where their first line is drawn, and the purpose of the censorship is only to suppress facts which might give enlightenment to the enemy.

The brief official bulletin of last night is the first word the British people have received from their Government concerning the present battle. The last previous bulletin was Field Marshall Kitchener's statement issued Sunday night, throwing a welcome light on the previous four days' battle, which ended Saturday and which reflected the greatest credit on the generalship and discipline of the British army.

Three Million French Defend Paris

Three million Frenchmen are under arms to defend Paris. They still have confidence in the ultimate result of the war.

The list of killed, wounded, and of missing British soldiers from the crack regiments which were engaged in the four days' battle of last week brings mourning to many noble and aristocratic homes. This, however, is the price of war, which the country appears willing to pay.

Applying This Paste Actually Removes Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Merely applying an inexpensive paste to a hairy surface, say beauty specialists, will dissolve the hairs. This paste is made by mixing a little water with some powdered delatone: after about 2 minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple method not only removes every trace of hair, but leaves the skin free from blemish. To insure success with this treatment, be careful to get real delatone.

McGILL GRADUATES CONTRIBUTE TO THE PATRIOTIC FUND

The Graduates' Society of McGill University is appealing to all Graduates of the University, to do everything in their power towards Patriotic ends and, in order to put on record their unanimous feeling in the matter, each one has been asked to contribute, through the Society, the sum of ONE DOLLAR, towards the Canadian National Patriotic Fund.

A splendid response to the appeal has already been received and the subscriptions are coming in very rapidly. Letters from Sir Wilfred Laurier, Honorable Mr. Doherty, Minister of Justice, Chief Justice Sir Charles Davidson, Dr. F. D. Adams, and many other prominent McGill graduates, have been received, heartily approving of the movement.

As it is impossible for the Society to reach all the Graduates, owing to changes in address, absence from home, etc., we publish the following letter, a copy of which has been mailed to every McGill graduate in the hope of it meeting the notice of some whom the letter has failed to reach in the regular way:—

> At a time like the present, when the destiny of the Empire is at stake, McGill University and its Graduates should come forward and do everything in their power to help the common cause. The individual Graduate probably does not fully realize the influence the Graduates as a whole have in Canadian affairs. Over 5,000 educated men, holding important positions all over the Dominion and elsewhere, are a tremendous power and influence, particularly if their efforts are concentrated on certain fixed objects.
> It was felt by the Executive of the Graduates' Society and by the Committee in charge of the Reunion, which it has been proposed to hold in the Fall of 1915, that in the present crisis of the Empire, something should be done; and it was decided to write a letter to every Graduate asking him to use all his influence towards patriotic ends.
> In order to make our influence felt in a definite way it was thought that a fund should be started to which every graduate of the University would contribute. The contribution of each individual would be for the nominal amount of one dollar which would represent his patriotic vote and the signification of his intention to do everything possible to assist Canada in the responsibility and duty created by the war.
> The vote of the McGill Graduates will be deposited in cash form to the credit of the Canadian National Patriotic Fund.
> You are therefore invited to fill in and return the accompanying cheque form, which will be cashed at par, or to enclose one collar in some other form.
> An immediate response is necessary if this action is to have all the effect that is hoped for from it.
> For the Executive,
> JOHN L. TODD, President.
> WILLIAM STEWART, Secretary.

It may be that some letters have not reached their destination. Remittances should be addressed to Mr. Geo. C. McDonald, 179 St. James Street, Montreal.

ENGLISH ACTRESS MAY GO AS NURSE

Miss Grace Hampton Asks to Be Released From American Contract

Grace Hampton, a beautiful English actress, will probably soon relinquish the prominent role in which she is now appearing in "Kismet" and leave for the European battlefields to take service as a Red Cross nurse. Miss Hampton was for ten years a member of the late Sir Henry Irving's company, appearing in important roles in his repertoire, and acting as understudy for Ellen Terry. Naturally she is deeply interested in the momentous events at home, and just after the war was declared she applied to Harrison Grey Fiske for a release from her contract, but he prevailed upon her to wait for a few weeks at least as the season for "Kismet" was almost ready to open, and the role of "Kut-Al-Kulub" was not an easy one to fill. Yielding to Mr. Fiske's persuasions, she finally agreed to stay, but as the "need of woman's nursing has become so pressing," she has renewed her solicitations and hopes to soon sail on her mission of mercy.

Miss Hampton is soon to appear in Toronto in "Kismet," which is booked for the Princess theatre next week.

NURSES WITH THE CONTINGENT

Niagara Falls, Ont. Sept. 3.—Four Niagara Falls young women, all of them graduate nurses, will sail with the first Canadian contingent for service over the seas. They are: Misses Marie Fisher, Cataract Avenue; Annie Wilkinson, Benson street, and Gertrude and Evelyn Clarke, Park street.

The Fate of Europe

in the Napoleonic Wars rested upon the state of one man's stomach. And because Napoleon's stomach was in such a condition that he could not think quickly or act decisively, the Battle of Waterloo was lost.

It helps mind and body to use a nourishing, easily digested food—such as

Grape-Nuts

Made of the best wheat and barley, it contains all the true nutriment of the grain, including the vital mineral salts, Phosphate of Potash, etc.) often lacking in the ordinary diet, but necessary for balanced up-keep of body and brain.

While war in Europe is sending prices up here, it's a good time to find out there's economy and better health in Grape-Nuts.

MYSTERY OF NATURE

Botanists do Not Agree as to What Causes Plants' Reawakening

What awakens plant life in the spring? How do plants know when winter is at an end? It is not that they feel the warmth of the sun, for many of them are so far beneath the ground that the sun's rays have had no chance to penetrate them when they start to struggle towards the surface of the ground. And when the winter lingers long in the lap of spring, it seems to make little difference to the plants, which come up just the same.

Some plants even bloom with the snow still on the ground. The [illegible] forces its way up through the snow. In the mountains of Southern Europe the soldanellas send up their flower stalks right through the snow, boring their way to the sunlight [illegible] blooming at the surface. When the snow is unusually deep they even bloom underneath it. Their activity is not confined to mere blooming, for often the actual pollenation takes place under the snow.

Botanists are agreed that heat has very little to do with the awakening of plants at the end of winter. The seeds have been lying buried all through the cold months, and long before any warmth can have reached them their tiny shoots have begun to work their way upward through the soil. The water plants, which died down in the fall and whose roots have been lying dormant in the mud at the bottom of the lakes and ponds, feel the call of spring and send forth leaf and flower stalks that soon show up on the surface. The water in which they awake is far colder than was that in which they died down.

As it cannot be the heat that calls things back to life, what else can it be? Leonard Bastin suggests that perhaps the light of the sun, apart from its warmth, has a reviving effect when the days begin to grow longer.

Brief Conversations

Under new German rules no local telephone conversation may last longer than six minutes and no long distance conversation longer than nine.

New Pumping Scheme

Pumps which are being tested in a plant to supply London with water operate by the explosion of gas and air directly against a volume of water.

Good Artificial Rubber

Automobile tires made by the German inventor of synthetic rubber have been run more than 4,000 miles with out any apparent signs of wear.

STRENUOUS DUTIES OF INFANTRY C.O.

The "Old Man's" Responsibilities Heavy, His Pay For Services Light

The officer commanding a British infantry battalion, who is known as the O.C., C.O. or, behind his back, the "old man," receives $5.85 a day pay, exclusive of certain allowances.

His gross income is well under $2500 a year, and he is certainly not overpaid, for he must be exceptionally lucky to get command before he is forty, and his responsibilities are heavy.

The C.O.'s daily day varies greatly according to climate and other circumstances, but, as a rule, he starts work with "orderly room" at 9 or 9.30 a.m.

The "orderly-room" is the regimental police court, and, like those of a police magistrate, the C.O.'s penal powers are limited. He must investigate every charge brought before him, but in the case of serious offences, such as desertion, he must either dismiss the charge altogether, reduce it to one of absence without leave, with which he has power to deal, or remand the prisoner for trial by court-martial.

The severest punishment the C.O. can award is fourteen days "cells," save in the case of absence without leave, when he can order imprisonment up to twenty-one days.

A "non-com." can be summarily punished by reprimand or severe reprimand only, otherwise he must be sent for trial by court-martial. The C.O., however, can reduce a non-com. who holds acting rank. Officers are subject to "wiggings" only, and the "Officer's call" is usually the precurser of the "rough side of the old man's tongue."

"Orderly-room" is usually humdrum enough, but sometimes there is excitement.

I remember one occasion when a man was marched in charged with a fairly serious offence, says a writer in Answers. Asked whether he had anything to say, he replied by kicking over the C.O.'s table. It was quite some seconds before the horror-stricken escort and sergeant-major recovered their presence of mind, fell upon the rebel, and carried him out, fighting like a tiger. I don't know what they did to him outside, but when he was marched in again all the "kick" had gone out of him. Six months' "hard" was the subsequent court-martial sentence.

Round the Married Patch

After "orderly-room" comes "C.O.'s parade," that is if it is one of the appointed days, for the C.O.'s office duties will rarely permit of his personally commanding parade more than two or three times a week, except, of course, on manœuvres.

"Papers" are the bugbear of the C.O.'s life. As there are only twenty-four hours in a day it is usually impossible for him to read half of what is put before him. Generally he has to trust to his subordinates, the orderly-room sergeant in particular, that everything is in order. Even so, merely signing his name will absorb three or four hours a day.

Of course, he has many special duties to perform.

Once a week, usually Saturday, he will visit the barrack-rooms for kit inspection, and on Sunday he usually goes round the "married patch."

There are recruits to be inspected before they are dismissed drill, and, if musketry is on, he will pay frequent visits to the range.

There are recruit officers to be examined, and once a week the C.O. lectures to and examines the officers as a whole.

He presides at officers' mess meetings, and, one way and another, his time is fully occupied. But his real work is unofficial.

He should be the "father" of his regiment, and, without prying, he should know everything that is going on in it. He should know when to administer that unofficial word in season which will pull an erring youngster straight.

As a rule, the C.O. is married, but if he is a bachelor his position calls for great tact, for then he lives among his subordinates. So far as possible he lays aside his rank in the mess, but at the same time he is generally responsible for the maintenance of good order and discipline.

The man who commands a battalion shoulders responsibilities and performs work which in civil life would bring him a handsome reward, but the C.O.'s expenses are such that he can rarely live on his pay, while at the end of his term he usually has nothing to look forward to but retirement on $2,100 a year.

A RECORD BAG

Great Sport For Haileybury and Cobalt Hunters

Probably one of the largest bags of game secured in the North country was made by a party of Cobalt and Haileybury hunters. The gentlemen in question, eight in number, were out in the bush five miles from Gillies, for a week, and in that short space of time, secured one moose, one bear and eight deer, a remarkable record, for a trip of that duration.

That the chase was most successful the "bag" captured attests, and the hunters report that deer were most plentiful in that neighborhood, and could easily be shot. These deer which they themselves obtained were shot in a thicket, and there was very little necessity to go hunting them. The moose, also, which was a good specimen of the monarch of the bush, was obtained without much trouble, being shot from a distance of two hundred yards, and three shots despatched the animal.

The presence of the bear in the "bag" was due largely to Bruin's fondness for fresh venison. Attracted by the smell of deer flesh the bear approached the hunters' camp and proceeded to make short work of the head and entrails of one of the slain deer. He had spoiled the former for mounting purposes before his presence in the immediate vicinity was noticed, but, once he had been observed, no time was lost in adding his carcase to the list of trophies secured.

The bodies of the various animals captured were towed across the river behind a canoe, and were afterwards loaded in sleighs and in that way brought back home. The hunters reported that before the snow fell, the deer, especially, were captured without any great difficulty, but, after the storm, more trouble was experienced in shooting them. The party returned home well pleased with the result of the trip.

WEDDINGS TOO RARE

Harrow Vicar Deplores the Lack of Marriages at His Church

The vicar of St. Peter's, Harrow, Middlesex, is deploring the lack of marriages at his church. Writing in his parish magazine, he says:

"The number of weddings at St. Peter's bears no proportion to the christenings. Considering that each wedding means a fee of over $2.50, we think the blankness of the marriage register for the last two months most inconsiderate of the parish at large."

The vicar explains that the great majority of his parishioners are young married people living in new houses in a new district. They have done their courting and marrying elsewhere.

MRS. HUMPHREY WARD

Anti-suffragist that she is, Mrs. Humphrey Ward doesn't believe that women should sit in Parliament, but that Parliament should give attention to women. She suggests the organization of an auxiliary, or unofficial branch of Parliament where women and members of the House of Commons would confer as to the legislative matters concerning women.

ENGLISH-CANADIANS

Rev. Dr. Gordon, Winnipeg, Preaches Sermon on "An Englishman in Canada"

Here are some excerpts from a recent sermon by Rev. Dr. J. L. Gordon, Winnipeg, on "An Englishman in Canada":

"I am not surprised that an Englishman should be homesick in Western Canada. I would be surprised if he were not. Think of England with her cathedral towns, her classic villages, her sacred monuments, her beautiful hedgelined roads, her solid splendor, her quiet dignity, her peaceful atmosphere and her ten thousand historical associations. It will be a thousand years before we will have anything to compare with the beauty—the fascinating beauty of Dear Old England.

"Yet I know certain Englishmen and Englishwomen who think and affirm that Canada is one of the finest places in the world in which to live. I have in mind at this moment one family of English emigrants of fair intelligence, average ability and less than normal health, who in a few years have purchased for themselves a modest but very comfortable home, made generous contributions to the church and kindred institutions, and induced almost a score of their relatives to join them on this side of the sea. They believe in Canada because they have succeeded in Canada (and Canada is a good country to succeed in). The emigrant who fails in Canada was a failure at home. Canada is another word for success.

"Canada is a good country. Less liquor is sold in Canada than in any other country—thanks to the 'temperance crank.' Canada has the lowest death rate of any country in the world. There are fewer ignorant and illiterate people in Canada than in any other country. There are fewer paupers in Canada to the square mile than elsewhere. In Canada the working day is longer, the night brighter, the air more bracing, the social conditions more democratic and the prospects brighter than anywhere else on the North American continent. I believe in Canada!"

ALONG THE SKEENA

A River Which Passes Among the Rockies With Great Velocity

Railroad building, its cost and its difficulties is always an interesting topic. The conquest the engineer has achieved over nature's obstacles is nowhere better illustrated than on the section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway along the banks of the Skeena River which is the last of the rivers along the banks of which the traveller will pass before his arrival at Prince Rupert. The Skeena River runs with amazing velocity towards the ocean. It was a terror even to the Indians and the totem poles along its bank mark many a tragedy in the redman's history. The bed of the river is strewn with gigantic rocks, boulders and sand bars and these are shifting continually under the force of the river's current. The railroad builders by means of big outlays of money on river appliances made the Skeena serve as the means of transporting the supplies for a construction army numbering 2,000 men and ,000 horses. Very little tunneling has been done, as nearly four million cubic yards of rock were blown away in 186 miles of line between Prince Rupert and Hazelton to make an attractive route through the Cascades.

Foretelling the Weather

Weather forecasts were used last summer in regulating the fire-protective patrol in the Railway Belt, British Columbia. As the prevailing winds were westerly the weather to be expected in the interior of the province could be foretold by telegraph many hours in advance, and if there was little danger to be expected, the District Fire Inspector would permit a temporary decrease in the railway patrol.

BRITISH-CANADIAN

Do you desire to make large profits on your investment in Alberta Oil Shares?

If you do you must use good judgment in the selection of the companies in which you invest.

In order that you may use this good judgment it is absolutely necessary that you investigate and analyze a company thoroughly before placing your money in its shares.

In order that you may do this in the case of the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., we hereby give you the information we have secured through our rigid investigation and analysis of said company, and in giving this information we would say that we believe it is correct in every detail.

(1) The British Canadian Oils, Ltd., is incorporated for $1,000,000; 10,000,000 shares at the par value of 10c.

(3) The Directors' and Officers' stock is all pooled.

(4) The Company is the holder of petroleum and natural gas leases on over 7,000 acres of land in the Province of Alberta.

(5) The Directors, Officers and Solicitors of the Company are all reliable and conscientious business men who have the welfare of the company at heart, and who desire in every manner in their power to give the public a square run for their money.

(6) The Company is now erecting on Section 31, Township 24, Range 4, an up-to-date combination rotary and standard rig.

(7) The Company expects to commence drilling inside of 3 days, and continue with all possible despatch.

(8) The Company has secured as Field Superintendent a man who knows his business thoroughly.

(9) The said Superintendent has engaged competent drillers to carry out his instructions.
(10) The treasury of the Company is now well financed.

(11) A reputable local geologist in reporting on adjoining property makes the following statement in said report:

"There is a plunging tendency in the crest of the anticline which causes its crest to sink toward the Elbow river. The crest of this dome-shaped structure seems to be in the neighborhood of Section 31, of Township 24, and Section 6 of Township 25."

(12) A reputable petroleum engineer in reply to an enquiry from us, stated that the lease held by the British Canadian Oils, Ltd., in Section 31, is situated on the most perfect anticline he has seen in Western Alberta.

(13) British Canadian shares are listed on the three Calgary exchanges, and are very active traders.

(14) The price of British Canadian shares is very low at the present time; we expect to see it go much higher.

In view of the above information secured by us, we have no hesitation whatever in advising you to at once buy the shares of the British Canadian Oils, Limited, at 15c per share, believing that you will get a square run for your money, and big profits on your investment.

We are prepared to fill your orders for British Canadian shares at 15c each, but this price is subject to raise without notice. Any new strike in the oil field, or any other exciting report might send this stock to a very high price. We would suggest that you wire us at our expense and let your remittance follow, or if you prefer, write us and enclose your remittance.

THE NEWEST PROFESSION

College Graduate Coaches Society Aspirants in Proper Use of English

"Cambridge man is prepared to give lessons in idiomatic English to those who through lack of early opportunity are at a disadvantage in society."

The above advertisement in the "Agony column" of a London newspaper attracted a reporter's attention and he set out to investigate.

He found the advertiser ensconced in a tastefully-furnished little bachelor flat in the fashionable Kensington district of London. He is a young man, clean-shaven and well-groomed, and with the quiet air of easy self-assurance that is everywhere the accepted hall-mark of the world.

"Mind you," he said, in the course of a conversation, "I don't profess to be an authority on the English language. I only profess to teach my clients the particular brand of idiomatic English which is spoken at the present time in good society, the little nice ties of which vary from year to year and which can only be acquired by experience. And I not only teach them what to say; I teach them—and this is far more important—what not to say.

"Let me explain. I have as a client an agriculturist, who is an authority, naturally, on that subject, but who knows absolutely nothing, we will say about art. Very well. I tell him to talk pigs, not pictures, in general society. In the bosom of his family, of course, it is different. There he can air his views about Royal Academy art, if he cares to do so. He is only making himself ridiculous to his wife and children, and possibly not even to them, since it is quite conceivable, in fact, probable, that they know as little about the Royal Academy as he does.

"Mostly my clients are men who have knocked about the world, and made their bit in the process, and who realise that there is a certain advantage accruing to them in being able to translate what is usually a varied and interesting experience of life into good idiomatic English, such as one hears across the dining-table, say, of an educated household.

"A little while back a man came to me who had begun life as a navvy on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and had afterwards blossomed into a prize-fighter, and finally into a full-fledged millionaire.

"At the beginning he had an accent that you could cut with a knife, his grammar was atrocious, his vocabulary strictly limited; he splintered when he drank whisky, and sighed when he ate soup. In six weeks I had taught him sufficient to enable him to hold his own fairly well in any society. I had, indeed, if I may say so, revolutionised the man."

Our Point of View

Under the New York workingmen's compensation law, employers exhibit a decided preference for unmarried men. Desirable legislation, but undigested.

—o—

This week look for stories of musketry heard in the direction of Montreal. The Hay Fever Association convenes at Bethlehem.

—o—

Somehow that "scrap of paper" argument has a familiar ring. Did some one use it in pleading for Panama tolls exemption?

The New York Progressives have decided on their nominations "pre-primary." Thus the people rule!

—o—

Hereafter no war extras in Paris—not for lack of news, but for dearth of paper.

—o—

There is a disposition in the U.S. country to call the European war the war of the rulers.

—o—

The first of the oyster months has arrived. There is curiosity as to what will be the play of prices.

—o—

Another reason why the armies are censoring the news: If the whole story came out, it would end militarism.

—o—

According to a University of Pennsylvania professor the long continued attacks on railroads and railroad management have turned students away from railroading as a calling.

—o—

One of the writers of letters to the New York Herald complains that for Canadians to go to war under the British flag is a violation of the Monroe doctrine. The amount of ignorance concerning that so much misrepresented pronouncement of American policy is surprising.

—o—

At Monday night's council meeting, Ald. Stratton and Duncan asked for a little less blank firing and more ammunition. Some families of Peterborough's volunteers, the latter added, have not a cent in the house, and if they want a shoe-lace or a paper, they can't get them without an order on some one. Just fancy having to get an order for a cent shoe-lace or a cent paper! Truly, the families of our gallant volunteers must be looked after better than that. And let it be soon!

Nerviline Cures Cramps Ends Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure?

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid truthful fact. No other remedy—not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It hits the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Nerviline is handy. It may be earache toothache or cramps, Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

Not Much of a Sacrifice

Ald. Stratton's resolution in Council Monday night, that each of our volunteers for the front be given $5.00 for personal use was thrown down on the ground that the volunteers are receiving the magnificent pay of $1.10 per day. Anyone who has read, or knows anything about the horrors of war will readily recognize that pay envelopes are not passed around very regularly at the front, and a $5 bill would at times go a long way towards mitigating the privations engendered by military operations. To say the least, our city's volunteers in defence of Canada and the Empire are serving in the defence of stay-at-homes and concrete recognition of their pluck and heroism by their home town, in the shape of a $5 bill, would encourage them in their devotion to Britain and all things British. Ald. Stratton evidently believes in giving credit where credit is due, and in doing it in a practical way; and surely had his patriotic resolution passed Council, the sacrifice by this city would have fallen far short of the sacrifice many of our volunteers will be called upon to make for "God, their King, and their Country."

No Sacrifice Too Great

"The Hun is at the gate!"

Kipling's stark line presents, with all his native, naked force, the tragedy which overhangs us. Let there be the fate of the British people if their effort to save Europe from a worse than Napoleonic despotism proves finally a failure. Their prestige will be gone—their Empire will be marked off for disemberment—the final volume of their history will be written, and we shall take our place among the classics.

To avert this fate, no sacrifice is too great. We in Canada have prepared one contingent, and are talking of others to follow. This is but the easy first gesture of sympathy from a safe and confident people. But we must now realize that we are no longer safe, and that it is a fatuous folly to feel confident. The greatest military power the world has ever hatched, is vowed to compass our destruction; and already its armies are in the heart of the country of our Ally, and its bombs drop in the streets of Paris.

If all that we have built up through the centuries of British liberty and constitutional government and popular freedom—built tier on tier of sacrificial stone, cemented by the blood of the Fathers—is not to perish under the onrush of the new Goths, we must prepare to "make the iron sacrifice of body, will and soul."

As in other times of stress, when other peoples were pushed to the last extreme, women brought their jewels to the war chest, and men marched out to die for their country, so must we be prepared today to strip ourselves utterly of the materials of "comfort, content, delight, the ages' slow-bought gain"; and to devote every ounce of strength, be it contained in gold and lands, or in flesh-and-blood, to the defence of this Empire, which is itself humanity's chief defence of liberty.

BANK OF MONTREAL COMES TO RESCUE

Montreal, Sept. 2.—Arrangements have been practically completed whereby the city will get $6,000,000 from the Bank of Montreal on the security of the civic $7,300,000 which has been hanging fire for some time. The loan is to be temporary, but this will be sufficient to carry on the business of the city until the financial situation is improved.

As a result of the lessons received during the past few weeks to convince the civic authorities of the uselessness of hawking the city bonds on the New York market and elsewhere, a wonderful change has been manifested. Controller Hebert has a new outlook on the situation. "We should never have left the Bank of Montreal; we made a big mistake," he declared yesterday. Mr. Herbert was not prepared to announce anything regarding terms, but stated that the bank was treating the city excellently, and not taking advantage of the present conditions.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows:

In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,806 feet and 1,815 feet.

The well is now down 1,850 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

BUT BETTER FOR YOU

You wash dishes about two hours every day.
That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. MAN OF MANY CREEDS

Debtor's Remarkable Confessions in the Bankruptcy Court

How a former undergraduate of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, in turn embraced the tenets of the Church of England, the Roman Catholic faith, the Presbyterian, and the Baptists was related at the Cambridge Bankruptcy Court at the examination of Christopher Stanley Long.

He admitted that he had twice entered the Roman Catholic Church, and had also preached a sermon in a Presbyterian church, and had had sermons printed. He opened a banking account at Bournemouth with $250 given him by a lady with whom he had been travelling. He withdrew all the money, but afterwards cashed a cheque for $75 on that account. He expected to receive a loan from a gentleman in Cheshire whom he had met at an hotel, but it did not come.

With the money he went to Switzerland, and stayed at the Royal Hotel, Lucerne, for six or seven weeks. There he went under the name of Carlyle, doctor of philosophy.

In Switzerland he cashed another cheque for $150 on his overdrawn account in England. Under the name of Dr. Angus he borrowed $100 from a lady to whom he represented that he was writing a book on Christian archæology for the Yale University Press, and wanted to visit the Holy Land. He wrote later confessing the whole thing was a fabrication.

For a time he masqueraded in Gloucestershire as Father Bernard, of the Order of the Divine Redeemer, and had numerous papers printed. But no such order existed. He was starting the society. At Cambridge, after pawning his landlady's ring, he agreed to buy it and pay her during the following term.

BRITAIN'S FISH TRADE

Value of Sea Fish in One Year Over $50,000,000—Growing Export Trade With the Continent

The value of the sea fish landed in England and Wales for one year amounted to $51,685,000, and reckoned in terms of human food, the year's catch amounted to some 16 million hundredweight, exclusive of "shell fish," which for statistical purposes includes lobsters, crabs, and other edible crustaceans.

Not all this quantity of food went to supply British markets, for there is a great and growing export trade with the Continent in herrings and other fish. It is probably not generally recognized how large a part the fisheries play in our foreign trade, and it may, perhaps, come as a surprise to most persons to learn that approximately eleven million hundredweights of fish were exported from the United Kingdom in 1913. The herring plays by far the larger part in this export business.

The Prolific Herring

The outstanding feature of the year has again been the record herring fishery. In the year 1913 the landings of herrings in England and Wales exceeded those of any previous year by some 330,000 hundredweight; the landings of 1913 exceeded the record total of 1912 by little short of 2,000,000 hundredweight, and the value increased by more than $3,000,000. It is a matter of considerable interest that this phenomenal rise in the take of herring should have occurred at a time when serious apprehensions are being entertained and vigorously expressed of disaster to the herring industry through the operations of those who are taking herring by means of the trawl.

The fishing industry is a great employer of labor. The number of men and boys regularly employed is given as 37,442, while occasional labor brings the total up to 44,804. For the whole of the British Islands the total number employed is 99,530. It appears that this population is fairly constant, and the prosperity of the industry has in all probability had a stimulating effect on employment in allied trades, especially shipbuilding and engineering.

Defrauding Butcher Punished

Butchers are very prone to label foreign meat as "Prime Scotch" and "English." Albert William Adlington, who has shops in Walton street, Chelsea, and High road, Chiswick, did this and at Westminster was fined $100 with $31.50 costs, the magistrate saying he regarded the offence as one which must be taken notice of in a serious way. Adlington was no doubt trying to steal a march on other tradesmen, and to a certain extent he was defrauding and misleading the public.

Prosecuting for the Board of Agriculture, etc., Mr. Graham Trapnell, barrister, said the manager of the Chelsea shop was interviewed by Mr Munro, an inspector under the Act and it was a serious aspect of the case that the admission was made that there was no English or Scotch meat at all in the shop—nothing but foreign imported meat. In addition, the meat labelled as Scotch was sold at the same price as the real article in the district. Counsel suggested that Adlington took a mean advantage of trade competition, and that the business was conducted not only with total disregard of the law, but of commercial fair dealing.

A solicitor, pleading guilty, expressed regret that a mistake had occurred. The explanation was that, running out of ordinary labels and tickets, those appertaining to home produce were used.

Hero of 200 Duels

Labertesque, a Frenchman, whose death took place the other week, was the hero of 200 duels. He achieved an instant notoriety when he went to Paris, for he began his career of fighting the whole town council of Algiers, and summed up with his famous duel with Max Regis, the mayor. The duel lasted two days, and in the end Labertesque wounded Max Regis in the arm. He became a boulevard hero, acclaimed in song and story, and he became also the leader of a group known as "The Musketeers."

Labertesque was a giant in strength. His prowess has passed into a legend. At eighteen he dropped into the swirl of Venezuelan revolution, fighting in the streets of Caracas. A little later he was in Cuba following the high adventure. Forty-three duels with sword, yataghan, or pistol stood to his credit in three years. He joined the Spahi Regiment in Algeria, and astounded them with his prodigious strength.—Daily Express.

According to an Italian every person in the world could stand comfortably in an area of 500 square miles, while a graveyard about the size of Colorado would bury all of them.

Coffin on a Tramcar

A Swansea tram conductor had a strange experience. A man and a woman, carrying what appeared to be a box, approached the back of the car and asked if they might board it with their "parcel." The conductor's suspicions were aroused, and the "parcel" turned out to be a coffin, containing the body of a two-year-old child. The couple were asked to leave the car.

Family Cost Ratepayers $2,500

A remarkable statement was made at Glasgow in connection with the prosecution of Joseph Smith, a carter, for failing to maintain two children, whereby they became chargeable to the parish. It was stated that the prisoner's family had cost the ratepayers $2,500. He was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

Nonagenarian Lady Shorthand Writer

The sudden death is announced of a Perthshire nonagenarian of remarkable qualities. This was Mrs. Lamb, widow of the late James Lamb, builder, of Bankfoot. Mrs. Lamb, who had reached the age of ninety-four, was an accomplished shorthand writer, and was, after she had passed her ninetieth birthday, to be found in the parish church every Sunday taking shorthand notes of the sermons.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

VET'S CHARGES HIGH

Sues For $123 and Gets Judgment For $81.35

Mr. Edward Sewell, a veterinary surgeon, of Thurloe place, South Kensington, stated at West London County Court that he had charged at the rate of a guinea a visit when tending a dog suffering from pneumonia at Miss Victoria Monk's flat. He sought to recover $123 from the well known music hall artist for professional services. Mr. Lever (defending) said that Miss Monks would not have disputed the account if the charges had been fair.

A veterinary surgeon said Mr. Sewell's charges were very high. One dollar and a quarter a visit would be fair, but most "vets" would charge eighty-five cents.

The judge (Sir William Selfe) said he did not think the defendant was liable, but she had intimated she would consent to judgment for a reasonable sum. He considered the plaintiff's charges were monstrous. He himself had paid many bills of veterinary surgeons, but the plaintiff's "beat the record." There would be judgment for the plaintiff for $81.35.

ENGLAND'S GREAT NAMES

Interesting Debate on Which County Produced Most Illustrious Men

Many readers will probably dispute the decision arrived at by the judges at a debate on the subject of which English county has produced the greatest men before the Society of Warwickshire Folk in London, who, after listening to the champions of celebrities of thirteen counties, gave their verdict in favor of Lancashire. Lancashire was the native county of John Bright, whose oratory fascinated and enthralled men, among other famous statesmen which it claims being Gladstone, who was born at Liverpool, Sir Robert Peel, born near Bury, and Lord Morley, who claims Blackburn as his native place.

In literature the county is very strongly represented: De Quincey, Mrs. Hemans, the famous poetess, Hall Caine, Harrison Ainsworth, and Richard Le Gallienne, being among other famous authors who were born in Lancashire. Neither must one forget Sir Richard Arkwright, the inventor of the cotton-spinning frame; Romney, the famous painter; and such actors as John Kemble, Sothern, and Edmund Kean, three of the greatest who ever appeared on the English stage.

Hampshire and Derbyshire

Hampshire is proudly referred to by its people and admirers as the cradle of the English race—the cradle of the ecclesiastical system, cradle of the English Navy, and the cradle of the national game of cricket. Palmerston, Thomas Arnold, Charles Dickens, George Meredith, Millais, and Tennyson, who, though he was born in Lincolnshire, had his favorite residence in the Isle of Wight, are men who have added lustre to little Hampshire.

Mr. Morice Gerard (the Rev. J. Jessop Teague), author of many popular books, proudly claims for Derbyshire that it is the county which started everything. In other words, that its famous men were the pioneers in all things. It produced James Brindley, founder of canals; Sir Francis Chantrey, one of the finest sculptors who ever lived, Herbert Spencer, the founder of that school in which Huxley and Darwin graduated; Sir Hugh Willoughby, the first of a long line of explorers who set out in the sixteenth century from Deptford to find the Northwest passage; Sir James Outram, the Bayard of India; and last but not least, "Little John," Robin Hood's great small man.

Claims of Warwickshire

On the other hand, Warwickshire claims to have produced Robin Hood himself, and among other greater celebrities Shakespeare, acknowledged to be among the greatest of Englishmen, Walter Savage Landor, George Eliot, Sir Edwin Arnold, David Cox, Sir Francis Galton, Burne-Jones, James Watt, Richard Baxter, and Cardinal Newman.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain was certainly born in Camberwell, but his finest work was done in Warwickshire, where he spent the greater part of his life.

Gallant little Sussex, however, not only claims to have produced the man who evolved the mangel-wurzel, but such men as Cobden and Shelley; and is also not a little proud of the fact that F. W. Lillywhite, one of the fathers of cricket, was a Sussex man. But the Channel Islands do not feel inclined to give way to any English county in regard to sporting champions, for it was from Jersey that those two wonderful golfers Ray and Vardon came.

Good old "Zummerset" claims Henry Fielding, father of the English novel, who was born a few miles from Glastonbury. It also produced Roger Bacon, father of science; Chatterton, the boy poet; Sebastian Cabot, the great explorer; Sir Henry Irving, too, came from Somerset, as well as John Locke, one of the greatest philosophers of his time, not to mention John Bull, who was erroneously believed to be the author of "God Save the King," and who was a Somersetshire man and a notable scientist.

Nelson a Norfolk Man

Those pioneers of liberty, Coke, Walpole, and Tom Paine, as well as Nelson, Lord Cromer, and George Borrow, hailed from Norfolk; while Yorkshire is represented by the two famous explorers and pioneers, Captain Cook and Frobisher. William Wilberforce, too, was a Yorkshire man, while mention might also be made of Lord Hawke, the famous English admiral.

It has been rather humorously suggested that Staffordshire's greatest claim to fame is that Jonathan Wild and Jack Sheppard, both hanged at Tyburn, were born within its borders; but those who made the remark wilfully forget that that county was the birthplace of Samuel Johnson, Izaak Walton, father of fishermen.

Moving Picture Kodak

A Polish scientist is the inventor of a motion picture camera which can be carried in the hand and which is operated by compressed air as long as a button is pressed.

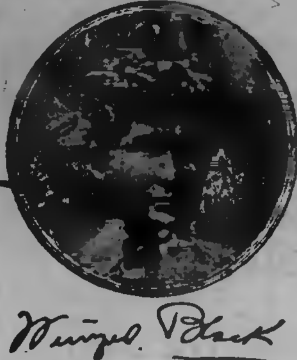
What Kind of a Castle Are You Making Today?

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

THE little boy ran in, his face aflame with joy. He had in his left hand a tall white fleu-de-lis—white flags, we used to call them when I was a little boy's age—and in the other hand he carried a real flag—red, white and blue.

The fleur-de-lis drooped a little, and the real flag was a bit creased and wrinkly—the little boy's hands weren't hands at all, but grubby little paws—and his face was grimy, and the nice clean waist he had put on in the morning was spotted—and he had torn a hole, a great big jagged one at that, right in the knee of his trousers.

"Well," said I, "little boy, whatever is the matter; have you been to the wars?"

And some one, who loves the little boy very dearly—but he does not quite understand him—said, "Little boy, how dreadfully you look. Your hands and your face—I should think you would be afraid the rag man would get you and carry you off in his wagon."

The little boy looked at me and then at the one who does not quite understand him, and his clear eyes shone.

"I know I'm dirty," he said, "and I tared my clothes—but I built a castle. Dis flag is going on top of the castle, and dis big white flower is a tall tree that I'm going to plant by the gate. Come," said the little boy, "come and see my castle."

Little Boy's Castle.

And the one who loves the little boy very dearly, but who does not understand him very well, and I went out into the garden to see the castle—and a fine, brave castle it turned out to be.

"I didn't think I could make it at first," said the little boy. "It was so mixed up, but I worked and worked. I carried the water in my tin cup to mix with the dirt, and I found the stones over there by the garden wall. Some of dem was weal heavy, too—dat's how I tared my clothes, carrying de stones—and now I've got my flag—and my tree—Oh," the little boy fairly danced, "oh, isn't it a splendid castle?"

And it was—quite splendid—and we told him so, and he was very proud and sat down to look at it with his grubby hands on his knees, and an air of great pride and contentment.

I knew a man once who started out to build him a castle. A fair castle of proud proportions—and the name of the castle was to be Success.

He was a fine young fellow when he went out into the garden of the world to build the castle—proud, brave, self-reliant, frank, kind and generous.

We were all very proud of him, in the house where he lived, and we loved him and were very anxious to see what he was going to do, when he left us behind and went out into the great garden to do his chosen work. And one day when it was very quiet at home the man I used to know came back—and he wasn't the same man at all.

His frank eyes were veiled, his high look was fallen, his kind smile was hard, and, oh, his whole face was as if some rough hand had passed over it rudely, and smoothed away everything that was beautiful and fine—and left nothing there but the smutch of cruelty, and selfishness and evil ambition.

But he had built his castle, so he told me, and a sorry, sorry castle it was—made of nothing but money. No tall trees flowered by the gate—no free flag floated from the battlements. It was just a dirty, sordid, crooked pile—of dirty, sordid, crooked money. And the man who had built it had looked at it so long that he thought it was beautiful, and he could not understand when we, who loved him and wanted to be proud of him, tried to get him to talk about something else.

But a Crumbled Pile.

He showed us the dirt on his hands, he showed us the scars on his face—ugly scars that stood for ugly things—and he was proud of them.

And we were all very sad and didn't know what to say, and the man we all wanted to love and be proud of jingled the money in his pockets so loud that he didn't hear the sweet old song that somebody tried to sing for him—the song his mother sang when she held him in her arms years and years ago. And we, who loved him, were all at once very glad when the man we wanted to be proud of got up and went away—forever—from our lives.

He died the other day. There was a great horde of people around his death bed, relatives most of them, and persons who call themselves his friends.

The man we all wanted to be proud of tried to tell the people, who crowded into the room where he lay dying, something about his castle. He showed them the scars that he had got building the castle—and he told them how hard he had worked, and how fine the castle stood when he had finished with it—and the relatives and the people who pretended to be his friends looked at the clock and whispered—to each other—"When will the will be read?"

And when the man heard this he turned restlessly on his pillow, and asked some one to sing to him the sweet old song his mother used to sing, when she carried him in her arms, when he was a little, little boy—years and years ago. But no one knew the song—and so the man died, without it.

The castle that the man we all wanted to love built? Oh, that was all torn down—the very day the will was read—and the dead man was so proud of it, and so anxious that it should stand forever, too.

Little Boy, with the grave and honest eyes—when you build your castle, build it, I beg you, of something besides money, and let the scars you get in the building of it be honorable ones.

And then we, who love you, will be very happy—for we will be able to be proud of you and of your castle.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am in love with a young fellow with whom I have been going for over two years. He never goes with any one else, and he thinks lots of me. He wants me to marry him, and I am willing to, as we can't stay away from each other.

But my mother doesn't want me to marry. There are six girls of us at home, and I am next to the eldest. Do you think she will give in to my marriage, as there will be five girls left?

I'm sure we are both old enough, as he is 21 and I am 19.

I hope you won't think this too young, as we think so much of each other. My mother hasn't any reason for us not to marry, only she wants the rest of us girls to stay at home.

ANXIOUS.

WELCOME to our department, oh mother of six daughters, who wants every one of them to stay at home with her. I wish I was one of the daughters, don't you, little girl with the matchmaking mamma? Don't you, little sister with the managing aunt?

That mother of yours must be worth going a mile or so to see. I wish I had her address. I'd come and give her a bouquet of roses, a rose for every year of her happy life, and one for each of her six daughters. And isn't she wise—as well as sweet?

You're only 19, you're next to the eldest, and the young man is determined to marry, willy nilly.

Now, if mamma were dying to marry you all off perhaps he wouldn't be so anxious. Don't be discouraged about mamma, she'll listen to reason when you have reason to give her.

Nineteen is pretty young to marry for a girl, and a man of 21 is nothing but a boy. Do you really think you want to risk your whole life's happiness on what two such very immature people seem to think about it—right now? Still, there have been happy marriages at that age.

Don't marry without your mother's consent. She's just trying to see whether you're really in earnest or not. Be a little patient, and she will come around to your way of thinking, never fear.

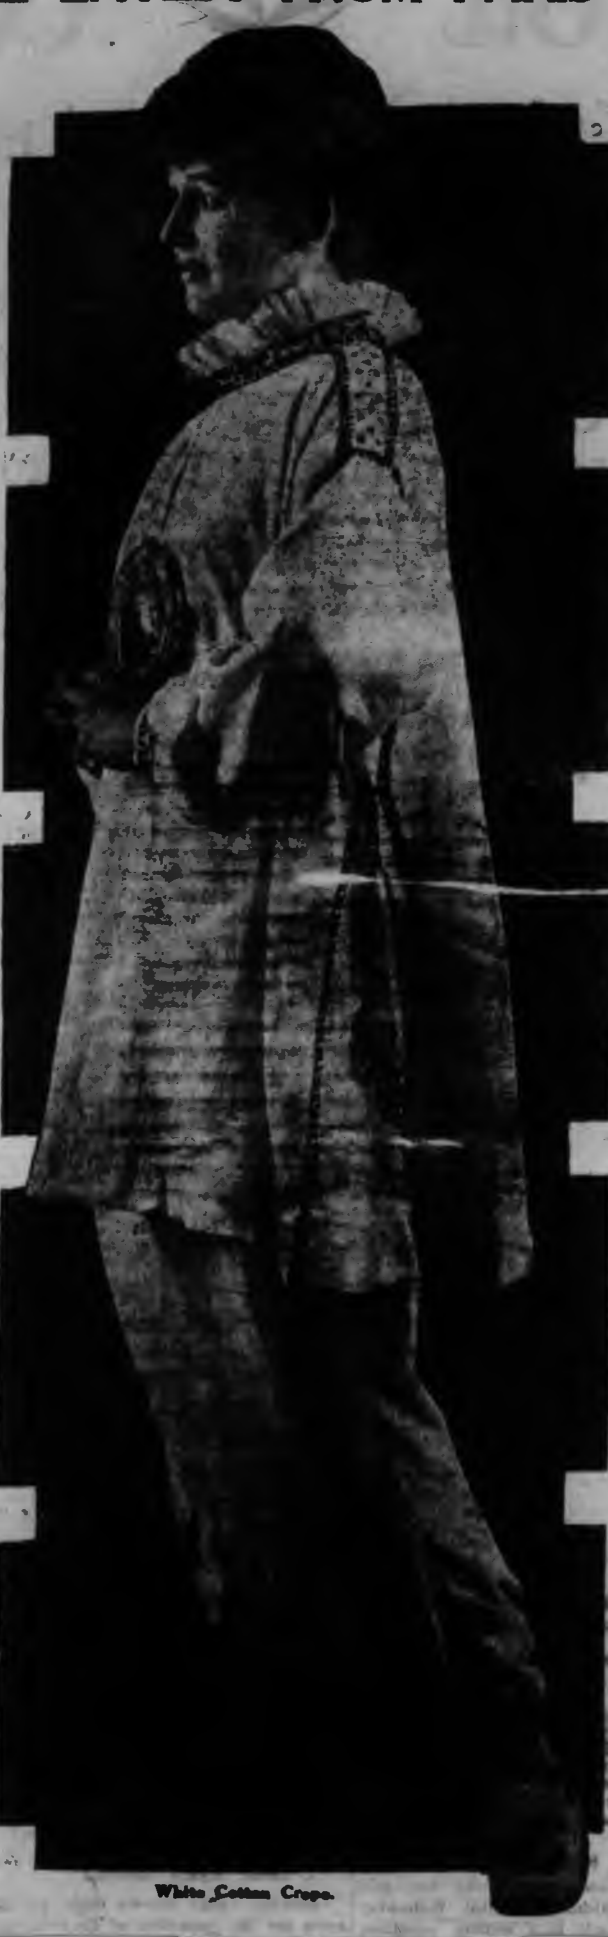
Ding, dong, dell—what's so sweet as the sound of wedding bells.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

HERE'S THE LATEST FROM PARIS

A Lounging (and Smoking) House Costume, Chinese Style, With Just a Dash of Turkish in the Skirt.



White Cotton Crepe.

FROM Paris you always expect the novel, and, when Paul Poiret is the artist, the startling. And Poiret does not disappoint us in this lounging robe.

It is of white cotton crepe, lined with white china silk and trimmed with black hand embroidery. The coat is pure Chinese style, like a mandarin blouse, showing even the pockets of the oriental coat. The neckband is straight, finished with a standing ruche of white tulle, and is very becoming to a slender throat.

The costume may be worn loose or with a girdle. If the girdle is worn, it should be bound close around the body to make a bandage for the hips, leaving the rest of the figure quite free.

The skirt is Turkish, divided style, and is tailored in effect. The feet, clad in Turkish slippers, pass through openings that are trimmed to match, "peeping in and out like little playing mice," as the poet sang so long ago.

Startling as is this very latest lounging robe, it will be noticed that it achieves its effect by lines and not by colors. Black and white are the austere shades, although my lady herself may add the spectrum's gamut with the girdle.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

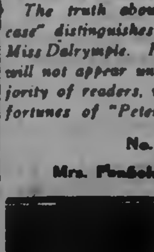
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with interest.

No. 127

Mrs. Penfield's Hysterics.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

MRS. PENFIELD was sitting by the open fire in the library when I went in. My father-in-law had not arrived home. Mrs. Penfield glanced up, met my eyes and looked uncomfortable.

"Mrs. Penfield," I began, for I have never called my mother-in-law "mother," and probably never shall, deeming it a profanation of a holy word. "I positively will not have you lending money to Mary!"

I suppose I spoke a little heatedly, for she bristled.

"It isn't necessary to speak to me just that way, Peter," she said, with heavy dignity. "Kindly remember that I am your wife's mother."

"I'm not likely to forget it," I said, angered by her manner.

"Mary," went on Mrs. Penfield, "poor child! had scarcely a cent all month, and she had to have some money. If I did lend her a few dollars it's a thing for which you ought to thank me instead of bolting in here with your hat on and glaring at me in such a vulgar way."

I flushed and removed my hat. She had me there. It made me doubly furious, however, that I had been so remiss, and the storm burst. I had been longing for an accounting with my mother-in-law. We had it then and there.

"And why," I burst forth, "did she have so little money left? Simply because you never taught her the value of a dollar, and she's extravagant. Why are we steadily running behind in expenses? Because you tempted her into living in a fashionable apartment that I simply cannot afford, and she gave me absolutely no rest until I consented."

"If you could not afford to keep my daughter in the way she lived at home," said Mrs. Penfield, looking very stout and ruffled, "you ought never have married her. I insist that my child live in a reputable quarter of town; I insist that she wear decent clothing, and I insist that she have at least some money to spend so that she may not be humiliated in the presence of her friends."

"And you insisted upon her having an 'at home' day, every week," I flung back fiercely, "and you insisted upon her having more furniture than we need.

"When I married your daughter I thought I had married a sweet, pretty, lovable girl that at least knew something of the essentials of housekeeping. My salary is more than sufficient for two people of modest tastes. It isn't sufficient to make a mighty splurge with, and I won't be drawn into the social whirlpool. Mary doesn't know the first thing about money, she doesn't know the first thing about a house—or at least she didn't.

"I can thank you for her lack of training, and I certainly will not have you encouraging her in her new extravagant notions and spoiling my life. That's what you are doing. You're dominating Mary and leading her on to all sorts of foolishness. Why should she take an art course with Casetti? Why should she want to be a social climber?

"The job of wife and mother is good enough for any girl. And I can thank you for the fact that my life will likely be childless. You've filled Mary's head with a lot of wicked, artificial ideas. She's afraid to bear a child—you needn't shriek and tell me I'm coarse. Natural facts can't be coarse. Mary and I quarrel—and in every quarrel I can trace your influence."

Mrs. Penfield, white and shaking, held up her hand to stem the tide, but I raved fiercely on. I don't remember what else I said, but, clear and cold, I laid the facts before her. I spared her nothing. My temper guided my tongue to hopeless indiscretion. I only remembered that at the end Mrs. Penfield gave a wild shriek and went into hysterics. I went home and left her in a state by the fire with the maid telephoning for the doctor.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Aeroplaning Is Like Aerophagia (Air Gulping)

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

HAVE you a stomach? If you are aware that you possess this ubiquitous and soul-stirring organ, something is wrong. Some sophisticated persons worry because they cannot feel their food digest. This is a curious opinion, as prevalent among longshoremen as among the wealthy and elect.

Opinion, however, as Pericles said, is but a fool that makes you scan the outward habit for the inward man.

If you begin to learn by any of the myriad, wireless signals of your own ego that there is a Pandora's box of evils in your tummy and gizzard department; if, by any devices known to your tissues, you, yourself, your "I," are made aware that deeds of derring-do are a-brewing in your gastric sac, then something is truly amiss.

Gas in the stomach and flatulency has been the source, since time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, of more despair and melancholia than all financial and domestic calamities known.

Other than the habit of aerophagia, or air swallowing, which—like aero-planing—is a voluntary thing, there are all sorts of causes for gastric—gastric comes from a Greek word which means stomach, not "gas"—flatulency.

High blood pressure, the tango heart—due to any kind of muscular excess and athletics—heart and kidney inflammations, dilated stomachs, indoor life, an excess of sweets and starches, are only a few of the three-score-and-ten ways to be a chronic Zeppelin dirigible.

Asafoetida has a worse name than it has odor among pharmacologists. Until very recently no scientific physician ever again dared look his fellow-savant in the eyes if he prescribed it. But like the turban hat, the poke bonnet, the Medici collar, and the girdle tunic, it has come into medical vogue once more.

Ginger, gentian, quinine, magnesia, charcoal, cinnamon, dilute acids, and hexamethylenetetramine with lithia are each separately useful to stop the stomach Aeolus from blowing first hot and then cold.

If the muscular walls of the stomach are asleep at the alimentary switch the use of adrenalin, physical culture, the maxixe, tennis and other disturbers of these sluggards must be called into requisition. But only under your doctor's orders.

Dr. Hirshberg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He will not undertake to prescribe or offer advice for individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest letters will be answered personally, if a stamped and addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirshberg, care this office.

Study Your Mirror For Wrinkle Reasons

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving "the divine right of woman."

LUCREZIA BORI

WOMEN don't look in their mirrors often enough!

Isn't that a surprising statement to make? Perhaps I had better amend it, and say they don't look with sharp enough eyes. The mirror is the greatest friend a woman has. If she wants it to show her how she really looks to an unprejudiced world—it will do so. Most women look at themselves with blinded eyes. They look to find what they want to find, not what is really there. Mirrors are truthful, but the eyes that see cannot read a-right.

Every woman who wants to improve her personal appearance will do well to learn how to use the mirror. She will take it where the light is strongest and begin by studying her reflection as a whole—as a general assemblage of line and color. Then, she can pick it to pieces later. The tout ensemble is what strikes the ordinary observer. The more intimate acquaintance notices details.

What about the expression of the eyes and mouth? What is the story it tells? Does it tell a tale of selfishness, greed, deceit, conceit, superficiality? Or does it give out the idea of kindness, love, generosity, good sense, intelligence, friendliness? Or is there a queer intermingling of good and bad expressions? And, in that case, which is the most enduring, and which flashes across the face more often?

Just sit down with an open mind before your mirror and ask questions. You will learn a whole lot about yourself in a half-hour. And if you are as wise as woman ought to be, you can map out a campaign of beauty culture right in your own mind, and put it into effect with no one but yourself being the wiser, and gain results that will make all your friends compliment you.

"I caught a glimpse of myself in a mirror the other day," a woman confessed to me, "and my own face frightened me. There was such a peevish, discontented look about the mouth, such a sullen light in the eyes that I was really startled. I knew I had been peevish and out of sorts for weeks, that I had been letting go my temper, that I had seemed a different being from the self I had always supposed was me, but I hadn't dreamed that it was indexed on my face.

"I have started on a course of beauty culture, and the first thing I am going to do is to love everybody and everything in the world, even if it hurts to do it. I won't see faults in any one but myself. I will have only kindly wishes for every one—even my dearest enemies. And I'll even try to make friends of them. Something is wrong in my innermost being when my face can carry an expression like that."

Her work is worth copying. We can make expressions for ourselves, and we are the only ones who can make them. Others can electrify tissues, and revivify complexions, and iron out wrinkles and arch eyebrows, but, when it comes to changing the expression which is the reflection of the mind and the nature, no one in the world has the power to do it but the individual who owns it.

Sit down, sisters mine, and get out the most exacting mirror you can find. Pull the shades up, and let the strongest and most truthful and glaring light of day shine upon you.

Purge your mind and vision of prejudice. Then work, according to the result. There's a reason behind every frown, and every little curl of the lip may soon mean a fixed sneer. It is up to you to find out the reason, and to right the fault.

Three Minute Journeys

Where "A Life for a Life" Still Rules

By TEMPLE MANNING

FAR in the mountain fastnesses of New Guinea our party came upon a little huddle of huts that appeared deserted. Experience had taught us caution, so we waited until my impatience led me to advance with one of our bearers. Instantly an amazing thing happened. From the nearest hut three natives emerged, crawling on their hands and knees, stopping every few feet to knock their heads upon the ground. I soon discovered the reason. I was the first white man they had ever seen.

For days they would not permit us to leave. At last, when we insisted on parting, six of them joined our party to accompany us to the coast.

Everything went smoothly until one of them fell into a stream and was drowned. His tribesmen approached us threateningly; they held us responsible for the man's death. They wailed and demanded payment. We offered them armlets, colored dishes and cloths, but they would not be appeased. They wanted a life for a life.

As quickly as we could we made the nearest coast settlement, embarked upon a "prau" and went back to civilization. Later I learned that, after the invariable custom of their race, the dead man's brother hung about the coast until he had killed a white man.

His brother's death was avenged—a trader had paid the price.

The Trader Paid.

All graduate nurses in the city are urgently requested to be present, when Red Cross matters will be discussed.

Landed a 6 lb. Bass

Mr. Hutchinson, of New York, who is spending a couple of weeks fishing in Hastings, landed a 6½ lb. black bass up the river there. The bass measured 23 inches in length, and it is now in the hands of Mr. Elcombe, of this city, to be mounted.

Lindsay Reservist Called.

The call to duty has been received by a Lindsay young man in the person of Mr. J. C. Hartley, of the Grand Trunk Ry. Co., who served for five years in the British navy.

This morning Mr. Hartley received orders to return for service, and he immediately packed his kit and left on the noon train.

Otonabee Horse, Won.

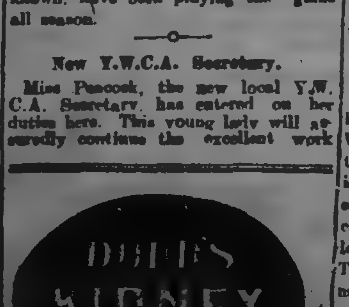
Mr. Frank Montgomery's horses, Jimmy Direct and Ora Medium returned yesterday from Brockville where they were sent to take part in the Central Ontario Racing Association meet on Tuesday. However, owing to heavy rain the races were called off on that day. On Monday, Mr. Charles Fife's horse, Ora Tariff, won the farmers' race.

Labor Day Doings

The programme for the celebration by the Trades and Labor Council on Labor Day shows an attractive list of sporting events and other attractions. The baseball match between the Chemong Indians and a local team should be a feature event, as the visiting team has a splendid record, and the local players, who are all well-known, have been playing the game all season.

New Y.W.C.A. Secretary.

Miss Peacock, the new local Y.W.C.A. Secretary, has entered on her duties here. This young lady will assuredly continue the excellent work most efficiently. She has the attributes that assure that prophecy as she combines a charming personality with marked executive ability. Miss Peacock is at present engaged in organizing the Educational classes that open on Oct. 1st. The opening rally is slated for Sept. 25th. This most admirable institution is doing good work here as elsewhere.



Still In Danger

Miss Minnie Herron, who was taken to Nicholls Hospital Wednesday night is still in a serious condition from the effects of a drug which she took while apparently in a highly excited state of mind. The young lady had gone to Toronto and was brought back to the city by her father. The rash action followed shortly after. She is a daughter of the Mrs. Herron who was accidentally scalded to death in Nicholl's Hospital some time ago.

The Patriotic Fund

The Committee Mayor Buller has appointed to organize a Patriotic Fund will meet in the Council Chamber to-night at 8 o'clock. Already numerous heads of factories have signified their intention of giving the amount of wages their employees earn in one day, and Mayor Buller received a letter from Mr. Joseph W. Worth of the Bonner Worth Co., in which the employees offered to donate $20 per month from now to the end of the war.

Caught a Pickerell

A young lady caught a three and a half pound pickerell at Rice Lake on Wednesday. It is generally supposed that this specimen of the finny tribe is not to be caught in the local waters. However, Detective Newhall caught one, three years ago, at the local locks. A representative of the Times, during a fishing trip this summer, caught some splendid specimens of pickerell in Lake Stoco, which is a small lake near Tweed, Ont., about 40 miles east of here.

A Race of Soldiers

Mr. McGooken, representing The Helena Costume Co., of London, Ont., is in the city calling on the trade. He has just returned from a business trip to the Eastern portions of the British Empire. Mr. McGooken's brother is Lieut.-Col. in the Royal Irish Fusiliers of Dublin. Lieut.-Col. McGooken is an active participant in the war now in Belgium, and was mentioned in despatches from South Africa. Mr. McGooken also has ten cousins, of the same name (McGooken) in the British army on active service at the present time. He himself has seen active service with the British army in India.

Local Hydro Electric

Yesterday Judge Huycke made the order for the possession of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant, so that the city has only to pay over the $100,000, either to the Court or to the Company to take complete charge of their new power system. Whether the money will be paid to the Court or directly to the company, has not yet been decided, Mr. Tilley, the company's solicitor, having announced his intention of consulting his clients in the matter before receiving the money.

Arrested at Gibraltar

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 3.—Word was received here to-day to the effect that Hugo Munding, formerly a hydraulic engineer in the employ of the Ontario Power Co., is a prisoner of war, confined at Gibraltar. He sailed from New York Aug. 11 for Naples, hoping to be able to get through to Germany to rejoin his regiment, the Second Bavarian Light Artillery, in which he was a lieutenant. At the entrance to the Mediterranean the ship was stopped by a British man-of-war and Munding and 95 other Germans aboard it were made prisoners of war. The Hugo Munding mentioned was at one time engaged to a daughter of a late, and now dead, organist of St. John's church of this city.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

The Hotelkeepers' Protective Association has donated $250 towards the Patriotic Fund.

There are now twenty children in the local Shelter. This will keep the very efficient superintendent, Mr. Henry, busy.

Additional donations received by Mr. F. H. Miller for the relief of families include $25 from Mrs. Matthews and $5 from Mr. W. W. Coulthard.

Since the 26th of August ten farmers have made application for men at the local government immigration office.

GUNBOAT FOR ONE MAN

London, Sept. 3.—A businesslike-looking 50-foot motorboat flashing up and down the river between Westminster and Waterloo bridges recently attracted considerable attention. It played round and about the Thames Conservancy launches, turning in its own length and racing down beside the embankment.

It was one of the two 140-h.p. motor vedette boats for the Greek navy built by Messrs. Thornycroft. The whole boat can be controlled by one man, who has the levers working the engine one on each side of him as he stands in the wheelhouse.

With Fall Of Lemberg Russians Are Absolute Masters of East Galicia. Gernan Check at Verdun

72,000 RUSSIAN TROOPS HAVE LANDED AT OSTEND, BELGIUM, TO JOIN THE ALLIES

PETERBORO PATRIOTIC RELIEF ASSOCIATION FORMED LAST NIGHT

EFEAT OF RUSSIAN FORCES IN EAST PRUSSIA WAS NOT SERIOUS--RESULT OF OVER-ZEAL

LONDON, Friday Sept. 4.—The great battle between the Russians and strians has been resumed in Galicia, according to reports from Petrod (St. Petersburg) and by roundabout routes from Vienna, and the striana, put to disorderly flight from their stronghold at Lemberg egrly the week, have reassembled their depleted forces and established a new fence west of their lost position. The Russian War Office has officially nounced that Lemberg's capture is complete The new battle line starts Russian Poland and sweeps in a half circle to the Dniester River, and ugh the Austrians are said to have been considerably re-inforced, they still outnumbered by the Russians.

Opinion in Petrograd continues to regard the recent defeat, of the Rusn army invading East Prussian as an unfortunate incident and nothing re. It is reported that the disadvantage already has been overcome to great extent by rushing up reinforcements and confidence in an early rch to Berlin is as great as ever. The failure of the late General Samsoff to withstand the German offensive is ascribed to over-confidence by Petrograd correspondent of The Morning Post, who says:

"It is obvious from the mere calcuion of the dates and the rapidity the Russian advance that they had operating mainly with cavalry. public here had been getting imient unless it learned of a new ores daily, and wholesale contempt the German forces was a feature the newspapers and conversation. reverse will have a marked sobg effect, and may eventually be a matter for congratulation. The lic attitude is rather one of painsurprise. Russia feels injured, but downcast."

The Situation Was Saved

he correspondent adds in a later patch: 'The reverse was less sers than at first was supposed. The ation was saved by the forced rch of reinforcements. The enemy ot likely to attempt another simexploit."

he correspondent pays a tribute the dashing character of the Rusadvance, which was undertaken headlong swiftness mainly to ree the pressure in the west. Its sucs has been notable, as proved by withdrawal by the Germans of e forces from the western to the tern theatre of war.

JAPS CANNOT SEND TROOPS TO EUROPE

New York, Sept. 4.—Japan cannot send troops to Europe to assist the allies in the fighting there, although she stands ready to help them in the Far East, according to the Japanese consul general here, Takashi Nakamura. This statement was made in reply to questions as to whether Japan would send soldiers to Europe to aid the allies or organize expedition to help keep Turkey at bay.

"Our agreement with Great Britain," said the consul general, "is such that she need have no fear of removing her troops from India to the war zone. That agreement binds us to protect the interests of Great Britain in just such an emergency, and the agreement includes India and China.

"In the event of Turkey getting into this war, which is not so promising as it may seem, Japan would send to India a sufficient force to keep down any uprising of the natives that might be fomented by Turkey or German interests. Such a movement of Japanese troops is covered in the agreement.

TRIOTIC CITIZENS TAKE UP RELIEF WORK FOR THE CITY OF PETERBORO

Association Formed Last Night To Look After Families of Volunteers for the Front and Distress Caused by the War of the British Empire Against Germany and Oppression--An Earnest Body of Workers meeting of citizens was held in Council Chamber last night to apt a committee to handle the Patic Relief Fund. Mayor Buller was d to the chair. The meeting was rge and representative one.

is Worship read that the Bonnerth employees have volunteered $10 each pay—every two weeks—dur the war.

r. S. R. Armstrong was appointed etary of the proceedings.

is Worship reported the receipt of heque for $100 from Mr. R. F. rman; also $25 from Mr. Daly, another $50 from Mr. Burnham, ., $100 in all.

r. John Bell, of Water street, has tributed 10 cords of wood. Subsently Mr. B. F. Mason reported t Mr. John A. Cameron contributes

r. Burnham, M.P., reported that Dominion Government has millions the Patriotic Relief Fund, a poron of which will come to Peterboro, n a local Patriotic Relief Fund mmittee is incorporated. The Government will also give $20 a month each family of volunteers for the nt. Mr. Burnham added that three sses of people will have to be taken care of during the present crisis; families of volunteers for the nt, those needing assistance in conuence of the war, and indigents, om the city has to provide for re or less each year, through the arity Board.

Relief Fund Association

On motion of Mr. Burnham, M. P., and ex-Mayor Morrow, it was decided to form a Patriotic Relief and General Relief Association, including all the members present

Relief in Cash

Relief Officer Miller reported that from the funds collected by the ladies the relief up to date distributed by him had been in cash. (Applause.) He also added that the Automobile Association had kindly offered a car each day for visiting purposes. (Renewed applause).

Executive Committee

On motion of Mr. Gillespie, M. P. P., and Ald. Stratton, the following gentlemen were named an Executive Committee:

Mr. Burnham, M.P., Ex-Mayor Morrow, Ex-Mayor Bradburn, R. A. Peck, Judge Huycke, Messrs. Eastwood, A. W. Cressman, John Crane, Soden Jas. Lynch, Jas. Kendry, ex-M.P., Ald. Johnston, B. D. Hall, D. O'Connell, Col. Yonge, H. Navy and the mover and seconder.

Secretary of the Association

City Clerk S. R. Armstrong was appointed Secretary of the Patriotic Relief Association.

On motion of Mr. R. J. Sedlin and Mr. Hedd, City Treasurer Adams was appointed Treasurer of the Patriotic Relief Association.

Mayor Buller Chairmen

Mr. Burnham, M.P., was suggested as Chairman of the Association. He contended that the Mayor of Peterborough should head so worthy a city cause. His views carried, and Mayor Buller was voted Chairman.

Trades and Labor To Take a Hand

The meeting unanimously decided that the Trades and Labor Council be invited to name members for the Association.

$500 Not Enough

Mr. E. G. Patterson strongly contended that $500 contributed from the City Council is not enough. It should total up to $5000 from a corporation like Peterborough. (Applause).

Mr. Jas. Kendry concurred in this view. $3000 or $5000 should be the city's quota.

Not To Tax the Poor Man

President Hall of the Board of Trade offered a resolution from the Board of Trade to the effect that the funds needed for this Patriotic Relief Association be furnished by the City Council, and the amount to go on the city's assessment.

Rev. Mr. Rollins thought that would be a nice way to tax the poor man! His idea was that a Patriotic Fund should be raised from the people who are able to give for those who are not in a position to give. (Cheers).

Mr. Burnham heartily agreed with this. He strongly opposed taxing the poor man. The men who have gone to the front, he urged, are VOLUNTEERS, and let those who remain at home, and are able to contribute, be volunteers to the Relief Fund. (Renewed applause).

City Will Do Its Share

Mayor Buller here assured the meeting that in giving $500 at present the city had gone to the extent of its available appropriations. But if more is needed Council will find the cash somewhere. (Cheers).

The Executive Committee here withdrew and finally reported the result of its deliberations as follows:

Will Act At Once

On motion of Messrs. Soden and Hall, Mayor Buller, Messrs. Eastwood Col. Yonge, Morrow, Peck, Crane, Lynch, Hall and Gillespie be a subcommittee to ascertain how many families in town there are of men who have volunteered for the front. And that the balance of the Executive be a committee to ascertain what number will require relief through lack of work by reason of the war. Mr. W. G. Howden was added to the last committee.

On motion of Judge Huycke, and Jas. Lynch, Messrs. Morrow, A. W. Cressman, W. H. Bradburn, Eastwood Jas. Kendry, Lynch, D. O'Connel and the Mayor were appointed a committee to devise ways and means of raising funds for the purposes of the Association, and to appoint an executive for this purpose.

On motion of Messrs. Burnham and Navy, the Executive Committee was authorized to issue an appeal for funds at once.

On motion of Messrs. O'Connel and Burnham, a canvas for funds will be made in each polling sub-division.

On motion of Messrs. Burnham and Navy, the Mayor was authorized to act for the Association in distributing relief until such time as the Executives get down to a concrete working basis.

Relief Committee

The relief committee is: Messrs. R. Rush, G. W. Howden, Jas. Lynch, Col. Yonge, Mayor Buller, Geo. Gillespie, M.P.P.

Ottawa Does Not Deny Landing Of 72,000 Russians in France

War Office Admittedly Capable of Concealing Any Movement of Troops--News Received To-day is Most Important Yet Heard From the Allies In France--Report Says Paris Will Surrender if Necessary Rather Than Risk Destruction of Property

OTTAWA, SEPT. 4.—THE REPORT THAT 72,000 RUSSIAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN LANDED IN SCOTLAND AND TRANSPORTED, VIA ENGLISH PORTS, TO OSTEND, IS NOT DISCREDITED BY THE MILITIA DEPARTMENT, WHICH IS IN CLOSE TOUCH WITH THE POLICY OF THE IMPERIAL AUTHORITIES. WHEN IT WAS POINTED OUT TO ONE OF THE MOST EXPERIENCED OFFICERS OF THE DEPARTMENT THAT NO NEWS OF THE MOVEMENT OF RUSSIAN TROOPS HAD COME FROM GREAT BRITAIN, NOR ANY INDICATION THAT SUCH A MOVEMENT WAS CONTEMPLATED, THE REMARK WAS MADE THAT ABSOLUTELY NO NEWS OF THE MOVEMENTS OF BRITISH TROOPS HAD GONE OUT FROM ENGLAND, AND THAT THE FIRST REPORTS OF THE LANDING OF THE BRITISHERS ON THE CONTINENT CAME FROM FRANCE SOME TIME AFTER THEIR ARRIVAL.

EXPECT GOOD NEWS NOW

AT THE MILITIA DEPARTMENT THE GREATEST SATISFACTION IS EXPRESSED OVER THE PLAN OF CAMPAIGN OF THE ALLIES AND THE SUCCESS WHICH HAS ATTENDED IT. THE RETREAT ON PARIS, THEY STATE, HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED EXACTLY AS INTENDED, AND THE CENTRE HAS BEEN KEPT INTACT. NOT SINCE THE WAR BEGAN HAVE THE MILITIA AUTHORITIES HERE BEEN SO OPTIMISTIC AS THEY ARE TO-DAY. THEY EXPECT MOST IMPORTANT NEWS FAVORABLE TO THE ALLIES TO ARRIVE SHORTLY.

PLAN OF ALLIES MATURING

THERE SEEMS TO BE GOOD REASON FOR THE BELIEF THAT THE PLAN OF THE ALLIES IS MATURING WITHOUT A HITCH AND THAT A VERY IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT IS NOW IMPENDING IN FRANCE, WHICH, IF SUCCESSFUL, WILL MEAN A DECISIVE ROUT FOR THE GERMAN ATTACKING FORCES.

THE REPORTED LANDING OF 72,000 RUSSIAN TROOPS AT OSTEND, PRESUMABLY TO CO-OPERATE IN A FLANKING MOVEMENT AGAINST THE GERMAN FORCE, IS, IF TRUE, THE MOST IMPORTANT NEWS WHICH HAS COME FOR SEVERAL DAYS REGARDING THE ACTIVITIES IN THE BATTLEFIELD OF FRANCE. THE REPORT IS PRETTY GENERALLY CREDITED AND APPEARS TO BE STRONGLY SUPPORTED BY CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE AT LEAST. THE ATTACK ON THAT PORTION OF THE GERMAN FLEET IN THE BIGHT OF HELIGOLAND MAY HAVE BEEN EXECUTED FOR THE EXPRESS PURPOSE OF HOLDING THE ATTENTION OF THE GERMAN NAVAL FORCES AND PREVENTING ANY INTERFERENCE WITH THE SHIPS TRANSPORTING THE RUSSIAN TROOPS FROM ARCHANGEL TO THE PORT IN SCOTLAND WHERE THEY WERE DISEMBARKED. MOREOVER, IT WAS ONLY LAST NIGHT THAT THE NORTH SEA WAS ANNOUNCED OPEN AGAIN FOR SHIPPING, AFTER THE BOAT SERVICE HAD BEEN DISCONTINUED FOR A FORTNIGHT.

THE 72,000 RUSSIAN TROOPS WILL BE A MOST WELCOME ADDITION TO THE FORCES OF THE ALLIES ALREADY IN FRANCE, AS THEY ARE DOUBTLESS THE VERY BEST OF THE CZAR'S FIGHTING MEN.

PARIS, SEPT. 4.—(4.20 p.m.)—IT IS OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED THAT THE OPPOSING ARMIES AROUND PARIS HAVE NOT YET COME INTO CONTACT. THEY CONTINUE THEIR MOVEMENTS TAKING POSITIONS. THE STATEMENT ADDS:

"THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN CHECKED AT VERDUN. THE FRENCH ARE SUCCESSFUL IN LORRAINE AND THE VOSGES. THE SITUATION HAS NOT CHANGED.

SURRENDER PARIS TO SAVE IT

LONDON, Sept. 4.—In a despatch from Rouen, France, a correspondent of The Chronicle says that he has learned that the French authorities in Paris are considering the surrender of the city to the Germans in order to avoid the destruction of property from artillery fire. This will only be done, the correspondent declares, in case the outer line of the defenses of Paris are passed by the invaders. British, French and Belgian wounded are being transferred from Paris to other cities, and the great exodus of the populace to the south continues.

ANOTHER CLUE BUT MURDERER IS STILL FREE

Buffalo, Sept. 3.—Clues as to the whereabouts of the suspect in the William H. Beierlein murder case continues numerous. Today Sheriff Becker's men were given the lead that the man who shot the Springbrook saloonkeeper a week ago is picking fruit in the Niagara County belt. Authorities there are searching the orchards there for the person upon whom suspicion has now firmly fastened because of his sudden disappearance from Erie County.

"We have about given up hope of finding the slayer of Beierlein in this county, although we have men posted in the district where he was seen last," said Sheriff Becker at noon. "If he makes an appearance we will get him. We are now probing the Niagara fruit belt."

Sheriff Becker said he had not hired private detectives to work on the case and that if any such action had been taken it was by the Beierlein brothers. Reports are to the effect that a private service has men scouring a western city for the man.

RUSSIANS ARE NOW MASTERS AUSTRIAN ROUT AT LEMBERG THE BEGINNING OF THE END

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Times' correspondent in Petrograd sends the following under date of Thursday:

"Information gathered by the general staff to-day encourages the hope that the victory at Lemberg is only the beginning of the end. The retreat of such an enormous force, reliably estimated at eight army corps, taken in connection with the rout of the army which was to serve as a screen to their retreat already, spells disaster overwhelmingly.

"Information obtained by the War Office shows that the garrison has already been preparing position at Grudek, twenty miles to the westward, and on the railway to Przemysl.

"The fall of Lemberg, which is the junction of eight important railway lines, renders the Russians absolute masters of the whole of eastern Galicia."

Russian Heroism Destroyed Plans

London, Sept. 4.—The Times' Petrograd correspondent telegraphing concerning Russian military operations, says the Russian Emperor's forces drew around the Austrian army like an iron semi-circle. The Austrians were thus obliged to fight for their salvation with extreme obstinacy owing to the fact that they could not hope for any considerable reinforcements. The southern army under General Frank had been almost completely destroyed by the Servians and the transfer of the remnant of three corps would alter nothing save that perhaps in this manner the road to Budapest would be left open to the Serbs. The Germans had apparently retired from Polish territory west of the Vistula and were unable to send the Austrians as much as a single battalion so that the army under Archduke Frederick was left to his own resources.

Armies Against Russia

During the first weeks of the war the principle strength of the Austrian army advance on the left bank of the Vistula with the palpable object of reaching Warsaw from the south, while the German army from eastern Prussia proposed a simultaneous advance into Poland from the north. When the Russian victories at Gumbinnen scattered the illusion of possibility of advance on Warsaw the Austrians employed their tremendous forces scattered on the left bank of the Vistula to outflank the right wing of the Russian army encircling Lemberg.

SEVEN GERMAN SHIPS DAMAGED OTHERS SUNK

London, Sept. 4.—3.55 p.m. — The Official Information Bureau has issued a statement saying:

"According to information derived from a trustworthy source, seven German destroyers and torpedo boats have arrived at Kiel in a damaged condition, and it is understood that others have been sunk in the vicinity of the Kiel Canal."

London, Sept. 4.—The sinking of the Austrian steamer Bathori by British cruiser in the Bay of Biscay was reported this afternoon.

The Austrian refused to heave to until the cruiser put a shot across her bows. The warship then took off the crew of 28 and sent the steamer to the bottom. The prisoners taken included a German Imperial staff officer.

The Bathori was a steamer of 1,383 tons. She plied between Fiume and French ports and was last reported in Havre roads Aug. 5.

City Council's Finance Com. Vote $500.00 For Relief Fund

The City Fathers met in special session last night, Mayor Buller presiding. There were also present Aldermen A. H. Stratton, Anderson, Johnston, Langford, Saunders.

On motion of Ald. Stratton and Ald. Anderson the matter of depositing the $100,000 for the purchase of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's distributing plant for Hydro Electric purposes was left with the Mayor, the Chairman of the Power Committee, and City Solicitor Gordon, with power to act. The money must be deposited to-day, either with the Peterborough Light & Power Co., or with the court.

$500 For Relief Fund

At a subsequent meeting of the Finance Committee, they resolved to recommend that the City Council give $500 to the Patriotic Relief Fund, to be supplemented later if necessary.

How to Look Less Than Your Age

There are three golden rules that every woman who would ward off signs of advancing age, should follow:

1. Cultivate cheerfulness. Those who understand the physiological effect of worrying, know this advice should be taken more seriously than it usually is.

2. Whenever the complexion begins to look worn or withered, use ordinary mercolized wax for a week or two. Apply nightly like cold cream, erasing it mornings with warm water. This gradually absorbs the thin film of surface skin, revealing the fresher and younger skin underneath. An ounce of the wax, obtainable at any drug store, is enough to rejuvenate an complexion

3. When the tell-tale wrinkles appear or cheek and chin muscles begin to sag, bathe the face once a day for awhile in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pint of witch hazel. This has a remarkable effect in "firming up" and smoothing out the skin.

A Montreal patriot has offered to equip a corps of motorcycle men for field work.

The Army and Navy Veterans' Association, Brantford, has organized a home guard.

The Montreal Patriotic Fund has reached close to $1,000,000, including the city's $150,000.

The original Canadian force of 22,000 asked for has grown to 35,000 now at the Valcartier camp.

MATRIMONIAL PARADOXES

"Weddings to me have often been a matter of considerable curiosity," writes a clergyman in "Church Life." "There is surely here no accounting for taste. To see a beautiful young bride giving her heart and hand to a rough, burly, ignorant fellow is almost beyond comprehension. That which verges on the ridiculous is to behold a gnat of a man reaching up to take the hand of a woman, when the latter is almost a giantess in stature, and as broad in proportion to her height, and hearing her humbly repeat that she promises to obey the diminutive creature at her side. But such things do happen, and will to the end of time. It was Solomon of old who [illegible] that "the way of a man with a maid" was one of the few things [illegible] for him to solve, and since [illegible] we have made little progress [illegible] the problem."

Little vicious minds abound with anger and revenge, and are incapable of feeling the pleasure of forgiving their enemies.—Chesterfield.

Dive From a Clyde Bridge

A professional diver known as "Dare-devil Tootser" created some sensation by diving from Jamaica Bridge, Glasgow, into the Clyde. The tide was low, and necessitated a dive of about 40 feet. Mounting the side of the bridge he made a graceful descent into the water, rising to the surface almost immediately.

NEWS OF BRITAIN IN BRIEF FORM

While a number of children were gathering flowers in the grounds of Lord Hamilton of Dalzell, near Motherwell, one of them, a girl of thirteen, named Janet Morris, met a shocking death. Steep cliffs overhang the roadway, and the child had clambered up to reach some ivy, when she overbalanced and fell to the roadway.

Lonely Old Man's Plight

William Rafferty, an old age pensioner, living alone at Richhill, Ireland, was missed by his neighbors. On forcibly entering his house they found him unconscious on the hearthstone. He had suffered a paralytic stroke, and had been evidently lying there a whole day and night before being discovered.

Fatal Sleeping Draught

A tragic discovery was made in a boarding house in the north side of Edinburgh. A gentleman, named Mr. Francis Kirk, forty years of age, who resided there, was found lying dead in his bed. He had been in the habit of taking a drug as a sleeping draught, and two empty phials were found in his room.

Brother Dies After Boxing

A friendly boxing match between two brothers in the yard of their home at Bradford was followed by the death of the elder, Norman Everett Major, aged nineteen years. They boxed for about a quarter of an hour, with intervals to recover breath, when Norman collapsed. He died before the arrival of a doctor.

Boxing a Half Blue

After careful consideration of the request made by Lord Lonsdale and other famous sportsmen that a full "blue" should be awarded at Cambridge to the members who represent the university at boxing, the "Blues" Committee decided to make no alteration. Boxing will, therefore, remain a "half-blue."

Corpse to "Swim in Whiskey"

Sensational evidence was given at Ballingarry, county Limerick, at the investigation into a charge of murder against Mary M'Cann and her son Jeremiah. Michael Hayes, Heathfield, deposed that the female prisoner said she would get the Meelin boys to kill her husband, and that when he was killed she would "swim his corpse in whiskey."

A Dog's Long Journey

Mr. J. Tierney, of Derry, received from Derrygonnelly, county Fermanagh, a water spaniel, which had gone all the way—about sixty miles—by rail. Later the dog was missed, and a thorough search throughout the district failed to locate it. Then Mr. Tierney had a letter from the former owner stating that the dog had arrived at Derrygonnelly footsore and weary.

Echo of a Crime

The death occurred at Miltown-Malbay, Ireland, of Mrs. Irons, who was fired at sixteen years ago through the window of her house, and in connection with which a man named Woulfe was sentenced to penal servitude for life. When shot in the shoulder Mrs. Irons, who had been a hospital nurse, rendered first aid to herself, and it was not till next morning that a doctor could be summoned.

A Students' Fight

Friction arose between South African and Egyptian students in the anatomy class room of the Surgeons' Hall in Edinburgh, over an Egyptian having been struck with a paper pellet. An adjournment was made to Blackford Hill where in the presence of a considerable assemblage of students a fight took place between a member of each of the two nationalities. The South African won, and the fight ended amicably. One Egyptian, however, caused a sensation by producing a revolver, but his chums joined in disarming him.

Fortune in Meteoric Stone

The schooner Aans Egede, belonging to the Danish Government, which put into Lerwick Harbor from Greenland, had on board the Arctic explorer, Knud Rasmussen, who has just completed a 1,200 miles sledge journey from 80 degrees North. Rasmussen had covered the distance in one month. The explorer stated that while on this journey he came across a large meteor stone, weighing 10,000 pounds, which he says is worth $2,500,000. The stone is to be taken to Copenhagen, and in the meantime is the property of the Danish Government.

Scots Boy's Adventure

An adventurous fourteen-year-old Scots lad named Dickson having run away from home with money taken from his mother's purse in order to try and get in the Navy was bound over for six months at Sittingbourne, where he appeared for appropriating a bicycle from outside a public house there. He was found exhausted in a field while on his way to London.

MAN OF MANY CREEDS

Debtor's Remarkable Confessions in the Bankruptcy Court

How a former undergraduate of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, in turn embraced the tenets of the Church of England, the Roman Catholic faith, the Presbyterian, and the Baptists was related at the Cambridge Bankruptcy Court at the examination of Christopher Stanley Long.

He admitted that he had twice entered the Roman Catholic Church, and had also preached a sermon in a Presbyterian church, and had had sermons printed. He opened a banking account at Bournemouth with $250 given him by a lady with whom he had been travelling. He withdrew all the money, but afterwards cashed a cheque for $75 on that account. He expected to receive a loan from a gentleman in Cheshire whom he had met at an hotel, but it did not come.

With the money he went to Switzerland, and stayed at the Royal Hotel, Lucerne, for six or seven weeks. There he went under the name of Carlyle, doctor of philosophy.

In Switzerland he cashed another cheque for $150 on his overdrawn account in England. Under the name of Dr. Angus he borrowed $100 from a lady to whom he represented that he was writing a book on Christian archaeology for the Yale University Press, and wanted to visit the Holy Land. He wrote later confessing the whole thing was a fabrication.

For a time he masqueraded in Gloucestershire as Father Bernard, of the Order of the Divine Redeemer and had numerous papers printed But no such order existed. He was starting the society. At Cambridge, after pawning his landlady's ring, he agreed to buy it and pay her during the following term.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH OF ROUMANIA

CANADIAN LIVE STOCK

Statistics of live stock in Canada published by the Dominion Government, threw interesting light on the state of the beef and dairy industries. In the six-year interval, 1908-14, there was a decrease of 244,460 in milch cows; in "other cattle," beef cattle chiefly, the falling off was 1,266,305. The decrease in sheep was 773,359, and this finds an inadequate set-off in the increase of 64,408 in the number of swine. To make the case worse, the decreases were steady, while the single increase was due only to a spurt for 1914. The inference to be drawn from these statistics is obvious, and the lesson they convey is equally so. In the face of frequently reiterated warnings the farmers of Canada, and especially of Ontario, have persistently ignored the signs of the times, have continued growing grain for export in the old way, and have sold themselves so short of live stock that it will take years to fill up the vacuum which has been allowed to occur. While the meat-eating population has been steadily increasing the supply of meat has been steadily and rapidly decreasing, and, worst of all, the falling off in milch cows means inevitably a continued, perhaps an increasing, scarcity of calves. There are no sure indications observable that any stay has taken place in the downward trend, and the farmers who might be making a handsome profit out of live stock appear to be still bent on taking chances with the cultivation of grain.—The Globe.

Hollobaugh has been an engineer for 19 years. He drives a huge locomotive on the Union railroad. "Weight doesn't count." he says.

REGAINS VOICE THROUGH SHOCK

Men, Dumb For Years, Given Power to Speak in Marvelous Manner

The recent case of a young woman in England who, after being deaf and dumb for twenty-one years, is slowly recovering both hearing and speech—the shock of the tragic end of her brother, who drowned himself in the Stour, being regarded as responsible for the miraculous example of shock succeeding where doctors have failed—recalls similar instances, says Charles Lewis in "Tid-Bits."

Some time ago the narrow escape of a boy from drowning off North Shields fish quay had a remarkable sequel. While efforts were being made to restore the apparently-drowned boy to consciousness by means of artificial respiration, a man who had been deprived of speech two years earlier as the result of an accident pushed through the crowd merely out of curiosity. As soon as he saw the prostrate boy, although not in any way related to him, the sight gave him such a shock that his speech suddenly returned and he fell to the ground in a state of collapse. Upon recovering he continued to speak freely, and has suffered no further impediment since.

It is not many years since a remarkable case of dumbness excited great interest in medical circles in Germany. Twelve months earlier a Bavarian cattle-dealer had been kicked by a horse, with the result that he completely lost the use of his voice. A year later he was riding a doomed horse to the knacker's yard when the animal, who clearly had plenty of life in him, began to kick and plunge in a dangerous manner. The man, we are told, lost his head completely in wild excitement, and after a few minutes began to talk, regaining his speech to the boundless astonishment of his friends.

PRESERVING ANTELOPE

Dominion Government Undertaking to Prevent Them Becoming Extinct

The rescue and perpetuation of the rapidly disappearing prong-horned antelope is to be undertaken by the Dominion Government. To this end it enlisted the services of Ernest Thompson-Seton, the naturalist, and Maxwell Graham, chief of the zoological division at Ottawa, who have outlined a scheme which promises success.

This proposes the establishment of three fenced parks for antelope in different parts of their favorite range on areas not desirable for agriculture and in regions that still contain wild antelope.

The first step was to outline the ancient and present range of the antelope, then to ascertain the probable number at large. The combined evidence of many game wardens and mounted police shows that there are yet between 1,000 and 1,500 antelope still at large in the Canadian Northwest.

Prior to the hard winter of 1906 and 1907, there were at least ten times as many; but that long, fierce spell of frost and deep snow killed them off by thousands. In the spring when the driving remnants were making their way north over the frozen Saskatchewan, the rotten ice gave way according to one ranchman, and over 500 were engulfed on one occasion, as he watched them from the bank.

Seton and Graham, acting for the Dominion, set out to select the lands needed. Three parks were secured one in each of the prairie provinces Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. On the two former the wild antelopes still range. All the conditions climatic, topographic and botanic have been pronounced perfect. Each park will be about thirty-six square miles in extent. The fencing will be horse high, strong and coyote proof A competent warden will be in charge and in residence in each.

Egyptians Grew Alfalfa

There is nothing new about alfalfa Alfalfa is as old as the pyramids. It was grown in the time of Rameses, the first Egyptian ruler that history tells us very much about. Caesar and his predecessors were strong believers in alfalfa, and their cavalry horses were fed upon it. Books on agriculture, written in the early days of the Roman empire, tell how to grow alfalfa. Doubtless the world-wide supremacy of Caesar's armies and the Roman empire was due in no small way to the abundant yields of alfalfa grown by the Roman farmers.

Magic "Nerviline Cures" Toothache, Earache

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness.

It's when sickness comes at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

The United States and Germany's Merchant Ships

The American proposal to buy German shipping and so lay the foundations for a new and great American commerce, is one whose temptings points to our neighbors we should frankly admit. American shipping was swept from the seas durin their terrible Civil War; and they have never been able since to re-establish their old position. Much of this inability has been due, doubtless, to their own hampering legislation; and it is questionable whether they can ever create a real American merchant fleet until they at least permit foreign officers and seamen free access to their vessels. But a nation which proposes to jump into the business of buying a ready-made merchant fleet in war-time, will probably cut it itself loose from any legal entanglements of its own making.

The trouble is that this proposal has raised diplomatic difficulties. The Allies are not willing to see Germany get good money for these ships, which are now interned and useless until the war is over. Nor are the Allies bound by international law to recognize any such transfer of German ships to the American flag as can now take place. That transfer must precede the declaration of war by sixty days to come within the declaration of London. But if the American Government decides to ignore the international law in the case and make such a transfer, it is not at all likely that the Allies will take any overt steps to assert their rights.

The attitude of the British Government toward the whole American proposal, has been one of determined friendliness.

Why Paris is Military Objective

A superficial glance at history might leave one puzzled to say why the public attaches such extreme significance to Paris as a German objective in this war. Capture of capitals has by no means always proven decisive as a military proposition. Napoleon seized Berlin, but he was utterly unable to uproot German nationality. In the same cycle of wars the French entered Madrid. Yet they were driven out of Spain. Napoleon marched in triumph into Vienna, only to meet one of the worst defeats of his life shortly after at the hands of the Austrians, led by Archduke Charles, at Aspern. The British captured the city of Washington, in the War of 1812. But temporary occupation of the American capital by an invading army had no appreciable effect on the result of the war.

Why then need Capture of Paris be so disastrous to the French, as it is generally assumed it would be? The question seems pertinent. Yet the public is right in the instinct which leads it to assign such momentous consequences to a successful German advance on Paris. Study of the field operations and strategic theories of military men, for more than a century, confirms the correctness of this popular intuition.

Dating from the early years of the French Revolution, every general who has conducted a war against France on French soil, has regarded Paris as a vital point at which to strike. The Duke of Brunswick aimed his march against Paris in 1792. The German, Austrian and Russian allies headed for Paris in the campaign of 1814. In the struggle of that year, Napoleon considered the saving of Paris so desperate a necessity, that he escorted to an ultra-sensational adventure in his endeavors to accomplish it, riding so far ahead of his troops, when he learned that the allies were between him and Paris, that he was left almost alone, and ran imminent risk of being made a prisoner.

In 1870 the elder Moltke carried out this very principle, which in the general opinion and we believe in fact, the present Moltke is putting in practice now—making Paris the prime objective of his campaign. If, as our neighbor the Express recently suggested, the immediate purpose of the Germans is to turn and get in rear of the strong interior line of French fortifications, there is every ground to assume that this design is but a preliminary to the proposed finale of direct march upon, and investment, of Paris.

Why is it that when history proves by so many incontrovertible instances, that the taking of capitals is often but a mere incidental of campaigns—that the capture of an enemy's capital by no means pre-supposes eventual success in a war—why have soldiers of such renown, of so many nationalities, and under such wide diversity of circumstances, uniformly made the taking of Paris a cardinal point of their strategy?

The reasons are to be found in the peculiarities of Paris itself, its location, its metropolitan vastness and cosmopolitan character, in the constitution of French society, and the nature of the French people. Russia of 1812, a primitive and semi-barbarous empire, could burn and abandon Moscow without the civic organism being so stricken as to render it incapable of further resistance. The capture of Berlin after the battle of Jena, was a mere bagatelle when measured against the intensity of purpose, the enthusiasm for liberty, which animated the Germanic peoples of that era in their indomitable determination to throw off the yoke of Napoleon. The taking of Madrid by the French during the Peninsular War, was nothing compared with the frenzy of fight which blazed in the hearts of the Spanish peasants who named the walls of Saragossa. The burning of the capital at Washington in 1814, did not make less sure the aim, nor less sturdy the courage, of the Southwestern riflemen who fought under Jackson at New Orleans.

Four hundred men will go to Bermuda in a few days for garrison duty.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,900 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,932 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,950 feet. Wet gas has shown at 683 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 808 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,776 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,950 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $90,000. This Company re-capitalized in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs—all young foxes—good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:—"We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

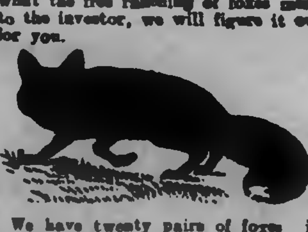
Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes means to the investor, we will figure it out for you.



We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business—and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

A professional diver known as "Dare-devil Tootser" created some sensation by diving from Jamaica Bridge, Glasgow, into the Clyde. The tide was low, and necessitated a dive of about 40 feet. Mounting the side of the bridge he made a graceful descent into the water, rising to the surface almost immediately.

GUN-RUNNING FEATS IN MANY CLIMES

Dangerous Business Appeals to Some Adventurous Spirits—Crew Blew up One Vessel

The amazing gun-running feat in Ulster which resulted in the landing of vast quantities of munitions of war, recalls some daring exploits of a similar character.

English sailors have always been prominent in gun-running expeditions. During the Russo-Japanese War there was an English ship's captain in the Far East who was amazingly successful in taking great cargoes into Vladivostok. The Japanese exhausted their efforts to capture him, but in vain. The secret of his success was this. It was his custom to have two vessels, one steaming a mile or so ahead of the other. The Japanese fleets lying in wait around Vladivostok Harbor would during the night hours observe the first steamer as their searchlight fell on her. Instantly they would rush to capture her, only to find that she was a harmless cargo steamer bound for a neutral port and with her papers all in order. Meanwhile the steamer lying behind, her hold full of contraband, would slip around the Japanese fleet and reach her port.

A Daring Irishman

Quite a romantic instance of gun-running—or, rather, ship-running—about the same time was carried out by a daring Irishman, who ran a torpedo-boat destroyer out of the Thames for the Russians. Acting for the Russian Government, he approached a great firm of torpedo-destroyer builders, representing himself as the agent of a millionaire who wanted a new form of yacht of very high speed. He was willing to pay a big price. He picked a finely-engined torpedo-destroyer as what he wanted, and all he required was a test of speed. The makers took him and his friends on an experimental run down the Thames into the North Sea. As he entered open water and was about due to return, the Irishman and his companions drew revolvers from their pockets, covered the crew, overcame them, took over command of the ship, and conveyed it safely to the Russian fleet.

As interesting was the case of the famous steamer "Ban Righ," which once ran as a passenger and cargo boat between Aberdeen and London. After being sold by the Aberdeen Steam Navigation Company, the vessel was fitted out by General Matos a candidate [illegible] of Venezuela, under Castro. The Customs authorities detained the "Ban Righ" for a fortnight, but at last they were satisfied that she was a pleasure yacht, chartered by a [illegible] man who was exploring the Caribbean Archipelago. The "Ban Righ" left the Thames on her scientific mission dropping down to the mouth of the river near Canvey Island, where in the night barges came down and loaded her up with small arms and ammunition. Then she went across to Antwerp, where she took on board heavier guns and General Matos and a number of Venezuelan patriots (or revolutionists), and sailed as the "Libertador" for the Venezuelan coast, where she landed her rifles and revolutionists.

A Dangerous Calling

The incident is also recalled of the British collier, "John Grafton," which was blown up by her crew in the Baltic with 5,000 rifles on board. She was a Channel Islands coaster, and one morning was seen outside the three-mile limit north-east of Sark, a 6,000-ton steamer being anchored alongside her. All day large cases were being transferred from the steamer to the 500-ton collier, and then they parted. The "John Grafton's" crew, finding themselves chased by Russian gunboats, blew her up and escaped in boats to the Swedish coast of the Baltic, while rifles and revolvers were afterwards washed up in cases on the Finnish coast.

EUROPE PAYS DEARLY FOR CROWDED CITIES

Out of 11,000 Manchester men examined only 1,000 were found physically fit for the British navy.

There are 5,000,000 more men in the cities of Germany than in the rural districts; yet, notwithstanding the enforced service of all young men physically fit for the army or navy, two-thirds of 631,210 soldiers and sailors examined by Prof. Passdowsky were from the country.

The ratio of deaths to 1,000 population in four-room homes in the Finsbury district of London is 6.04, while the ratio of deaths for one-room homes is 19.

In Glasgow four-room homes give a death rate of 11.2 per thousand, and one-room homes a death rate of 32.7

In thirteen cities of Yorkshire the average death rate in houses open on two sides to air currents is 15.61 per thousand; in houses built back to back the death rate is 17.94 per thousand.

Of 72,857 school children in Glasgow between five and eighteen years of age, boys living in one-room homes weighed on an average of 52.6 pounds and were 46.6 inches high; boys living in four or more rooms weighed on an average 64.2 pounds and were 51.3 inches tall. Girls from one-room homes averaged 51.5 pounds and 46.2 inches high; girls from four-room homes averaged 65.5 pounds and stood 51.6 inches high.

Tearing down a large area of rookeries in Liverpool and rebuilding with 2,663 new houses reduced the death rate for that area from 60 per thousand to 27; tuberculosis from 4 per thousand to 1.9; typhoid fever from 1,300 cases in 1896 to 200 cases in 1911, and the number of arrests dropped 50 per cent.

LOCOMOTIVES TOW SHIPS

Forty "Electric Mules" Will Operate at Panama Canal

The forty towing locomotives for hauling vessels through the locks of the Panama Canal weigh 82,000 pounds; measure 32 feet 9½ inches long by 8 feet wide by 9 feet 8 inches the greatest height over the cabs; have an available tractive effort as high as 47,500 pounds, and a windlass rope pull of 25,000 pounds, and four of them, two on each side, will ordinarily propel steamships through the locks. Sometimes six engines will be needed to handle extra large vessels; in every case two astern, acting as a brake on the ship's movements, will give direction to her course. No vessel will be allowed to enter the locks and go through on her own power. The locomotive is propelled by means of a rack rail while towing and while going up or down the steep grades from one level to another at a speed of two miles per hour. While running idle or on return tracks the speed is changed to five miles per hour, and the machine is propelled by the regular traction method, the track pinion being entirely released. This change is effected by manually-operated clutches located in the gear mechanism in connection with a lever in each cab similar to a steam locomotive. The locomotive is driven by two 75 horse-power totally inclosed motors of the mill type, one being direct connected through reduction to each axle.

HOW DO YOU SLEEP

Most people sleep on their sides, with the knees drawn up.

Elephants always, and horses commonly, sleep standing up.

Birds, with the exception of owls and the hanging parrots of India, sleep with their heads turned tailward over the back and the beak thrust among the feathers between the wing and body.

Storks, gulls, and other long-legged birds sleep standing on one leg.

WHAT WAR MEANS

Soldiers on Active Service a Veritable Scourge—French Honor Mothers

"All's fair in love and war," runs the old saying, and Mr. E. A. Vizetelly, in his volume of reminiscences, "My Days of Adventure," proves the truth of it. Referring to the appearance of the railway station at Nantes during the Franco-German War, he says:

"Never since have I seen anything resembling it. A thousand panes of glass belonging to windows or roofing had been shivered to atoms. Every mirror in either waiting or refreshment rooms had been pounded to pieces; every gilt frame broken to little bits. The clock lay about in small fragments; account books and printed forms had been torn to scraps, partitions, chairs, tables, benches, boxes, nests of drawers, had been hacked, split, broken, reduced to mere strips of wood. The large stoves were overturned and broken, and the marble refreshment counter—some thirty feet long, and previously one of the features of the station—now strewed the floor in particles, suggesting gravel. It was, indeed, an amazing sight, the more amazing as no such work of destruction could have been accomplished without extreme labor.

"When we returned to the inn for dinner, I asked some questions.

"'Who did it?'

"'The first German troops that came here,' was the answer.

"'Why did they do it? Was it because your men had cut the telegraph wires and destroyed some of the permanent way?'

"Oh, no! They expected to find something to drink in the refreshment room, and when they discovered that everything had been taken away they set about breaking the fixtures.'"

Mr. Vizetelly discloses this interesting fact: Whenever letters were found on the bodies of men who fell during the Franco-German War they were, if this man was a Frenchman, more usually letters for his mother, and if he was a German, more usually letters for his sweetheart. Many such letters found their way into print during the course of the war. It is a well known fact that a Frenchman's cult for his mother is a national characteristic.

FOREST GIVES UP SECRET

Balloon, Supposed to be Andree's Discovered by Eskimos

A newspaper story from Gothenburg reports a discovery which is believed to be associated with the ill-fated scientist, Andrée, who started seventeen years ago in a balloon to try and reach the North Pole.

The report stated: "The Swedish Minister of Foreign Affairs has received a despatch from the Swedish Legation at St. Petersburg, reporting that a telegram has been received from Yakutsk to the effect that parts of an old balloon have been found in a forest in Eastern Siberia.

"They are supposed to be the remains of the balloon in which Andrée started from Spitzbergen for the North Pole in July, 1897."

Andrée set out with two companions from Dane Island, in a balloon of great size, and, save for a message flung out some hours later that they were proceeding N.E. at an altitude of 600 feet, they were never heard of again.

From time to time reports have been received of the discovery of Andrée's balloon, but none has been authenticated. One of the most circumstantial stories came through a German missionary, who in 1909 reported that he had chanced on a tribe of unknown Eskimos from the farthest north. They told him that some years previously a "white house" came from the sky to the earth, containing two half-starved white men. Although carefully fed on reindeer meat they died from weakness.

The Eskimos added that they used the "white house" as a storeroom, and still had with them several ropes. A tour was arranged by the missionary to search for the balloon, but nothing further has been heard of the incident. Nine years previously a report came to hand that Andrée was killed by natives.

In 1908 a half-caste Eskimo captain of a fishing boat declared that on the shore of North Labrador he found a cross marked "Andrée," with a grave containing a body and a box of papers. He declined to say what became of the latter. Swedish explorers discredited the report that Andrée could have reached Labrador, and, moreover, it was pointed out that "Andreas" was a common name among Eskimos.

Buttermilk or Porter?

The question of the disposal of a surplus of milk contracted for gave rise to an amusing discussion at the meeting of the Swinford Board of Guardians. Mr. Campbell suggested that the surplus milk be churned, and the buttermilk, which was the healthiest drink out, substituted for porter. The inmates who were allowed porter for extra work, would, he was sure, be glad of the change to buttermilk for a short time.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830 or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

A Mammoth Clock

The biggest hanging-clock in the kingdom hangs at Liverpool Street Station, London, England, and also one of the finest pieces of electrical machinery, as applied to clocks, to be found in these islands. This clock hangs from the roof of the main line platforms, possesses four faces, and weighs over two tons! Though the clock itself is so big, yet its works are so small that according to the authorities nine men could actually sit round a dining table placed in the clock without in any way causing an interference with its works! Moreover, the electric connections with this clock are so excellent that every station clock on the line is regulated daily by the Liverpool Street giant, and so exact time is kept by all G.E.R. clocks in connection with this splendid one at headquarters.

Eight Graduate Cadets Per Year Admissable to King's Ships

Arrangements have been made by the Dominion Navy Department with the British Admiralty whereby not more than eight graduates of the Royal Canadian Naval College at Halifax, N.S., will be taken every year into the British navy as cadets.

For some time the Admiralty has not been taking any young men from the college at Halifax, and, as the number of the ships in the Canadian navy is very limited, the prospects were not encouraging for lads who desired to go to sea. Cadets in the British navy get very small wages, so that young men thinking of going as such need to be assured of an allowance from their parents.

GUARDING AGAINST EVIL EYE

Syrian child wearing charms to ward off evil.

That the evil eye may be visited upon their children is the especial fear of Palestine and Syrian mothers, and many "charms" are hung upon the little ones to ward it off. The more of these amulets a child has, the better mother it is considered to have! Two beads on the neck are supposed to be particularly effective. The rest serve as ornaments as well, and acord their small owners very much pleasure. They form the most important part of their costume.

DIAMONDS IN SAND DUNES

Laborers Search For Precious Gems on Their Hands and Knees

The greater part of the diamonds of Damaraland, South Africa, are said to be found in the narrow valleys between the moving sand dunes on a granite surface with its carpet of three or four inches of sand. In these flat places negro laborers, in bands from 10 to 50, with an overseer to every 10 or 12 men, crawl on their hands and knees over the

COAL IN CANADA

Nova Scotia Leads in Output of This Mineral Production

Coal is by far the most important product of the Canadian mines, as the value of the yearly output of coals and lignites reaches thirty-five per cent. of the total value of the country's mineral production.

Coal is abundant and extensively worked on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and its occurrence greatly facilitates over-sea trade and local traffic on both oceans.

Fortune From "Movies"

D. W. GRIFFITH

Here is the man who stands out preeminently in the business of moving picture producing. He has been called the "Belasco of the screen world."

When he was the director of the Biograph pictures, they were called the best in the business. But now the independents have captured him at a salary of $100,000 a year. And he is directing the Reliance and the Majestic Mutual movies.

At one time in his career, not so long ago, Griffith was with a traveling company earning the munificent sum of $18 a week.

Impure Ice Cream

The following is a synopsis of the results of an analysis of ice cream undertaken in the chief analyst's department at Ottawa, in charge of Dr. A. McGill: Samples found genuine, 77; samples found adulterated 49; samples found but slightly below required standard, 8; samples lost, 2; sold as imitation, 1; total, 137.

"Our standards for ice cream," says Dr. McGill, "require 14 per cent. of milk fat in ordinary ice cream, and 12 per cent. milk fat in the article when fruit or nuts are present. Samples which show less than one per cent. shortage in butter fat, I have not declared to be adulterated, but have indicated as slightly below the required standard."

Hens That Hatch Fish

As is generally known, a big quantity of fish spawn is annually lost. To avoid this fish-rearers in China carefully collect spawn from the surface of the water, and when they have secured a sufficient quantity they have a number of hens' eggs, the contents of which have been carefully emptied through a small aperture, and refill the shells with the spawn. The holes are then sealed up and the eggs put under broody hens. The hens are allowed to incubate the eggs for a certain number of days, when the eggs are again broken and their contents put into water that has been previously warmed by the sun. In a very short space of time the spawn hatches, and the young fry are then kept in pure fresh water until they attain a sufficient size to be put into the ponds containing older fish. The Chinese have long understood all the intricacies of incubation, and were amongst the first to use incubators for the hatching of hens' eggs.

Lived in Three Centuries

The oldest Welshman in the world is Mr. Thomas Morris, who lives at Westernville, Nebraska. Although he is now an American citizen, he was born a subject of George III., at the little village of Berriew, Montgomeryshire, 120 years ago.

His father was an agricultural laborer, and died when the boy was three years old. Morris was apprenticed to a cobbler, and followed his trade in Wales until 1871, when, at the age of seventy-seven, he emigrated. The old man is very proud of the fact that he has lived in three centuries. Morris can still walk with the aid of a stick and see with the aid of spectacles. His bearing is good

FACTS ABOUT BEES

Never go More Than Two Miles From Their Hives

Bees never travel very far from their hives. The farthest they ever go is about two miles and then they never get mixed with another colony, and can always find their own way home.

The keeping of bees takes but little space. The beehive is about two feet square and enough room has to be left to allow of the owner being able to walk comfortably around it and not knock against the next hive.

Bees are hatched out from April to September. The early comers have but a short time to live. No sooner are they hatched than they begin to work, and overwork ends their life in 21 days.

Don't Want War.

Mrs. (Dr.) J. A. McAlpine and Miss Millar, two local members of the J. L. Hughes party returned after a most exciting trip on the continent. In conversation with a Warder reporter Mrs. McAlpine gave a vivid description of the trip and the way the armies of Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, France and England were mobilizing. The party was in Belgium before the war started, and saw thousands of soldiers marching to the frontier. Mrs. McAlpine praised these soldiers highly. At this time the party did not know the reason for such numbers of troops and proceeded on to Germany. They were in Germany when war was declared, but hurried for safe territory. In Der Vaterland they saw the Kaiser's troops gathered in thousands. These soldiers gathered, not like our happy Tommy Atkins, but with the grim faces of men who were forced from home against their wills. In conversation with many Germans, Mrs. McAlpine learned that the German people did not want the war. "The dread the war as much as we do, but are forced to fight for the Kaiser or face a court martial party at sunrise." In one German city, Strassburg, they saw seven regiments march without hearing a single cheer from the city people.—Lindsay Warder.

THE TORONTO EXHIBITION

is making, as considerable feature of the lumber of that Province in its exhibit this year. In the vast stretches of forest which clothe the mountains and valleys of British Columbia from the summit of the Rockies to the shores of the Pacific Ocean she possesses the last big stand of valuable timber left on the North American continent. Her lumber trade is one of the chief assets of her wealth reaching an annual total of over thirty million dollars, and employing [illegible] and employing in her logging camps and sawmills some sixty thousand hands. This outstanding item in the long list of British Columbia's natural resources is splendidly represented in the exhibit this year. As one enters the Government Building by the north door the eye is at once attracted by a long canopy constructed of broad sheets of beautifully-grained wood extending over the whole exhibit. This canopy is built up with large sheets of the Douglas fire three-ply veneer, whih is coming greatly in demand in the west for interior fittings and decoration, to which the exquisite natural grain of the wood is peculiarly fitted. The extent to which this class of lumber can be used for finishing is vividly brought home in a small office building erected at the far end of the exhibit, of which the interior fittings, the doors, panelling, beams, cornice, floor, etc., are entirely composed of Douglas fir. The panels on the wall are three-ply veneer, and the flooring is edge grain. A visit to this little building will prove a revelation of the wonderful adaptability of the Douglas fir of British Columbia to the interior finishing of such parts of a house as the hall or dining-room, in which modern taste demands artistic woodwork.

Under the canopy is where a most interesting collection of life size models of the fish, which form so large an asset in the resources of the province. These models are of most artistic workmanship and show the fish as they actually appear in all their beauty of color in the water. A fine specimen of the King of British Columbia fish, the spring salmon, encased in a block of ice is a head line in this section of the exhibit.

The mineral wealth of the province is illustrated by an admirable series of specimens selected out of the working mines in the different B.C. camps, now long past the era of sensation and speculation and producing an annual output of over thirty million dollars worth of ore.

A beautiful and most tastefully arranged display of fruit gathered from all the fruit farming centres of the province fittingly round up the exhibit, an object lesson of the possibilities only just beginning to be developed in this wonderful Last West of Canada.

An Appeal For Funds

Contribute Liberally to The Patriotic Relief Fund—An Urgent Duty Our Citizens Should Perform

(Editor Morning Times)

Dear Sir.—

A Patriotic Fund Committee consisting of a number of citizens has been appointed to receive and disburse funds for the relief of the families of those who have gone to active service in the present war and those who in consequence of the war may be in need of relief. This Committee has appointed a sub-committee to actively canvass for funds, but as immediate funds are required and also in order to lighten the work of the canvassing committee as much as possible, I am directed by the Committee to ask the citizens of the City and County of Peterborough to make immediate and liberal contributions to the fund. Mr. F. Adams, City Treasurer, has been appointed Treasurer of the Fund, and contributions may be sent to him.

There is no need at this time of pressing the urgency for contributions to this fund, or the duty of all patriotic citizens to support it, as the duty of caring for the families of those who have gone to fight and give their lives in the defence of the Empire and of our Dominion, has been fully recognized, and the need to assist those who, in consequence of the war, require relief, is just as strong.

The Committee will take every precaution to see that the families of the soldiers are properly cared for and that the funds entrusted to them will be carefully administered.

Permit me to request that the contributions to this fund be liberal and prompt.

Yours very truly,
W. H. BULLER,
Mayor.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND

(Editor Morning Times)

Dear Sir.—The Pattiotic Fund is aunched in Peterboro. Relief will be given not only to the families of men who have gone to war, but to those who are in need of assistance through the war. The latter assistance is needed probably more than even the former when we consider that so far this year the revenue of the United States has fallen one hundred million dollars by reason of the war, and that the President of the United States says so and is calling for a war tax accordingly and that Canada is for the first five months $15,000,000 behind in revenue and will likely be $50,000,000 at the end of the year. This deficit is all due to bad business and bad business means lack of employment for those who are accustomed to work.

The meeting Friday night was a great one and shows that the people af Peterborough when they take a thing up in a thing in a public way are able to willingly carry it out.

Tea and Coffee Drinking

Tea and coffee contain a drug, caffeine— from 1½ to 3 grains to the cup. It not only stands to reason, but has been demonstrated scientifically and in practical experience, that this steady drugging is a foe to health and comfort.

A great army of people have found freedom from ills due to tea and coffee by changing to Even children drink Postum freely with benefit; they can't do that with tea or coffee.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum, must be boiled, 15c and 25c pkgs.

Instant Postum, a soluble form, made in the cup instantly, 30c and 50c tins.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds and the cost per cup is about the same.

BUTTE MINERS THREATEN TO BURN THE CITY

Butte, Mont., Sept. 5.—Miners openly threatened tonight the town in ashes if the state or federal troops attempt ta enter Butte. One of the leaders of the miners declared that they do not purpose to fight the soldiers, but to wreak revenge upon the business men for bringing soldiers to Butte.

"We have quantities of dynamite and oil," said one leader, "and the troops will find ashes."

Hitherto the majority of the miners have not credited the reports that the militia was being mobilized, as the Butte local newspapers withheld the news on request of business men, who feared its publication would excite the miners. But today a Helena editor brought an automobile load of newspapers to Butte for sale and newsboys soon began crying the news of the mobilization.

Calls immediately went forth from President MacDonald and other leaders for a meeting of union miners, which was in secret to discuss the coming of the soldiers. Later a committee of miners was sent hurriedly to the railroad stations to determine whether the troops had arrived.

The miners called another meeting for tonight. The electric light plant and all the larger stores are guarded by armed men, as are the mines. On the attic floor of the court house are 50 guards armed with rifles.

County Attorney J. J. MacCafferty issued a warrant for the arrest of the Helena editor on a charge of inciting a disturbance, but he had left the city.

All ammunition in the hardware stores has been removed and firing pins taken from the rifles.

HUNTING OF SPIES IS WORST TERROR OF WAR

Rotterdam, Sept. 2.—"The hunting of spies is the worst terror of the war in Berlin," declared the correspondent of a local newspaper on his return to this city today. He continued:

"Berlin is completely obsessed by 'spyitis.' Even before the war one heard constantly of spies and it was a dull day when the imperial high court at Leipzig did not sentence one or more.

"Russian farm laborers, who are so numerous in Germany, are constantly suspected of being spies. When the war was started there were many stories of these Russians attempting to blow up railway bridges, telegraph offices and government buildings.

"There, no doubt, was much justification in many cases for suspicions that they were spies. For instance, a boy walking along Unter Den Linden saw what appeared to be a German officer. The boy noticed something irregular about this uniform and suspected he was a spy.

"The lad asked the man a question regarding the direction of certain buildings. The man replied with a foreign accent. This confirmed the boy's suspicions, whereupon he asked a policeman to arrest the suspect. The man proved to be a notorious Russian Spy, and he was promptly shot.

"The press made much of the young hero. After that hundreds of German reserve officers, whose uniforms was not always up to the latest mode, had a chance to explain to the authorities that they were not spies."

MAN HUNT NOW ON NEAR LITTLE WOOD

New Orleans, Sept. 5.—On the receipt of the news of police headquarters from Little Woods that a negro desperado had attacked Leon V. Guillotte, son of J.V. Guillotte, former Mayor of New Orleans, and now assistant secretary to the superintendent of police, in his residence at that place and choked him almost into insensibility, presumably in an attempt to rob the house, the police auto patrol, with a squad of men, was rushed to Little Woods, leaving the city at 11.30 o'clock.

The hunt for the negro in the marshes and woods about the fishing resort on the lake shore is now on. The police are being reinforced in the search by citizens of the place.

It is reported that the negro was breaking into Mr. Guillott's house when the young man discovered him and grapoled with him. The superior strength of the black was fast overcoming Mr. Gouillette when the latter despite the strangling that had almost shut off his breath, managed to scream for help. The negro then released his hold and fled into the almost impenetrable marshes back of the village. Mr. Guilottee said he could identify his assailant.

WHAT CAUSES WRINKLES? WHAT'S THE REMEDY?

Stop to consider what produces wrinkles and sagginess of skin. Premature aging, mal-nutrition, etc., cause the flesh to shrink, lose its youthful plumpness and firmness. The skin then is too large for the flesh underneath; it doesn't fit tightly and snugly as it used to—it wrinkles or sags.

It must be plain that to tighten the skin, make it fit the face perfectly in every place, will effectually remove the hateful wrinkles and ba---iness. This is easily and harmlessly accomplished by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel and using the solution as a face lotion. The ingredients—one can get at any drug store. The results are surprising. The skin immediately tightens up, becoming firm and fresh at in youth. Every wrinkle and sag is affected at once.

BOBY FOUND IN ATLANTA MAY BE N.O. GIRL

New Orleans, Sept. 5.—Descriptions of the scant clothing and the body of a girl found in an Atlanta sewer outlet have led L. McGartlin, of 743 Camp street, to suspect that the girl was his wife, a young actress, who disappeared from her home here Aug. 17. Last Tuesday Mr. McGartlin appealed to the police and a photograph of his missing wife was sent to Atlanta.

Identification is rendered difficult, it is said, in Atlanta, because the body is somewhat decomposed. It is believed to be that of a girl about 22 years of age. The half nude body was found late Saturday in a ravine near Piedmont Park.

No trace of Mrs. McGartlin has been found since she is said to have deserted her husband and her two-year-old baby in a furnished room at the Camp street address on the afternoon of Aug. 17. She left ostensibly to go to Algiers, where she was to sing in a heatrical performance. A neighbor met Mrs. McGartlin in the hall of the Camp St. house and remembers she was attired in a plain white dress that was not freshly laundered.

Believes Wife Met With Foul Play.

This gave rise to the belief that the way. Otherwise, her husband thinks, woman did not intend to remain a- would have put on her best clothes. When several days passed and she did not return Mr. McGartlin was convinced that his wife had met with foul play.

The McGartlin baby is now in the Charity Hospital where it has been undergoing treatment. This fact was published in the local papers and the woman was urged to come home for her sick baby's sake, but the appeal met with no response.

Identification of the body discovered in Atlanta will depend largely on three articles of clothing found with it—an undershirt, corset cover and a shirtwaist. The underskirt is of thin net. The corset cover is of heavy embroidered cotton.

The shirtwaist is made of cheap madras. It is white, and has broad lilac stripes alternating with three fine black stripes. It is embroidered and has some lace. At the right side of the throat is a dark mark, made on the inside and showing through the cloth. This mark is in the form of a letter C and is somewhat blurred.

ROD AND GUN.

The cover cut of Rod and Gun Magazine for September illustrates the fact that the open Season for wild ducks in Canada starts with September. The list of contents which is sure to appeal to all sportsmen readers contains among other things the following stories and articles: A Reconnaissance from Coast to Coast; The Wildfowler in Canada from 1896 to 1914 by Bonnycastle Dale; Our Friends of the Waterways by H. Mortimer Batten; Duck Shooting by Twilight by R. J. Fraser; After Nova Scotian Woodcock with That Good Old Man; From Sharbot Lake to Montreal by Water; Tolling September Ducks; A Cry in the Wilderness; and the first of a series of articles on Things to know about a shot gun. The regular departments are as usual well maintained. W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., are the publishers.

NEW ORLEANS BOY IS RETURNED TO FATHER

Biloxi, Miss., Sept. 5.—After a chase over Louisiana and Mississippi, Peter Winkler, of New Orleans, discovered his runaway son in this city yesterday morning and left last night for New Orleans with the truant. L.C. Winkler, who is 15 years old, fled from his New Orleans home about a week ago, going to Alexandria, Shreveport and other cities in Louisiana and Mississippi. He reached this city this morning, most of the trip having been made on the top of box cars.

He was accompanied by Jas. Wolpern, of New Orleans. The young man had a good job at New Orleans and left on the "hobo trip" to see the world, but was very glad to get back home. Wolpern, who styles himself the "society tramp," was arrested here as a vagrant and was given 12 hours to leave the city. He left for Mobile yesterday afternoon.

KILLS ARMY PRISONER WHEN HE TRIES TO ESCAPE

Fort Terry, N. Y., Sept. 5. — A "general" prisoner named Murray, held at Fort Terry pending his transportation to Fort Leavenworth to serve a sentence imposed upon him by court-martial in Pennsylvania, was shot and instantly killed by a sentry late yesterday. According to an unofficial report, Murray was at work on the reservation in charge of guard. Without warning the prisoner knocked down the sentry with a pair of ice tongs, took his rifle and started toward sentry No. 2.

The latter ordered the prisoner to halt, but Murray dashed on toward the sentry, brandishing the rifle. Sentry No. 2 slipped a cartridge into his gun, aimed and fired. Murray fell to the ground dead.

The military authorities decline to make a statement.

"ON GUARD" DAY AND NIGHT AT MONTREAL

A young banker in Montreal, writing to his father in Peterboro, says:

"All the bridges and canals Here are guarded day and night. I go over Victoria Bridge every day on the way to and from the bank, on the Montreal and Southern Counties' Electric line. Both ends of the bridge are strongly guarded by troops and searchlights on both shores flash over the water at night."

MIDGETS AND DWARFS

They Simply Are Slow in Developing and Remain Childlike

Professor Hastings Gilford delivered an interesting lecture on "Infantilism" at the Royal College of Surgeons in London recently. He pointed out that many so-called dwarfs or midgets are not in reality the result of a stoppage of growth, but rather of a protracted delay of development, so that they remain infants all their lives. And when they grow old, as they often do, their infantile characteristics still persist, in spite of their wizened appearance.

So extraordinary is their slowness in passing through the childish stage that in one case Professor Gilford found it took twenty years for one of these little people to grow as much as an ordinary child grows in five years. Growth goes on until well over thirty, and at the end of that time the little "man" may be no bigger than a child of six. One case was mentioned in which one of these "infantilists" passed as a child until nearly thirty years, having no difficulty in travelling on the railway with a half-ticket. Another, a boy of fourteen, could pass as a baby in arms, and took the leading role in one of the London theatres, acting alternately as a baby and as a diminutive "man about town," with great intelligence and ability.

"It is this kind of complaint, for such is its nature, that accounts for the midgets," continued the professor. "They seem to be intelligent and captivating little people, their intelligence being of the childish pattern, such as might be expected of young children who gather years of experience. They never seem to be spoiled, nor even to be embarrassed by the attentions they receive from the public, but show quaint childish traits and a charming naiveté, which makes them great favorites with those who have dealings with them."

PRODUCERS RATHER THAN MIDDLEMEN

W. H. Cushing of Calgary, Alberta, Speaks of the Need of Settlers on the Land

Mr. W. H. Cushing, in referring to Alberta as the land of opportunity, says:

"There is no country like it for the young man providing he is sensible and does not insist on getting rich quick. Think of it! 100,000,000 acres of the finest agricultural land in the world, and only 2,000,000 acres of it under cultivation! Too many are going to the cities and too few back to the land. We want producers more than middlemen in the West. Industry and patience are all that is necessary to win for the ambitious at least a comfortable competence in Alberta." Mr. Cushing does not see any danger ahead because of exhaustive wheat growing. Optimist that he is, he says that it is questionable whether the sponge-like soil of the prairies could be robbed of its virtue no matter how many crops were taken from it. Certainly it would not deteriorate if given proper care and a rest occasionally. Even admitting that the wheat growers were taxing their land in the effort to grow wealthy quickly, the danger faded away when it was remembered that but little over 2 per cent. of the agricultural land had yet been ploughed. "Alberta," concludes Mr. Cushing, "stands on immense beds of coal, deposits of gas, oil, etc. In the north, there are large tracts of practically pure salt and other valuable minerals abound. All this is in addition to her agriculture. Who can predict what lies in front of such a storehouse of natural wealth? As I said before, I am firmly convinced that, for the young man, Alberta is the land of opportunity."

LIFE AFTER FORTY

The best half of life is in front of the man of 40, if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hands of a master and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man is the world so new and the future so fresh as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in striving to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and beautiful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thing as staleness in life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes each year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.

Perpetuating Game

Large game preserves have recently been set aside in Somaliland, Uganda and other British protectorates in Africa, in which the hunting is prohibited of elephants, giraffes, rhinoceroses and other valuable game in danger of extinction. This policy has also proved successful in perpetuating the game supply on certain Dominion Forest Reserves in Western Canada, and as occasion demands the number of these game preserves will be increased.

Our Timber Wealth

The Philippine Islands, which are extremely heavily wooded, are supposed to contain 200,000,000,000 feet, board measure, of timber. This is about one-third the estimated timber wealth of Canada, not including pulpwood, of which there are approximately 400,000,000 cords.

In Fear of Tramps

Mr. P. Harding Roberts, clerk of the Holywell Board of Guardians, appeared before the Holywell magistrates and explained the scheme for relief stations for vagrants which had been adopted by the unions of North Wales. He asked the Bench to commit to prison any vagrants brought before them for begging, as there was now no necessity for any on the road to beg. One of the magistrates said many of the farmers in the country assisted these tramps because they were in fear of them.

AS LIGHT AS LAGER
BUT BETTER FOR YOU

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig into the corners and drive out the decayed food particles.

Gold Dust is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. Gold Dust sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, Gold Dust will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. New Use For Telephones

The telephone is being put to many uses as a labor-saver and an emergency aid. In the cost keeping systems in many factories the workmen do not keep their own time records, but telephone to the bookkeeper whenever they start or finish a job, so that he can make the entry. Automatic telephone temperature-recorders are used in orchards to save fruit from frost; when the temperature falls the central operator is notified, so that she can arouse the farm hands and send them out with smudge pots.

BRITAIN'S FISH TRADE

Value of Sea Fish in One Year Over $50,000,000—Growing Export Trade With the Continent

The value of the sea fish landed in England and Wales for one year amounted to £[illegible], and reckoned in terms of human food, the year's catch amounted to some 16 million hundredweight, exclusive of shellfish, which for statistical purposes includes lobsters, crabs, and other edible crustaceans.

Not all the quantity of food [illegible] British markets, for there is a great and growing export trade with the Continent in herrings and other fish. It is probably not generally recognized how large a part the fisheries play in our foreign trade and it may, perhaps, come as a surprise to most persons to learn that approximately eleven million hundredweights of fish were exported from the United Kingdom in 1913. The herring plays by far the larger part in this export business.

The Prolific Herring

The outstanding feature of the year has again been the record herring fishery. In the year 1912 the landings of herrings in England and Wales exceeded those of any previous year by some [illegible] hundredweight; the landings of 1913 exceeded the record total of 1912 by little short of 2,000,000 hundredweight, and the value increased by more than [illegible]. It is a matter of considerable interest that this phenomenal rise in the take of herring should have occurred at a time when serious apprehensions are being entertained and vigorously expressed of danger to the herring industry through the operations of those who are taking herring by means of the trawl.

The fishing industry is a great employer of labor. The number of men and boys regularly employed is given as 37,442, while occasional labor brings the total up to 44,[illegible]. For the whole of the British Islands the total number employed is 99,530. It appears that this population is fairly constant and the prosperity of the industry has in all probability had a stimulating effect on employment in allied trades, especially shipbuilding and engineering.

Defrauding Butcher Punished

Butchers are very prone to label foreign meat as "Prime Scotch" and "English." Albert William Adlington who has shops in Walton street, Chelsea, and High road, Chiswick, did this, and at Westminster was fined $100 with $31.50 costs, the magistrate saying he regarded the offence as one which must be taken notice of in a serious way. Adlington was no doubt trying to steal a march on other tradesmen, and to a certain extent he was defrauding and misleading the public.

Prosecuting for the Board of Agriculture, etc., Mr. Graham Trapnell, barrister, said the manager of the Chelsea shop was interviewed by Mr Mayro, an inspector under the Act and it was a serious aspect of the case that the admission was made that there was no English or Scotch meat at all in the shop—nothing but foreign imported meat. In addition, the meat labelled as Scotch was sold at the same price as the real article in the district. Counsel suggested that Adlington took a mean advantage of trade competition and that the business was conducted not only with total disregard of the law, but of commercial fair dealing.

A solicitor, pleading guilty, expressed regret that a mistake had occurred. The explanation was that, running out of ordinary labels and tickets, those appertaining to home produce were used.

Hero of 200 Duels

Labertesque, a Frenchman, whose death took place the other week, was the hero of 200 duels. He achieved an instant notoriety when he went to Paris, for he began his career of fighting the whole town council of Algiers and finished up with his famous duel with [illegible] the mayor. The duel lasted two days, and in the end Labertesque wounded Max Regis in the arm. He became a boulevard hero, acclaimed in song and story, and he became also the leader of a group [illegible]."

Labertesque was a giant in strength. His prowess has passed into a legend. At eighteen he dropped into the swirl of Venezuelan revolution, fighting in the streets of Caracas. A little later he was in Cuba following the high adventure. Forty-three duels with sword, yataghan, or pistol stood to his credit in three years. He joined the Spahi Regiment in Algeria, and astounded them with his prodigious strength.—Daily Express.

According to an Italian every person in the world could stand comfortably in an area of 500 square miles, while a graveyard about the size of Colorado would bury all of them.

TRAINING WILD ANIMALS TO ACT BEFORE THE FILM

Ambitious wild animals, that until lately have hoped for fame only in the circus or on the vaudeville stage, have found a new field for exercising their talent. A private dramatic school has been established near Fort Lee, New Jersey, which devotes its time exclusively to training beasts for the moving picture stage. Paul Bourgeois, a young French animal tamer, first thought of teaching the jungle inhabitants to appear before the camera, and he immediately founded the school of which he is still director. When a film requiring beasts is to be made, the animals are first trained regularly in their simple movements until the performance becomes a habit, since they can respond only to instinct, not to intelligence. Originality must be used by the trainers to make their charges do the right thing at exactly the proper time for the camera men. For this purpose common devices are coating tree branches with honey to keep Bruin aloft the entire length of a scene, or exposing a chicken off the stage when the fox should jump out of a window.

Our Point of View

Kaiser Will is willing now to admit that it is not an easy job to bell the Belgians.

A soft answer does not always turn away wrath. Often it makes the other fellow believe that he has got away with his bluff.

In spite of President Wilson's desire for strict neutrality the United States in a few days will be at war against—straw hats.

There is no longer any doubt that Germany has established a first-class press agent at Sayville, Long Island.

"Foot Boosters Are Jailed And Prices Quickly Drop," says a headline. Hooray. Hooray. But hold. That happened in Norway, not in Canada.

The Hon. Herman Ridder has been so busy sinking British battleships in the columns of the New York Staats-Zeitung that he probably overlooked the little affair which occurred the other day off Heligoland.

The advertisement of a Philadelphia manufacturer reads: "We are compelled to withdraw prices on brushes, owing to our supply of bristles having been cut off." Went to sleep in the chair, no doubt, and the barber got in his deadly work.

According to the war news Kaiser Bill and his old friend Frank Josef of Austria have exchanged medals. Before the war is over they will probably be exchanging promissory notes.

The Balkans

An Associated Press cablegram from Sofia Monday, saying it was officially stated there than an agreement has been made between Roumania, Bulgaria, Greece and Montenegro to join the Allies against Turkey in the event that Turkey decides to thrust herself into the war of giants, is more credible than the story heretofore printed that Turkey would go to war for the Kaiser and be joined by Bulgaria and Roumania.

Turkey's incentive to an alliance with Germany and Austria of course is plain. It would enable her to launch her attack on Greece and Montenegro, one of whom is already allied with Servia in the war on Austria and the other of whom stands ready to join whenever she is needed.

But it is difficult to see how Roumania and Bulgaria could be persuaded to take up arms against Russia, which has gone to war to uphold the Slavic cause, when on the one hand they would run the risk, if the Entente is successful, of having themselves annexed to the Czar's empire, and on the other of enlarging Turkey's sphere of influence if the Triple Alliance should succeed.

Whatever the sores the Balkan war may have left, the five Balkan states have a common interest against the aspirations of Turkey in the one case and of Austria-Hungary in the other. If they are so foolish as to desire to mix in thes struggle, their obvious place is, therefore, with Russia. But if they keep their heads, they must inevitably see that what is best for them is to keep their fingers out of the pie and thus restrain Turkey from putting hers in.

If the report from Sofia is correct Turkey's entrance into the war may be considered improbable. Hemmed in as she now is, with Roumania added to the old Balkan league and England, France and Russia in supreme command of the sea, the only likely result is that she will be entirely driven from Europe if she ventures to draw the sword.

Do Long Breaths Hurt!

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY.

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs!

Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy.

Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Another Siege of Paris

The orders for the destruction of the suburbs of Paris, the announcement that preparations are being made to remove the capital to Bordeaux and the gradual withdrawal of the allies' battle line all indicate the probability of another investment of Paris. Unless, however, the Germans are able to accomplish their object the surrounding and capture of a large proportion of the allies' armies—neither the siege nor even the fall of Paris is likely to have any decisive effect on the outcome of the war. As long as the allies are able to keep their armies in the field, even if they are driven to the south of France, the campaign against the French will, of course be a failure.

If the Germans reach the city's fortifications world attention will be riveted on the subsequent operations. The frontier defenses have not proven strong enough to arrest the German advance. Will the Germans be equally successful in mastering the defenses which for forty years the French have been building around their capital?

In 1870-71 France withstood a siege of 131 days. The radius of her defensive works has been largely extended since then; but only time can tell whether the Germans' development of offensive powers against fortifications has been less, as great or greater than France's enlargement of her defensive powers.

In 1870 the war actually started on Aug. 1. For one month the tide of victory was overwhelmingly with the Germans. Weissenberg was fought Aug. 4, Spichern and Worth Aug. 6, Gravelotte Aug. 18 and Sedan Sept. 1. The end of the French resistance seemed to have been reached.

But the stricken country pulled herself together with remarkable energy and when the German army reached Paris Sept. 18 it found its way effectively barred. From then until Feb. 15 the city withstood the siege, organizing in the meantime new armies and fighting with a desperation that astonished the world.

Whether the republic can repeat the performance now, inspired by the fact that she has two great allies making common cause with her, when in 1870 she had none, is yet to be answered. If she can her chance of ultimate victory will be greatly increased. If, on the other hand her defenses quickly crumble and the Kaiser is able to capture and destroy her armies, compelling her to sue for peace, the task of the remaining allies will become appreciably severer.

BRITISH BOARD TO PASS ON DIVERTED GRAIN CARGOES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 3.—The department of commerce announced today that Sir Edward Grey, British secretary for foreign affairs, has informed Ambassador Page of the appointment of a special committee to deal with all cases on their merits regarding the release of grain cargoes diverted to England.

"This committee," said a statement from Secretary Redfield, "is communicating with various representatives of American shippers and will be ready to hear any such other representatives as desire to be heard. It will hold daily sessions at the Board of Trade, London, and all communications should be addressed to the committee's secretary, H. C. Money, harbor department, Board of Trade. No difficulty is anticipated in regard to the release of cargoes, about which the question of prize does not arise."

WAR MAY TEACH U. S. HOUSEWIVES TO SAVE

New York, Sept. 3.—The European war is directly responsible for the increased price of foodstuffs, according to a report filed by Mayor Mitchel's citizens' committee, of which George W. Perkins is chairman. The committee says that as a result of the war Americans may become educated to live on smaller quantities of food as other nations do.

Price increases are attributed to four factors: The present and anticipated demand for our domestic foodstuffs for future shipment; heavy buying of household supplies by housewives against future needs; holding back by the producer, and heavy stocking up by city and village storekeepers.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,860 feet. Wet gas has shown at 683 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,605 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 368 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,860 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

INTRODUCTION

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, was incorporated in 1913 with six pairs of foxes, at $90,000. This Company re-capitalised in 1914, with 20 pairs of beautiful Silver Black Foxes, at $15,000 per pair, making a total capitalization of $300,000.

THE FOXES

Six pairs (one year old) proven breeders, and fourteen pairs (1914 pups), making a total of 20 pairs — all young foxes— good for at least 10 years. This Company has bought some of this year's options on foxes with a guarantee that they are pedigreed and of the highest strain and very best quality P. E. Island famous foxes.

THE RANCH

The ranch is situated on the well known Glenaladale Farm, owned by Major C. McKinnon, formerly the homestead of Sir William McDonald, and is only 12 miles from Charlottetown, in a quiet locality sufficiently removed from any disturbance.

THE RANCHER

Mr. Arthur W. McKinnon, our Ranch Manager, has had much experience in breeding foxes, and has the practical knowledge necessary to efficiently manage and care for the animals.

The foxes will be ranched free of charge to the Company for the first year. This means a large saving to the shareholders, as some companies have to pay as high as 25 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes.

The promoters of this Company are retaining $80,000 worth of stock for themselves. $20,000 worth has already been disposed of, leaving $200,000 to be offered to investors at $25.00 per share, with a guarantee that a dividend of 50 per cent. will be paid in cash in 1915, or whatever more it may be.

The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Limited, in 1913 guaranteed a dividend of 50 per cent. but are going to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent., in stock in 1914. The Company is in good standing and to each and every investor the first of September, 1914, we can say:— "We have given you 50 per cent. more than we promised." And we feel sure that in 1915 all the shareholders in this re-capitalized company will be able to say they received more than they were promised.

This Company can truthfully say that they have not one cent of watered stock in the Company. Now Mr. Investor, if you were a Company and we the shareholders, we would look to you for justice to give us all that was honestly due us. We would not like for you to buy 3 pairs of foxes at $15,000 per pair ($45,000) and form a fox company and capitalize your concern at $90,000 and make us pay, as shareholders, for it. The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Company, Limited, will ask you to do nothing like that. We want to let you in on the ground floor.

NOTICE

When a fox company guarantees any specified dividend to its shareholders, and when said company is an incorporated body, you need not be afraid of any unfair play, for such company is compelled to pay what they promise, and, besides, every interest is taken for the welfare of both the investor and the company.

The promoters of this Company are all above board and will not permit any crook to come in and do anything that is not right. Anyone holding stock in this Company who is dissatisfied can, by notifying the Secretary-Treasurer, have his or her money promptly refunded.

FORTUNES IN FOXES

There is money in fox ranching more than anything else ever known. It is good for the rich man and good for the poor man. A poor man cannot buy a pair of Silver Black Foxes but he can easily raise $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00. By investing in this Company he gets back his money in at least two years and then he will have an income for life and for his children to come—and after there will be money in fox farming. One of the reasons for this is that P. E. Island has now 95 per cent. of the world's foxes in captivity. For every one pelt that can be raised there are more than 25 wealthy people waiting for it in London, Russia, France and America.

PELT VALUES

The Fox Pelts have advanced greatly in price since 1910 and you can see for yourself what money was in them then.

Below are the particulars of sale of a consignment of Silver Fox Furs, shipped from Prince Edward Island ranches to London, England, and sold there in March, 1910:

SHARES

Shares are selling at $25.00 each; 25 per cent. with application and the balance on or before September 1st, 1914.

Simply fill out the application form and mail to Major C. McKinnon, Secretary-Treasurer, Glenaladale, P. E. I.

All cheques must be made payable to "The Glenaladale Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd."

A POINTER

Just to give you a little idea of what the free ranching of foxes mean to the investor, we will figure it out for you.

We have twenty pairs of foxes in the ranch and suppose each pair produces a litter of only four foxes this is equal to 40 pairs and at $15,000 per year it would figure out at $600,000. Now, if we had to pay even 15 per cent. of the increase for ranching purposes (which is considerably lower than some companies pay) it would mean that we would have to pay $90,000 for ranching expenses.

We ranch the foxes free for the first year, so that in addition to a guaranteed dividend of 50 per cent., we save you this large outlay of money. While we guarantee 50 per cent., still should each pair in our ranch produce four pups it would mean that your dividend would be about 200 per cent. instead of 50 per cent.

FINAL WORD

A great deal has been written about Ranches, Grades of Foxes, etc., but after all the one object that every investor should keep before him is the dividend he is going to get. We have tried to show you in plain English what we can do for you and now that you have our proposition, compare it with the offer made by any other company now in business— and then judge for yourself to have been paid by some of the Charlottetown daily newspapers.

MOST HAPPY SIGNS IN WESTERN CANADA

Increasing Interest in the Man on the Land and the Progress of Agriculture

The growing interest of all classes of people in the welfare of the man on the land, and the increasing desire for the progress of agriculture, are undoubtedly among the most hopeful of the signs of the present time in western Canada. The cry from agricultural Macedonia is being heeded, and most striking is the assistance which is being rendered and which has been promised by those interests comprising the Boards of Trade of the cities and towns. Not long ago, when the fever of expansion was at its height in these urban communities, thousands of dollars and volumes of energy were expended in a vain endeavor to acquire industries. Stimulated by a craze for profits in real estate, the general demand was for factories and an increased pay roll, and some municipalities got the factories without the increased pay roll. It has taken just a little longer than one year to establish a new commercial point of view in nearly every city and town in the west. In one aspiring city in Saskatchewan, which is situated in the very heart of a grain area of 3,000 square miles, the clamor for industries has given way to the slogan, "a man for every farm in the surrounding district." The President of the Edmonton Board of Trade, delivering his annual address recently, emphasized the same idea, encouraging development in the rural districts. These were his words in referring to the question of further manufacturing in this city: "I would first like to see these ninety-five factories and industrial enterprises we already have operating to full capacity and increasing their capacity. To double the output of existing factories is preferable to doubling the number of industries. I feel that work designed to promote agricultural development in our tributary territory should be vigorously continued, and the attention of outside agriculturists drawn in every possible way to the fact that between the Red Deer and the Athabasca Rivers lies probably the best mixed farming country on this continent. At present it is estimated that less than five per cent. of the good tillable land in the rich territory referred to is in use. To increase the production of the surrounding land is the surest way to increase the output of Edmonton factories."—Norman Lambert in T

Crow Devours Starling

A gentleman living in Desswood place, Aberdeen, heard an unusual scream as if some bird were in pain. He then saw a crow holding fast a starling. The crow flew over the house on the opposite side of the street, carrying its poor victim with it. In a minute it came back into view again, and, alighting on a chimney, with a triumphant "caw," proceeded to make a meal of the luckless starling.

Suicide Soon After Marriage

A tubeworker named James M'Nicol recently married, committed suicide in his house at Chapelside, Airdrie. He had been unwell for some time, and sent his wife to tell his foreman he would not be at work. In her absence he detached the gaspipe from the stove, and, putting a pillow over his head and the pipe in his mouth, asphyxiated himself.

Strangely Mated Pairs

Some curiosities of marriage are shown in the annual report of the Registrar General for Great Britain. During the last fiscal year 283,834 marriages took place. The youngest husband, aged fifteen, married a wife of seventeen; the youngest wives, both aged fourteen, married husbands of nineteen and twenty-one. One husband of eighty-five married a wife of twenty-five, while another husband of thirty married a wife of seventy.

A Sequel to a Skye Courting

In Dunblane Sheriff Court Kate M'Kinnon, domestic servant, of Broadfoot, Skye, was awarded $1,250 damages for breach of promise of marriage against David M'Dougall, farm servant, Tyndrum. The parties met in Skye and courted for five years. Marriage was promised, but the defendant repeatedly failed to "name the day." The suit was undefended.

COAL IN CANADA

Nova Scotia Leads in Output of This Mineral Production

Coal is by far the most important product of the Canadian mines, as the value of the yearly output of coals and lignites reaches thirty-five per cent. of the total value of the country's mineral production.

Coal is abundant and extensively worked on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and its occurrence greatly facilitates over-sea trade and local traffic on both oceans.

THE TORONTO EXHIBITION

Some Interesting Exhibits at Canada's Big Fair This Week

Patriotic Manufacturing Firm.

It is not only on the firing line that a man can serve his country well, and the truth of this is well exemplified by the policy of the great firm of Christie, Brown and Co., Limited, Biscuit Manufacturers.

When war was declared and certain gentry used it as a lever to practice extortion on the public's necessity, this company immediately announced to the trade that prices would remain exactly where they were. Further, their energies would be bent not only towards retaining all their employes during the winter, but increasing the number if possible. Prices will remain as they are unless the raw materials rise to such a figure as to compel them to take notice. It is by such high-minded and public-spirited action that the strain of war is in part modified and it cannot be doubted but that this declaration of policy has had a restraining influence on others who might have been tempted to follow in the footsteps of certain purveyors of the necessities of life. The Golden Rule still stands: deeds and not words are required just now.

Toledo Scales.

The demand for the scale with the Honest Weight reputation is greater than ever, and within the last month the Toledo Scale Co. have doubled the capacity of their factory at Windsor, Ont., notwithstanding that other companies are working short time, and some have closed entirely.

An explanation of the principle of these machines at the exhibit in the Manufacturer's Building explains why. Don't miss it.

Bird's Dining Hall.

One of the most dependable things in the whole Exhibition is Bird's Dining Hall, opposite West end of Grand Stand. A full course meal for 25 cents or a special meal in the private dining room for 50 cents is sure to satisfy the most particular. A modern, clean, sanitary kitchen, a neat dining room, prompt service and good food are the principal features of Birds Dining Hall. Take your dinner and supper at Birds.

Johns' Glass Blowers.

Every year the most popular [illegible] on Toronto Exhibition Midway, with those who want value for their money, is Johns' famous troupe of glass-blowers. Glass blowing in all its [illegible] is being done here all the time by real experts. Admission is only ten cents and every visitor is given a free souvenir. Don't miss these wonderful glassblowers.

Pember's Toupees

Toronto Exhibition Visitors are cordially invited to call at the up-to-date hair goods store of W.T. Pember, 129 Yonge St., Pember Toupees are well known among gentlemen who wish to look well. Pember goods please people because they are natural.

"1900" Gravity Washers

Our readers have often heard of the "1900 Washers." Those who are visiting Toronto Exhibition will have a chance to see them doing their work.

The "1900" Washers are on exhibition underneath the Grand Stand (in centre of building) and are proving to thousands how a tubful of clothes can be thoroughly washed in six minutes without wearing or damaging the clothes a particle. If you cannot visit the Fair, write to the "1900" Washer Co., 357 Yonge St., Toronto for illustrated booklets and particulars of their FREE TRIAL OFFER for 30 days.

"SAFETY FIRST' AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

This seems to be the motto on the tongues of the many visitors and members of the Independent Order of Foresters' tent, which again holds the premier position at the head of Society Row. A warm welcome awaits all brethren and their friends, who visit this spacious tent which is fitted up with mission oak furniture and beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and cut flowers. G. A. Mitchel again assumes charge, and is ably assisted by the genial deputies, Frank Egan and John W. Poinston, who look after the wants of the many visitors.

A chat with Brother Mitchell on the Order's wonderful progress, particularly with reference to the present adjustment of rates, is most interesting. He expresses himself in a most enthusiastic manner in behalf of the loyalty and goodwill shown the officers of the Order at the time when they were doing that wonderful mission work—educating the members to fully appreciate that in order to continue, the splendid work this organization is doing it was necessary to have their Order placed on an actuarially sound basis, so there would be no, disappointments for the many beneficiaries in the future. Now the financial question of the Order is settled for all time, he rejoices to know that they can go out and complete the great fraternal work that was adopted by this Order over forty years ago. He reports that he has recently visited several High Courts on the American side, where the greatest enthusiasm reigns among the members, and in spite of the depression of business on all sides he predicts a most encouraging record for the coming fall. He is most enthusiastic in his expressions regarding the splendid investment one makes when taking a policy in this great Order. The member is put under true protection the moment he enters the Order. At any time he is sick he receives a sick benefit of $3 to $5 per week, free doctor, and in many cases free nurse. Over and above this he can carry a policy of from $500 to $5,000, with the privilege of drawing 70 per cent. of it at any time he might be permanently and totally disabled through accident or disease. This is a time one needs protection, and how many in the insurance world are ready to deal so generously with their policy-holders as this? In explaining this policy he shows where a young man at the age of eighteen insures his life for the benefit of his parents to the extent of $1,000. It means a great comfort to these parents to know their boy has been so thoughtful and has shown such consideration for them. During the time he is interesting himself in this great fraternal work he learns to appreciate the true spirit of brotherly love. He also receives a splendid education in learning to deal with matters in a parliamentary manner. With all these benefits, including his sick and funeral benefits, he finds that in carrying this policy he has one of the best investments he could possibly make, for if he reaches the age of seventy, and has not had reason to ask for his permanent and total disability benefit, he will receive $700 in cash, and all he has paid for that $700 is $340. Such a policy as this should appeal to every right thinking man and woman, to say nothing of the fraternal branches, such as their sanitariums, which are splendidly equipped for members who are afflicted with tuberculosis and where the members are treated free of cost and their orphans' home, where any child children, who would possibly have of a Forrester is cared for. In carrying out this promise over 850 little been left to the mercy of the world, had their parents not been Forresters are looked after.

HAND WASHING EXTRAORDINARY

Cleanliness Given More Credit Than Skill For Saving Lives

Most people attribute the immensely decreased rate of mortality in cases of severe surgical operations to the increased skill of the profession, to their greatly improved instruments, and the more skilful nursing which is obtained in these days. But the surgeon himself would tell you that it is almost all a matter of absolute cleanliness, the fact that nothing is left undone to insure absolute freedom from infection of any kind. This fact is emphasized by the extraordinary hand-washing regulations which are in force at the various hospitals. Everybody who is even remotely connected with an approaching operation is supposed to spend twenty minutes in the all-important process of washing his hands. For five minutes the surgeon washes his hands with soap and water, and then cleans his finger-nails. When he has done this, he spends another five minutes doing it all over again. But this is but a preparation for a third and far more drastic ablution, for this time he must wash his hands in alcohol. Not content with this cleansing process, however, he must now put his hands through a process of sterilization by soaking them for at least five minutes in a wash of corrosive sublimate. By that time he may commence his duties, which mean life or death to some patient, with the satisfactory feeling that he has done his best to approach his task with clean hands.

A system of wireless control that is now being applied successfully at several points in Scotland seems to have solved the problem of distant control of acetylene fog guns located at points difficult of access, and provides a means by which a number of such installations may be operated from one wireless station without the necessity for visiting the different signals, except for making repairs and replenishing the supply of gas. The gun automatically feeds and fires itself at regular intervals until stopped or until the supply of acetylene runs out, and the wireless control simply provides a means of starting it when there is a fog and stopping it when the fog clears, without going near the signal. Furthermore, the wireless apparatus is so arranged and tuned that it is not interfered with by the more powerful waves that may be sent out by passing ships or by other wireless stations.

Oven For Drying Copra

An oven invented by an American engineer in the Philippines for drying copra with hot air is said to yield a product better and much more valuable than that made by old processes.

USES DOG AS CADDY

Scarcity of Boys Causes Innovation on English Links

An innovation was made by a player on the Tyneside golf course at Rytown, England, which is likely to be adopted on other courses. At Rytown, in order to overcome the difficulties created by a scarcity of caddies, the player in question trained his dog, a Labrador retriever, to carry his clubs and hunt for lost balls. The experiment was so successful that it may not be long before the professional caddies on most of the golf courses will find their occupation gone. The inventor of the idea first taught his dog to hunt for balls. After a few days this proved so successful that the retriever not only brought in the ball he had been bidden to find, but others which had been missing for months.

The dog's next lesson consisted in learning to carry the clubs. A strap four inches long with a hook in the end was sewn to the mouth of the club bag. The hook was then attached to the dog's collar, and the bag was hung in place by a girdle encircling the dog's body and the bag. In speaking of his dog caddy, the golfer said:

"It is curious that the idea has never been developed before. There is no question that my dog's caddy work is much superior to that performed by any human caddy I have ever used. The dog being used to shooting, keeps well in "at heel," so that I can snatch the various clubs from him without any difficulty. When I lose a ball I merely have to order him to "find dead bird." If he has to range a good deal I unhook the golf bag so as to give him more freedom in his movements. Since I have been using my retriever as a caddy I have never lost a ball, and my game has been much swifter.

"From every point of view the dog is so much the superior of the boy as a caddy that I expect to see dogs used universally in the future. With a dog as your caddy there is no one to hear you swear, and no one to make fun of your play."

The Homing Instinct

The story of an Airedale terrier that tramped back home 126 miles is only one of many such instances. It did the journey in twenty days. Another dog was taken a hundred miles by train, and arrived back home in three weeks. A fox terrier was taken a distance of 180 miles, but within a few days it found its way to its old home.

A farmer took a horse from an island to the mainland three miles by boat, worked it all day, and let it loose. The next morning he was surprised to find the horse grazing near his stable, though still very wet.

A tame pigeon used to accompany a boy to school, a distance of one and a half miles, remain during lessons, and return with the boy.

A grey cat was taken by train over sixty miles, and yet returned home in a few days; one walked a distance less than 252½ miles in four weeks.

Wireless Waves and Birds

Observations made in sections of world where there are many wireless stations indicate that birds are disturbed in a singular way by the wireless waves. It is stated that gulls are particularly the principal sufferers, but that also large numbers of doves are in some way prevented from finding their way home when there are wireless stations in the line of flight. This strange phenomenon is attributed to some effect of the other waves not yet understood.

Accommodating Lights

Many apartment homes in Europe are equipped with electric lights which may be switched on when a person enters and which automatically extinguish themselves a few minutes later, when he has had time to reach his room.

Expriments With Dogs

By experiments with dogs kept awake for several days two French scientists demonstrated that both nerve cells and muscles lack oxygen when tired and secrete a poisonous acid.

THE NEWEST PROFESSION

College Graduate Coaches Society Aspirants in Proper Use of English

"Cambridge man is prepared to give lessons in idiomatic English to those who through lack of early opportunity are at a disadvantage in society."

The above advertisement in the "Agony column" of a London newspaper attracted a reporter's attention, and he set out to investigate.

He found the advertiser ensconced in a tastefully-furnished little bachelor flat in the fashionable Kensington district of London. He is a young man, clean-shaven and well-groomed, and with the quiet air of easy self-assurance that is everywhere the accepted hall-mark of the world.

"Mind you," he said, in the course of a conversation, "I don't profess to be an authority on the English language. I only profess to teach my clients the particular brand of idiomatic English which is spoken at the present time in good society, the little niceties of which vary from year to year and which can only be acquired by experience. And I not only teach them what to say; I teach them—and this is far more important—what not to say.

"Let me explain. I have as a client an agriculturist, who is an authority naturally, on that subject, but who knows absolutely nothing, we will say, about art. Very well. I tell him to talk pigs, not pictures, in general society. In the bosom of his family of course, it is different. There he can air his views about Royal Academy art, if he cares to do so. He is only making himself ridiculous to his wife and children, and possibly not even to them, since it is quite conceivable, in fact, probable, that they know as little about the Royal Academy as he does.

"Mostly my clients are men who have knocked about the world, and 'made their bit' in the process, and who realize that there is a certain advantage accruing to them in being able to translate what is usually a varied and interesting experience of life into good idiomatic English, such as one hears across the dining-table say, of an educated household.

"A little while back a man came to me who had begun life as a navvy on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and had afterwards blossomed into a prize fighter, and finally into a full-fledged millionaire.

"At the beginning he had an accent that you could cut with a knife, his grammar was atrocious, his vocabulary strictly limited; he spluttered when he drank whisky, and sighed when he ate soup. In six weeks I had taught him sufficient to enable him to hold his own fairly well in any society. I had, indeed, if I may say so, revolutionized the man."

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascer-tained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

An old Scottish gravedigger was remonstrated with one day for making a serious overcharge for digging a grave.

Coloring Live Trees

We have known for some time that plain horsehair can masquerade as the costly aigrette, but it has remained for the chemist to do a more daring deed. He can transform a cottonwood tree into Circassian walnut or something of that sort. The milliner does not cause horses to grow plumes on their dignified persons, but the chemist injects dye solution into the tree, and lo! the character of its wood changes. The amount of liquid some trees absorb is astonishing. One Scotch fir is reported to have had a capacity for three gallons in two days, at which time its appetite was sated. Now that trees have taken to drinking, it is hard to say what deception the future may show in the way of wood.

How to Cut Glass

There is a method of cutting glass without the aid of a diamond which is very little known. Take a piece of common string and dip it in alcohol and squeeze it reasonably dry. Then tie the string tightly around the glass on the line of cutting. Touch a match to the string and let it burn off. The heat of the burning string will weaken the glass in this particular place.

While it is hot plunge the glass under water, letting the arm go under well to the elbow so that there will be no vibration when the glass is struck. With the free hand strike the glass outside the line of cutting, giving a quick, sharp stroke with any long flat instrument, such as a stick of wood or a long-bladed knife, and the cut will be as clean and straight as if made by a regular glass cutter.

Tried to Wreck Train

Port Hope, Sept. 3.—It is believed that a deliberate attempt was made last night to wreck a C. P. R. train about one mile west of Port Hope. Three large spikes were placed on the track in such a way that the tip of the spikes came on the inside of the rail. Fortunately, the spikes were discovered in time by some men and removed. Had a train happened along it could not have escaped being wrecked.

Local Man's Elevator Endangered

Lindsay Warder: A terrific windstorm whized its course down Lindsay's main thoroughfare and the rain descended; a pedestrian walking along the north side of the street, glancing in the direction of the post office saw Contractor Bogue's home-made elevator and scaffolding sway like a pendulum. It looked every minute as if the frame work would topple over and crash to the ground. A large crowd soon gathered on the north side of the street and watched the lanky frame as it swayed from side to side. It was expected to go over any moment, but luckily the wind subsided.

Battle General To-day, With French Reports of Engagement To the Advantage of the Allies

PARIS, SEPT. 8.—VIOLENT ENCOUNTERS HAVE OCCURRED ON THE FRENCH CENTRE, BE-TWEEN FERE-CHAMPENOISE AND VITRY-LE-FRANCOIS, AT THE SOUTHERN POINT OF THE FOR-ST OF ARGONNE.

THE GERMANS HAVE LOST GROUND. THE FRENCH HAVE FALLEN BACK NOWHERE.

THE GERMAN RIGHT WING (FIRST ARMY) ON THE OURCQ AND GRAND MORIN, HAS BEEN TTACKED WITH ADVANTAGE TO OUR TROOPS. ON THE LINE, MEAUX-VITRY-LE FRANCOIS, LHE ATTLE TO-DAY BECAME GENERAL.

THE CAMPINE (BELGIUM) AND THE LIMBOURG HAVE BEEN EVACUATED. TRANSPORTS OF ERMAN TROOPS FROM THE WEST TO THE EAST ARE REPORTED FROM SEVERAL SOURCES.

VALLEY OF THE SEINE CLEAR

LONDON, SEPT. 8.—THE PUBLIC IS WAITING BREATHLESSLY WITH THE HOPE THAT THE LLIES HAVE FINALLY TAKEN THE OFFENSIVE, BUT THE CAUTIOUS TONE OF OFFICIAL COM-UNICATIONS ISSUED FROM FRANCE INDICATE THAT THE FORWARD MOVEMENT OF THE AL-LIES IS ONLY A FEELER TO ASCERTAIN THE REASON FOR THE STRANGE EASTWARD SWING OF HE GERMAN RIGHT.

NO MATTER, HOWEVER, WHAT THE FORWARD MOVEMENT MAY MEAN, A DECISIVE BATTLE CANNOT BE LONG POSTPONED. MEANWHILE THE WESTERN VALLEY OF THE SEINE, RECENTLY VER-RUN BY GERMANS, HAS BEEN CLEARED OF THE ENEMY AND HAS BEEN GIVEN A BREATH-NG SPELL.

THE UNEXPECTED SWING OF THE GERMANS HAS CAUSAD A READJUSTMENT OF THE LINES F THE ALLIES. THE MOVEMENT OF THE GERMANS WAS ASCERTAINED SO PROMPTLY BY THE EROPLANES OF THE ALLIES THAT ABUNDANT TIME WAS GIVEN FOR THE SHIFT.

FRENCH SELECTED GROUND

PARIS, SEPT. 8.—PARIS IS OPTIMISTIC TO-DAY.

EVEN THE SURPRISE AT FINDING THAT THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN ABLE TO TRAVERSE EARLY THE ENTIRE CHAMPIGNY COUNTRY DOES NOT SHAKE CONFIDENCE IN THE OUTCOME OF HE GREAT BATTLE WHICH, AFTER ALL THE MANOEUVRES, IS BEING FOUGHT ON GROUND SEL-CTED BY GENERAL JOSEPH JOFFRE, THE FRENCH COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

THE FAMOUS TURNING POINT OF THE GERMANS HAS FINALLY RESULTED IN A BATTLE FOR-ATION THAT PUTS THEIR OWN RIGHT IN JEOPARDY, AS YESTERDAY'S ADVANCE OF THE AL-LIES LEFT PROVED.

AS FAR AS MAY BE INFERRED FROM THE MEAGRE OFFICIAL NEWS, THE ARMY NOW CALL-D THE ARMY OF PARIS MUST BE ACTING AS AN INDEPENDENT FORCE, HOLDING THE CONVEX IDE OF A CURVED BATTLE LINE AND FREE TO MENACE THE COMMUNICATIONS OF THE ENEMY.

BITS OF NEWS ALREADY COMING IN FROM THE WOUNDED SHOW THAT THE ALLIES GAINED DISTINCT SUCCESS ON THE LEFT, THE ENEMY SUFFERING GREATLY WHILE TRYING TO CROSS HE RIVER MARNE. AS FAST AS PONTOONS WERE FINISHED, THE FRENCH THREE INCH GUNS EMOLISHED THEM BEFORE THEY COULD BE UTILIZED.

THE WOUNDED ARE BEING BROUGHT IN BY TRAMWAY. AMONG THOSE ARRIVING YESTER-DAY WERE TWO IRISH TROOPERS WHO, SEPARATED FROM THEIR REGIMENT DURING THE FIGHT AT COMPIEGNE, COULD GIVE NO OTHER ACCOUNT OF THEIR WANDERINGS THAN THAT THEY NEW THEY "WERE FIGHTING AT COPENHAGEN."

Russians Capture Austrian Fort After Rapid Advance

PARIS, Sept. 8.—An official statement given out here to-day says that Russian cavalrymen are now upon the crests of the Carpathian Mountains.

Continuing, the announcement says that the Russian offensive against the Austrians in Galicia continues successfully.

The Austrian fort at Nicolaieff, about 25 miles southwest of Lemberg, has been captured by the Russians. It was protected by armed gun turrets and three lines of fortifications. The Austrians retreated from Nicolaieff, abandoning their supply trains. The Russians took many prisoners, and captured also forty guns and great quantities of ammunition.

German Menace In Southwest of Africa

London, Sept. 7.—10.02 p.m.—That the Germans in southwest Africa, where there are 30,000 German troops have been storing guns and ammunition for some time preparing for military action has been made known to the British. It is said the Germans believed the Boers would aid them.

Although the Germans proceeded with great secrecy the British officials have been fully informed concerning their action and know the number of arms in their possession and their military dispositions.

With populous British territory on two sides of German southwest Africa, and with adequate military forces at hand Great Britain is said to be well prepared for the situation. It is generally believed here that she will soon seek to take control of all German territory in Africa.

German East Africa is bounded on the north and southwest by British territory and with the end of the British island of Mozambique just off the coast it is thought here that it will be easy for the British to dominate the east coast with the co-operation of land and sea forces.

It is said here that the Boer farmers living in southwest Africa are all loyal to King George.

SECOND AUSTRIAN ARMY RETREATING

London Foreign Office is Authority For Tale of Russian Success

Washington, Sept. 8.—A despatch to the British Embassy from the London Foreign Office states that the second Austrian army, operating on the From, Krasnosodov, Opol, Lublin region is suffering very serious losses, is now acting on the defensive, and in places has retreated.

Take Strong Position

Washington, Sept. 8.—The Russian Embassy to-day issued the following statement in regard to the movements of the Russian army:

"On September 6 our troops took the strong fortifications of Mikolajow on the Dniester River. The moats of these works were covered by flanking fire, the artillery placed in steel cupolas and the whole works surrounded by a triple line of wire entanglement. We took sixty guns and a large store of supplies and ammunition.

"SAFETY FIRST' AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

This seems to be the motto on the tongues of the many visitors and members of the Independent Order of Foresters' tent, which again holds the premier position at the head of Society Row. A warm welcome awaits all brethren and their friends who visit this spacious tent which is fitted up with mission oak furniture and beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and cut flowers. G. A. Mitchel again assumes charge, and is ably assisted by the genial deputies, Frank Egan and John W. Pointon, who look after the wants of the many visitors.

A chat with Brother Mitchell on the Order's wonderful progress, particularly with reference to the present adjustment of rates, is most interesting. He expresses himself in a most enthusiastic manner in behalf of the loyalty and goodwill shown the officers of the Order at the time when they were doing that wonderful mission work—educating the members to fully appreciate that in order to continue the splendid work this organization is doing it was necessary) to have their Order placed on an actuarially sound basis, so there would be no disappointments for the many beneficiaries in the future. Now the financial question of the Order is settled for all time, he rejoices to know that they can go out and complete the great fraternal work that was adopted by this Order over forty years ago. He reports that he has recently visited several High Courts on the American side, where the greatest enthusiasm reigns among the members, and in spite of the depression of business on all sides he predicts a most encouraging record for the coming fall. He is most enthusiastic in his expressions regarding the splendid investment one makes when taking a policy in this great Order. The member is put under true protection the moment he enters the Order. At any time he is sick he receives a sick benefit of $3 to $5 per week, free doctor, and in many cases free nurse. Over and above this he can carry a policy of from $500 to $5,000, with the privilege of drawing 70 per cent, of it at any time he might be permanently and totally disabled through accident or disease. This is a time one needs protection, and how many in the insurance world are ready to deal so generously with their policy-holders as this? In explaining this policy he shows where a young man at the age of eighteen insures his life for the benefit of his parents to the extent of $1,000. It means a great comfort to these parents to know their boy has been so thoughtful and has shown such consideration for them. During the time he is interesting himself in this great fraternal work he learns to appreciate the true spirit of brotherly love. He also receives a splendid education in learning to deal with matters in a parliamentary manner. With all these benefits, including his sick and funeral benefits, he finds that in carrying this policy he has one of the best investments he could possibly make, for if he reaches the age of seventy, and has not had reason to ask for his permanent and total disability benefit, he will receive $700 in cash, and all he has paid for that $700 is $540. Such a policy as this should appeal to every right thinking man and woman, to say nothing of the fraternal branches, such as their sanitariums, which are splendidly equipped for members who are afflicted with tuberculosis and where the members are treated free of cost and their orphans' home, where any child children, who would possibly have of a Forrester is cared for. In carrying out this promise over 850 little been left to the mercy of the world, had their parents not been Forresters are looked after.

WORK ON NEW OUTFALL SEWER TO BE COMMENCED AT ONCE

City Fathers Met in Regular Monthly Session Last Night --Some Work Will be Furnished for Unemployed Without Delay--Mr Peter Thompson Appointed Plumbing Inspector--Street Paving to be Done This Year

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night, Mayor Buller presiding.

There were also present Aldermen McIntyre, Anderson, Johnston, G. Walter Green, Duncan, A. H. Stratton, Saunders and Duffus

The City Solicitor wrote that a large number of ratepayers are retaining counsel to appeal against their assessments this year, and asked authority to retain valuators to make inspection of the properties the assessment of which is to be appealed. It is advised that the majority of these appeals are coming from members of the Retail Merchants' Association. The Solicitor's request was granted.

For Work on Outfall Sewer

The City Solicitor submitted a draft for short-term notes on which the City may borrow money with which to prosecute work on the new outfall sewer, which was received as satisfactory. The idea is to borrow small sums from $100 upwards, payable in short terms of from one year to two years, pending the sale of debentures for the $73,000 required for the new sewer. In this way the City hopes to raise sufficient money to enable the building of the sewer at the earliest possible moment.

A Street Railway Question

Ald. Duncan thought the City should repair the roadbed between the street railway tracks, in many places where needed, and charge the work up against the Company. This, he said, would furnish work for some men and the City has the power to pursue this action when the Company fails to properly maintain its roadbed.

Peace Celebration

Council expressed the opinion that the Hundred Years' Peace celebration should be held next year notwithstanding the present European war.

$100 Law Expenses

The Township of North Monaghan have asked the City to pay their legal expenses entailed by engaging the representation of the law firm of Peck, Kerr & McElderry in the controversy between the City and County re construction of the new outfall sewer through North Monaghan. The bill amounts to $100, which the City, on motion of Ald. Johnston and Ald. Anderson, will pay.

The vote on this question resulted as follows:

Ayes—Aldermen Saunders, Duncan, Johnston, Anderson and the Mayor.

Nayes—Aldermen Duffus, Green, and McIntyre.

Construction of Sewers

A By-law to authorize the construction of sewers, and the issue of debentures to pay for same, passed its several readings.

This measure refers to the new outfall sewer, which will probably be constructed without delay.

A By-law authorizing the execution of an agreement, under which the outfall sewer shall be constructed through North Monaghan, passed its three readings.

Plumbing Inspector

A By-law appointing Mr. Peter Thompson Plumbing Inspector, at a salary of $600 a year, passed Council. Heretofore Mr. Thompson held the position of Assistant Plumbing Inspector.

Ald. Stratton reported that as a result of his visit to Toronto yesterday the Eastern Dairymen's Association will hold their Annual Convention in Peterborough on January 6th, 7th, and 8th, next. It is understood that the City will make a small grant of about $150, which will defray ordinary expenses

Matter of Light

Ald. Anderson reported that citizens in East City complained of bad lighting in that section. Council promised improvement on assumption by City of the City lighting, as Hydro-Electric.

Ald. Green suggested that the reflectors on incandescent lamps be enamelled. This will be attended to in the near future.

Work at Once

Contract far making sewer pipe will go to a local firm, probably Hall & Taylor, which will provide some local labour. Work on the new outfall sewer will be started as soon as practicable. The matter of purchasing excavating apparatus was left with the City Engineer and Chairman of the Board of Works, with power to act

Street Paving at Once

Ald. Stratton suggested that the street paving work under contract with Messrs. Foley & Gleeson be prosecuted without delay on money borrowed by promissory notes or otherwise, so as to furnish work for the unemployed. The Provincial Secretary has promised that an Act will be passed to validate any action out of the regular municipal course any municipality may take to ease the labor situation.

Council authorized Ald. Duncan and the City Engineer to instruct Foley & Gleesan to go on with their contract as soon as possible.

How She Acquired "Feminine Charm."

A nicely-dressed woman sat beside me in the train. Everyone stared at her. It was not her beauty of feature that held our eyes, nor her costume. But there was something about her face and expression— I asked it and asked: "Would you mind telling me how you keep your complexion so dazzlingly pure? Don't think me impertinent, but you seem over 30, yet haven't a line in your face, and your cheeks are quite peach-like. How do you do it?"

Laughing, she said: "That's easy; I remove my skin. Sounds shocking, doesn't it? But listen. Instead of cosmetics I use only mercolized wax, procurable at any druggist's. I apply this nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings. This gently absorbs the soiled, weather-beaten film-skin, without pain or discomfort, thus revealing the fresh, clear, under-skin. Every woman has a beautiful complexion underneath, you know. Then, to ward off wrinkles I use a face bath made by dissolving powdered saxolite (one ounce) in one-half pint witch hazel—a harmless astringent which 'tones' the skin wonderfully. Very simple, isn't it?" I thought so. I'm now trying her plan and like it immensely.—Millicent Brown in The Story Teller.

BACK TO THE LAND

A Son's Observations on His Father's Choice of Professions

A bright young man living in a city dropped into our office recently for a chat on farming matters. The young man was filled with enthusiasm in general, and had a genuine case of the "back to the land" fever. He was looking for a farm location.

"My father was a good man and a good farmer, and particularly good and kind to his children," the young man stated. "When we were children we worked on the farm, but our lives were made easy by the hard labor of father and mother. We were sent to school whenever possible. The one thing for which my parents were to blame in raising their children was that they forced us into grooves of life for which we were not prepared. Henry was raised with the one idea of being a lawyer, and a poor lawyer he proved to be. My own life was shaped for the ministry, and in spite of my disinclination, my desire not to offend my mother's lifelong wishes led me to accept the charge. Time proved that neither my brother nor I were fitted for the life-work for which we were prepared by our parents. The regret of my life is that my father did not take me into comradeship in the conduct of the farm, that he did not teach me the things he was a lifetime learning that he did not impress on my mind the advantages of farming, the only life for me worth living, for now I am bound to be a farmer just as my brother has become."

As this young man told us of this personal history, we could not help but think of the many parents the country over who are making the same mistake with their children. There are many boys who leave the farm simply because their parents do not teach them the advantages of a good farm, and that a good farmer is as much to be respected and honored by his fellow men as a good lawyer or a good preacher.

We recently visited the farm of a prominent breeder of pure-bred cattle. He had sent his only son, who had previously wanted to leave home, to the agricultural college. When the boy came home he was full of enthusiasm and interested in the farm and herd. He told his father what he had learned in college about farming and about stock, and made some suggestions, later carried out, which the father told us really made him money and benefited the farm. The boys and girls are the most important crop on the farm after all, and the farm is the best place to keep them. They will not all stay there but they ought to know that the farm is not such a bad place after all, before they get ready to leave it.—The Maritime Farmer.

WASTED $250,000

Rich Man Reduced to Singing For Coppers and Asking For Crusts

A man who had been left several fortunes, and after spending all came to be charged with begging, found himself in the dock at Northwich, England.

He was John Marsh, aged sixty-nine, of St. Helens. He declared that he had been left by various relatives sums totalling $250,000, which had all been spent in drinking, gambling, and helping others. He had inherited his fathers's spendthrift nature and his mother's generosity.

He was formerly in a grocery and confectionery business at St. Helens, but now worked for farmers solely for his food, varying the monotony by singing in publichouses songs of his own composition, and dancing.

Reduced to hunger, he pleaded, he simply begged a crust. His one desire was to tide over another year to qualify for an old age pension, as he had an aversion to becoming a pauper. The magistrate gave him money to help him on his way, and dismissed the case.

FIFTY MILE GOLF DRIVE

Certain extraordinary facts with respect to Mars have been established by the astronomers, says an article in the "London Magazine."

It is known that the size and density of Mars are so much less than the size and density of the earth that a man weighing 200 pounds here would weigh only 75 pounds there. Lead there would weigh no more than stone with us, and stone there no more than water here.

A man on Mars would be eighty-three times more powerful than an earth-dweller. He could leap a wall 8 feet 4 inches in height with no more effort than it would cost him here to spring over a 2 foot fence, and he would be able to drive a golf ball no less than fifty miles!

The former Miss Dorothy Deacon is a real princess. Her new position places her among the first of the non-royal women of Europe.

Lady Street Collectors Duped

A number of the ladies who assisted at the street collection of money in Glasgow on behalf of the Lifeboat Fund were relieved of their boxes by a man who pretended that he was the official deputed to convey the money to the bank. No fewer than twenty-seven boxes were handed over to the unknown man. The estimated sum missing as the result of the theft is about $100.

A UNIQUE POST OFFICE

A Letter Takes a Day to go From One Side to the Other

Probably no other place in North America has a post office of the unique proportions of Beebe Plain. There a simple wooden building shelters the offices of two countries. The structure is cut diagonally by the Canada line, being almost equally divided by the imaginary boundary. The northern half contains the post office of Beebe Plain, Canada, and the southern half the office of Beebe Plain, Vermont. They are separated only by a ten-foot corridor, using this passage

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure, and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. How It Is Proposed to Colonize 14,000 Near Kinsella

Mr. Albion Hunt and Mr. Hal Carlton of London, England, intend to colonize a tract of land of about 14,000 acres lying near Kinsella on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, about 75 miles east of Edmonton. The novelty of the plan lies in the fact that the promoters will endeavor to attract in particular the man who has not had any previous experience in farming. They will have a model three hundred and twenty acre farm in the centre of the tract. This model farm will be run on a strictly business basis while at the same time it will be of educational value. It will show the new settler how to erect the best and cheapest kind of houses and other buildings and the best manner of raising horses, cattle, hogs, poultry, grain, fodder, crops on a commercial paying basis. The model farm will also teach how to best handle the land itself from the initial breaking to the harvesting of the crops. Arrangements will be made for the marketing of all kinds of produce, and advice will be given as to the necessary equipment of the farm, including both live stock and machinery. If the newcomer does not wish to buy equipment for use the first year, but is desirous of confining his operations to fencing, building and general initial development work, then the model farm will break his land and put in his crop at moderate prices. It has been arranged to temporarily house at Kinsella any settler while he is putting up a house and if those who are bachelors desire they may board at a low rate at the model farm. The project is somewhat of a co-operative one as everything will be bought in large quantities thereby reducing prices. Marketing will also be done on a co-operative basis to a

All old fruit trees when they cease to bear good crops of fruit should be grubbed and burned. To keep up the stock of these fruit trees there should always be young ones in course of preparation to take the place of those that are worn out, then when an orchard tree fails to bear, the young one can at once take its place. It should be understood, however, that when the old tree has been grubbed up the soil in which it has been growing should be renewed, and if need be some rough material in the way of broken bricks, etc., put into the bottom to assist drainage if the subsoil is at all heavy and inclined to hold water. Those who like to do home grafting need never to be without young healthy trees. It may be pointed out that old trees must not be condemned until one is quite sure that they are past renewing, as many suffer from pure neglect in the way of food. Orchards in which cattle and sheep are allowed to graze are not so likely to fail, but when the grass is converted into hay and nothing in the shape of food is brought back then the trees must suffer and fail to crop. Orchard trees that are past recovery should be allowed further trial and rich top dressings given. In many of our farmyards drainings from the cowshed and stable are often allowed to run to waste, whereas these, if saved and diluted applied to such old trees, will work wonders. Sewage from the house and the soapsuds from the laundry may be profitably utilized in the same way

MAKE UP YOUR MIND

Don't grumble or fume when tough
work lies ahead,
But make up your mind, man, to
do it!
Show courage and pluck, don't
coward's tears shed,
If quickly you'd see yourself through
it.
Should gathering clouds your horizon
obscure,
And the storm in its fury burst,
Don't flinch from the ordeal, but
bravely endure,
And boldly prepare for the worst.

Be manly, and tackle your duty each
day.
Prove you've nerve and the will
power to do it.
Help your fellows along, who have dropped by the way.
Give cheerfully; you'll never rue it.
'Tis a kind action here, and a little help there
From a comrade who's willing to give it
That heartens a fellow his trouble to bear,
And finally sees him outlive it.

If e'er you are tempted to whimper
and doubt
When the pathway of duty is rough
Remember the heart that is steadfast and stout
Is the one that withstands a rebuff
And tackle with confidence, valor,
and skill
All hindrances placed in your way.
You'll quick climb the hill if you work with a will.
Make your mind up, and do it
"to-day."

Our Point of View

Germany will not be so insistent on men teachers this winter.

It will be easier to name the war after the entries are closed.

Joints Quit Aching Soreness Beats it Away

MISERY IN YOUR BACK OR SIDE OR LIMBS !

Wonderful "Nerviline" is the Remedy.

A marvelous pain reliever.

Not an ordinary liniment—just about five times more powerful, more penetrating more pain-subduing than [illegible] thick, oily or ammonia liniment. Nerviline fairly eats up the pain and stiffness in chronic rheumatic joints, gives quick relief to those throbbing [illegible], and never burns or even stains the skin.

"Rheumatism kept my joints swollen and sore for ten years. My right knee joint was often too painful to allow me to walk. In this crippled tortured condition I found Nerviline a blessing. Its warm, soothing action brought relief I had given up hoping for. I rubbed on quantities of Nerviline and improved steadily. I also took Ferrozone at mealtime in order to [illegible] and enrich my blood. I am to-day well and can recommend my treatment most conscientiously.

Not an ache or pain in the muscles or joints that Nerviline won't cure. It's wonderful for lumbago and sciatica; for neuralgia, stiff neck, earache and toothache. Nerviline is simply a wonder. Best family liniment [illegible]ly used for the past forty years. Sold by dealers everywhere, large family size bottle 50c., small trial size 25c. Refuse a substitute, take only "Nerviline!"

Old Local War News of 30 Years Ago Recalled

In view of the fact that Canada is now in the throes of a war, the following taken from The Peterborough Times of September 17, 1884, may be of interest:

"On Tuesday morning last, Capt. T. Ammond, of Ottawa, paid a visit to this town for the purpose of obtaining men to join the Canadian contingent of the Nile expedition for the relief of General Gordon.

"The class of men required were people used to boats—not soldiers—whose duty it would be to convey the army of relief and provisions up the great river Nile in Egypt. Twenty volunteers were secured by Capt. Ammond, and with these he departed on the O. & Q. night express to Ottawa. The following is a copy of the agreement between the Government and the men:

"Sept. 9th, 1884.

"I, Sidney Blade, agree to accept service from the Imperial Government, as boatman, to take part in the expedition up the Nile River to Khartoum, upon the following terms:

"1. My term to be for 6 months, dated from the 9th of Sept., 1884.

"2. My pay to be at the rate of $40 per month, out of which $20 shall be paid monthly to my wife, Mrs. Sidney Blade, Peterboro, Ont., at the office of J. T. Lambert, Ottawa, or of the agent of the Imperial Government at Ottawa.

"3. The Imperial Government to provide me with the following articles:—1 blanket, 1 smock, 1 pair trousers, 1 jersey, 1 undershirt, 1 pair drawers, 2 pairs of socks, 1 pair m[illegible], 1 flannel belt, 1 towel, 1 felt hat, 1 tump line, 1 canvas bag,—to provide me with free rations during the time of my engagement, and to defray all my travelling expenses, from and back to the place of my engagement.

"4. During my engagement I agree to be subject to the authority of the foremen and officers under whose charge I may be, it being understood that such officers shall have the power of punishing any act of insubordination or irregularity by stoppage of my pay, and, if necessary, my dismissal.

(Sgd.) "Sidney Blake."

Five of the men are married and all make the same provision for their wives. The following comprises a list of those from Peterborough:—

"Wm. H. Anderson, Sidney Blade, John Faulkner, Murray Natheson, John White, Thomas Hanson, J. M. Mowry, Adolphus Sinatt, Alex. Ross, Wm. H. Lawry, John Walsh, William Harris, John Corcoran, Albert Bradshaw, John McMahon, John A. Sherlock, Peter Phelan, John Welsh, John Gorman."

Now that Monte Carlo is closed the gamblers of Europe are betting on when the war will end.

On several occasions we have observed that our old friend, Colonel Bolivar Beasley, had high ideals only when he is full of highballs.

"Belgium declined our advances," says Gen. von Stein. The general has what the literary critics call reserve.

The forty-fourth anniversary of Sedan was very appropriately celebrated Tuesday by a pitched battle between the Germans and the French.

The Duluth Herald remarks that the European nations are learning that to get gory you simply knock 'L' out of glory.

When you see a man sitting on his front porch every evening and looking perfectly miserable it is a sure sign that his wife has him disciplined to a finish, and that he gets an ultimatum if he attempts to twitter.

An English sea captain and a German sea captain, both detained in Boston, have pleased the water front by amicably dining with each other. Of the millions fighting in Europe how many had any more reason to blow each other to pieces?

Oscar Straus, who was minister to Turkey in the first Cleveland administration and a cabinet officer under Roosevelt, is no mean observer of events. He says this war will end the institution of monarchy in Europe.

Western cattle raisers who complained over the competition of Argentine beef were not much troubled. It is no longer coming in and probably will not while the war lasts. No protection could be more adequate.

The palatial steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which cost five millions of dollars, would still be in commission had it not made the mistake of falling into the company of a Highflyer.

There are times when we are almost persuaded that the European war will not have been in vain if in the end it discloses the identity of the gentleman who struck Billy Patterson.

To the other horrors of war may be added the magazine articles on their harrowing experiences which a dozen American refugees say they are going to write.

We are inclined to believe that the German general who burned a historic church in Belgium has been making a study of the tactics of the London suffragettes.

When the Japanese destroyed the German cable station on the island of Yap they choked off the celebrated liar of Chefoo, for which they have our thanks.

WAR NEWS

For the last two weeks the NEW YORK HERALD has consistently presented the first photographs taken in war-ravaged Belgium, which included the first photographs showing the carnage done in Antwerp by the bomb throwing Zeppelins, scenes in portions of France which have fallen to the Germans and photographs of the men who are at the head of the various armies.

In addition to the foregoing the NEW YORK HERALD has just received the first sketches made at the front. These will appear in color in the SUNDAY NEW YORK HERALD of September 13th.

These war sketches were made by Xavier Sager, who while in New York was connected with the Art staff of the New York Herald. To-day he is a major in the French army and is where he has an opportunity to sketch interesting glimpses of movements and personalities.

In connection with the best of accurate war news the Magazine Section of the SUNDAY NEW YORK HERALD for September 13th will contain the full page sketches by Major Sager, a page story on the fighting qualities of Great Britain's soldiers, two pages of photographs showing war scenes in France, half page of views showing how cities appear from Zeppelins, a page on the opening of the war as seen in Great Britain by a woman member of the New York Herald staff, and a page of reproductions of famous war paintings.

OIL THE GREAT WEALTHMAKER

We hold over 3,000 acres, more or less, of oil leases North and South of Monarch and several of our leases are in the same range as the Monarch well.

Many companies claim to be close to Monarch but we are one of the very few who are in Range Six upon which the Monarch Well is situated. Therefore, we must be on the same anti-cline and as it is a foregone conclusion Monarch will get oil, so will we.

Fifty-Seven Feet of Oil Bearing Sands Passed Through in Monarch Well

OFFICIAL STATEMENT IS GIVEN OUT BY PRESIDENT GEORGESON—WELL IS NOW DOWN OVER 1,800 FEET AND FLOW OF WET GAS HAS BEEN STRUCK IN LOWER LEVELS—GEOLOGIST DUNN IS AWAY AT PRESENT

Heavy oil showings are being found in the Monarch well, west of Olds, although the oil has not yet come in in commercial quantities.

To put the exact facts before the public, President William Georgeson and Treasurer G. W. Morfitt, of the company, this morning issued an official statement from the drillers setting forth the results.

The heaviest oil seepage has been encountered through a stratum 57 feet thick, and the well is now 1850 feet deep.

A sample of this oil baled out at 1,775 feet was brought to the city this morning and is in the office of Mr. Morfitt, Grain Exchange Building. The oil is a heavy black petroleum with the characteristic petroleum odor.

The statement issued by the officers is as follows: In the absence of Mr. Dunn, Mr. Van Alst, the head driller, reports that from the depth of 1,775 feet to 1,832 feet he went through oil bearing sands for 57 feet. Throughout there was a heavy showing of black oil in the baler. Two further showing of black wet gas were met at 1,805 feet and 1,915 feet.

The well is now down 1,850 feet. Wet gas has shown at 633 feet, 1,430 feet, 1,805 feet and 1,815 feet.

Oil sands have shown at 868 feet, (48 feet), 1,430 feet (40 feet), 1,740 feet (14 feet), and 1,775 feet (57 feet).

The well is now down 1,850 feet, and while there are good oil showings there is not as yet oil in commercial quantities.

Our stock is on the market at 50 cents a share, a Dollar par, and will be advanced without notice any day pending Monarch Well developments. It is practically a certainty that Monarch will be in oil in commercial quantities within two weeks, Our stock will jump away above par and you had better hurry if you wish to share our prosperity.

FLAG LANGUAGE

Flags half-masted mean death. A yellow flag means that the vessel is in quarantine; a yellow flag with black quarters, plague; blue with a white centre square is the "Blue Peter," and signifies that a vessel is about to sail.

A red burgee—a flag with the V-piece cut out, denotes danger from explosion above or below water. The Union Jack upside down indicates extreme distress. The White Ensign denotes that the vessel wearing it is a man-of-war under the King's commission.

The Blue Ensign has no cross, and is worn by vessels on public service or merchant ships, liners, etc., whose commanders are officers who hold the King's commission in the Reserve. The Red Ensign with no cross denotes "British," that is all. Buildings "fly" flags, by the way, and vessels "wear" them.

The Marchioness of Dufferin who was formerly Miss Flora Davis of New York. When she married the Marquis in 1893, she had two ambitions. One was to be a successful wife and mother. The other was to make a success in a musical career. She has brought up three daughters well beyond the nursery days, proving her success as a mother. Now she is ready to try her ability to realize the second ambition.

TEETH AND APPLES

The Use of the One as Food Will Preserve the Other

Dr. Sims Wallace, late dental surgeon to the London Hospital, voices the astounding belief that there are some $1,000,000 teeth in Great Britain ruined through eating sweets. He urges the adoption of a diet containing a good quantity of farinaceous food in a form which will stimulate mastication—brown bread, and the eating of fresh fruit with every meal.

The importance of the proper care of teeth during childhood is becoming universally recognized, and the London County Council established a centre for the treatment of dental troubles of schoolchildren with X-rays.

According to investigation it was found that about 39 per cent. of the children of well-to-do parents have bad teeth, as against 27 per cent. from poorer homes. This is probably accounted for by the fact that, as the latter have more coarser food, their teeth have more work to do, and are consequently stronger and cleaner. Their sweets are also fewer, and are mostly of the cheap, boiled sugar variety. These sweets break up cleanly in the mouth, whereas the caramels and chocolates eaten by the children of indulgent parents cling to the teeth and ferment.

Boys and girls should be given fruit in preference to sweets. Nuts and all hard fruits encourage mastication. The best fruit for this purpose is the apple. Eaten at the conclusion of a meal it leaves the teeth and mouth sweet and clean.

Our Debt to Negroes

We gladly gulp down the soothing drug the doctor brings us, but we rarely wonder in what romantic way it first came to light, or who took all the risks of testing it upon himself.

It was Humboldt, the great discoverer, who many years ago brought to light the fact that the South Americans and Indians could bear fatigue and hunger to an extraordinary extent by chewing the leaves of a certain shrub. The name of that shrub was coca, from which we now get the wonderful drug cocaine.

And how many of the millions of invalids who have been indebted to the tonic virtues of quassia know that we owe its discovery and name to one Quassi, a negro slave, who had successfully experimented with it during the terrible fevers in Surinam?

It was in the early part of the seventeenth century that the wife of the Viceroy of Peru was attacked by a severe ague, and the natives induced her to try quinine, with such surprising success that she brought the good news to Europe.

WINGS FOR AEROPLANES

Linen the Best Material; Silk Lighter But Not so Durable

Although to the lay mind the suggestion that aeroplanes should be fitted with silk wings may seem an unnecessarily extravagant idea, there are certain advantages to be gained by such an innovation which would warrant the extra expense. Not that the latter would be very great. The cost of using silk on a modern biplane would not increase the expense by more than $100 per machine, while it is estimated that it would reduce the weight by about 30 pounds. Such a saving in weight, of course, is high- ortant, and when it is mentioned that from $5,000 to $6,000 is usually spent on a biplane, the item of cost seems in no way considerable.

In the opinion of experts there are certain objections to using silk for aeroplane wings. It is pointed out that while it is superior to linen which is now used, in regard to strength, it does not stand exposure to sun and rain so well. Furthermore silk does not lend itself so well to dressing with tautening liquids, which is essential in order that the wings may not suffer unduly from the vagaries of the climate.

Various experiments have been made not only with silk, but with every kind of material in making aeroplane wings—catgut, cotton, transparent celluloid films (in the hope of invisibility), fine aluminium foil (for fireproofness), wooden slats, and feathers. None of them, however, equal linen, which when dressed with the tautening liquids seems impervious to everything except accidents.

The dressings, which consist of solutions of casein, are applied after the linen has been stretched over the framework. Three or four thin coats are applied, and, the effect of the dressing is to pull the whole fabric together in every direction. When the coats are dry the linen rings like a drum to the flick of the finger, and affords a fairly smooth surface, which is sometimes further improved and rendered water-resisting by a coach builders' flexible varnish. It is estimated that the dressing increases the strength of the lines by some five per cent.

An Appeal to the Intelligent Investor !

Does a logical presentation of a good investment interest you? Do you believe there is an oil in commercial quantities in Alberta? If you are alive to the situation you do. Then it will pay you to investigate our proposition and our holdings.

Please Read Carefully and Note!

THAT Oil authorities are agreed the Alberta Oil Field is of an anticlinal formation. It has been fairly accurately ascertained in what general direction these anticlines run. Geologist B. W. Dunn chose wisely in the selection of the now famous Monarch well. WINDSOR OILFIELDS, LIMITED, has holdings located close to the Monarch.

THAT Cunningham Craig, one of the world's most eminent geologists, selected the site of the Mowbray-Berkeley well. Stock in that company is not offered at any price. We possess acreage adjoining the Mowbray-Berkeley (Section 12, Township 23, Range 5, West of 5th). If a strike is made at the Mowbray-Berkeley what will shares in our company be worth?

Our holdings consist of 1380 acres, carefully selected and judiciously spread over the entire oil field.

Street promenading by young persons was called attention to at a conference of the Dundee Committee on Public Morals. Chief Constable Carmichael stated that the practice of promenading the chief streets was more prevalent on Sundays than on any other day of the week. No offence appeared to be committed, and the police could not, therefore, interfere. It was reported that the Aberdeen committee was prepared to co-operate and it was decided to ask the police and the Salvation Army to unite in endeavoring to deal with evils attendant upon street promenading.

Clerk's Rescue Attempt

How Sydney James Turner, a clerk, made an heroic effort to save a drowning man in one of the most dangerous spots in the Swift-flowing Kennet was described at the inquest at Reading on Frederick William Newman, a groom. Turner saw Newman being rapidly borne down the stream, and, fully clothed as he was, he jumped into the rescue, a drop of nearly 16 feet. Swimming strongly, he caught Newman when the latter was in the act of sinking, but he failed to retain his grasp. The water was very deep.

HOARD OF JEWELRY IN ANCIENT TOMB

Professor Petrie's Wonderful Find South of Cairo—Heap of Gold and Gems

Professor Flinders Petrie has recently found in an Egyptian pyramid one of the greatest hoards of Egyptian jewellery that has survived.

A quarter of a century ago he found the entrance to the pyramid, but recently he returned to it with the students and resources of the British School of Archæology in Egypt, and found the splendid jewels of an Egyptian princess who, perhaps, has lain in her long sleep over 5,000 years.

A Splendid Pyramid

"At the mouth of the Fayum, about sixty miles south of Cairo, stands the high, dark mass of the brick pyramid of Senusert II., built about 3400 B.C.," begins Professor Petrie.

"Around the enclosure wall were the tombs of the Royal family, of which fourteen have been found. One of the most remarkable is a great tunnel descending by steps to 50 feet deep; after giving access to one tomb, it branched, and another long passage led to a second tomb 70 feet farther on.

"So far, nothing unusual appeared, and our workman was told to clear the hard mud out of a small recess, about 3 feet wide and 5 feet deep, in the side wall of the passage. This recess had stood open for many years, gradually filled with mud washed down and caked hard—nothing could look less promising.

Located the Treasure

"After a few cuts of the pick the man found some tubular beads of gold.

"The first large object found after a pound weight of gold beads was the diadem. This is a band of burnished gold over an inch wide, and large enough to surround the full wig. In front is an inlaid cobra, the Royal uræus, and around the band are attached fifteen rosettes, each composed of four flowers and four leaves of openwork inlaid. It is thus of an entirely new pattern, most like that painted on the statue of Nefert. Behind the crown stood up high plumes of gold; at the back and sides streamers of gold descended—the whole crown being over a foot and a half high. This is now in the Cairo Museum.

Some Things Found

"A pectoral of gold inlaid with lasuli and amazon-stone (green felspar) must have belonged to the girlhood of the princess; it has the cartouche of Senusert II., upheld by a kneeling man with palm branches, the emblem of millions of years. It is flanked by a hawk on each side, and is altogether 3¼ inches wide. The back is exquisitely engraved in the gold. A second pectoral of similar design was a gift in the mature years of the wearer, as it has the cartouche of Amenemhat III. This also is in the Cairo Museum. The pectorals from Dahshur have square frames, but these outlined by the forms of the birds are more graceful in design. Collars of large gold cowries and of double lionheads in gold each over an inch wide, are similar to those found at Dahshur. A third collar was of beads and pendants of gold lasuli, amazon-stone, and carnelian.

"A pair of armlets, over 3 inches wide, are fastened by a broad sliding strip of gold inlaid with the titles and name of Amenemhat III. in carnelian. Each armlet has also six broad bars of gold to separate the rows of minute beads of gold, carnelian and amazon-stone. A pair of bracelets of the same kind are 1½ inches wide, with plain gold sliders. The mirror was of silver, with a head of Hat-hor of cast gold, and a handle of polished obsidian inlaid with plaited gold bands and leaves of carnelian and blue and white paste. This is now in the Cairo Museum. The toilet outfit also included three obsidian vases and a khol-pot, all with gold mounting at top and base. Eight other vases of alabaster belonged to the funeral outfit.

10,000 Beads

"The smaller objects comprised an amethyst necklace of very deep color with lion-claw pendants of gold, five motto pendants of gold with inlaid carnelian signs; a necklace of rhombic beads of blue amazon-stone and carnelian; eight gold lions and nine knots from necklaces and bracelets; seven quadruple lion-heads; two inlaid scarabs; gold-handled razors; fragments of two caskets of ivory inlay, with gold emblems in the panels; and over 10,000 minute beads of gold, carnelian, and amazon-stone, belonging to the bracelets. Lastly, in a massive limestone box, were found the four canopic jars of alabaster, with carved heads, giving the name of 'the King's Daughter, Set-Hathor-ant.'

Prince as Mentor

On one occasion the present Prince of Wales and Prince Albert stayed in a nobleman's house in charge of their tutor. The princes were then quite small boys. They were given porridge at breakfast, and when the footman put the porridge—which was served in silver bowls—before Prince Albert, his Royal Highness said, "No, thank you!" The man just removing the bowl when the Prince of Wales, who was sitting opposite his brother said: "Don't be an ass, Albert! Eat that porridge; it's good for you!" And his brother obeyed him.

LOCAL MAN TELLS OF ENGLISH WAR STATE

Mr. Frank Whitehouse, local representative of the Nordheimer Piano Co. has returned from a trip to England. Mr. Whitehouse sailed from the Princess Docks, Liverpool, by the White Star liner Laurentic to Montreal. In conversation with a Times representative, Mr. Whitehouse said the newspaper talk of trans-Atlantic liners all sailing with lights all out is "hot air." His steamer ran as though there was no war or any thought of it. When asked by The Times "Did you see much excitement in England over the war?" Mr. Whitehouse replied, "No, I have to-day seen more excitement and scare over the war than I did in England. With the exception of extrb guards on the docks and the public buildings, one would knot know that there was a war on, unless one reads the papers. Of course the recruiting offices are crowded with men volunteering for service, good men, too! The English are absolutely confident that England shall win her fight!"

Twelve Years Ago

The Times, of Sept. 12th, 1902, says: "The immense banks of sawdust on both sides of the river in the vicinity of the Dickson Co's mills, are a very valuable asset to the Cereal Company, and are said to be worth to them more than the purchase price of the entire property. The Company will use the sawdust as fuel for their drying processes, and are, in fact already doing so. Sawdust fresh from the saws is being taken for the purpose. The Company propose to erect carriers that will take the sawdust from the bank and dump it directly into the retort, thus saving a second handling.

CUT THIS OUT

Famous Specialist's Recipe for Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

If you know someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferers perhaps from total deafness. Recent experiments have proved conclusively that catarrhal deafness, head noises, etc., were the direct cause of constitutional disease, and that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporise with the complaint, and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money has been spent of late by a noted specialist in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The effective prescription which was eventually formulated and which has aroused the belief that deafness will soon be extinct, is given below in understandable form, so that anyone can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of moist or granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose promptly ends the most distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are quickly overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are directly caused by catarrh, therefore there are but few people whose hearing cannot be restored by this simple home treatment. Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial. There is nothing better.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal P.Q., who make a specialty of it.

CANADIAN SILHOUETTES

One night in the Rockies

I WOKE that night in our camp, just below the divide, where the water runs both ways. There were fir trees round us; and the light of our fire, for we had put on a black log—"white man fire"—was lighting the fir boles. The near trees lit up and down with the wavering light. The trees farther back were lit likewise; but with a light a little more pale; the light on the trees beyond was paler still. I marked the dwindling quality of the dancing radiance. The light on the farthest trees was as if ghosts danced in the darkness. I looked up and saw the stars, as bright as one sees them from a ship's deck. It was very quiet. I lay and looked at them a long while, and spoke aloud:

> The night in silence under many a star. And the > husky whispering waves whose voice I know.

I wondered if London really existed, or if I had but dreamed it. If it were true it was terrible beyond words. Think of a city whose yellow electric lights dazzle the eyes that look up, and hide the Milky Way. I listened; a long sighing passed in the fir-tops. It might have been the murmur of the Milky Way.

And one of my fellows stirred, and turned, and opened his eye, and said:

"Say it again, partner."

I said it again.

"It's sure all there," he said. "Who said that?"

"Walt Whitman," I said

"I've heard of him," he replied, snuggling his blankets down under his chin and crooking an arm under his head to raise it somewhat. "I've seen his portrait in a paper somewhere. He looks something like Miller?"

"Joaquin Miller?" I asked.

"Yap; you know his poetry? I knew a poem of his called 'The fortunate isles.' But he ain't so great a poet as Whitman, eh?"

"I don't think so," I said.

"D'ye recollect any more Whitman?" he asked.

"Yes," I said, and quoted from the Lincoln Ode, parts of the song of the Brown Bird in the Swamp.

Away up in the woods an owl called. The great stars looked down. I fell asleep without knowing, Whitman's words in my ears—"The night in silence under many a star."

A noise in the forest woke me—a crash far off. The light fluttered low on the whelming trees, the silence had settled again.

I disengaged a foot from the blankets and gave the fresh end of the log a push toward the centre, and a great shower of sparks went up, preluding new flames. The light danced round our camp on the fir-stems, the first branches of which must have been fifteen feet, or so, above our heads. I looked up—and again it was Whitman who spoke for me. I nestled back into the warmth of the blankets. "Whose voice I know."—By Frederick Niven, author of "Hands Up."

RETIRED GROCER SHOT BY BURGLAR DURING SCUFFLE

Buffalo, Sept. 8. In a hand-to-hand setto with a burglar in the front parlor of his home, Joseph Selbert of No. 145 East North Street was shot through the left arm with a .32 caliber revolver and the burglar made good his escape.

Mr. Selbert is about 65 years old, is a former member of the Buffalo police department and formerly kept a large grocery at the corner of Elm and North streets. He retired about two years ago.

The Selberts live on the ground floor of the house at No. 145 East North Street. At 3:15 o'clock this morning Mr. Selbert was awakened by the cautiously guarded footsteps of someone walking around the house. The unknown stranger could be heard slowly feeling his way from parlor through dining room, brushing aside draperies and easily removing chairs that blocked his progress.

Mr. Selbert awoke and peered from the door of his bedroom to see the intruder searching the adjoining room with a small searchlight. He yelled to the man and the flash was immediately extinguished. He then made a rush for the burglar and the two grappled. They struggled about the room for some time, overturning chairs and putting the room in general disorder in the scuffle.

Finally the burglar tore one hand away from Mr. Selbert's grasp and reached to his hip pocket for the revolver. He managed to back a few feet away from the older man and let go with a bang that aroused the whole neighborhood. There was but one shot fired and that one struck the retired grocer in the left arm. He gave a cry of pain and the burglar dashed to the front room, thru an open window, the same one by which he gained entrance, and out into the street. He has not been seen since.

The police were immediately notified and headquarters men are also at work on the case. The stranger is described as being about 25 years of age, smooth shaven, dark, and was dressed in dark clothes. A soft black hat which he wore was lost in the encounter between the two men and it is now in the possession of the police. Buffalo has been overrun with burglars and sneak thieves lately but this is one of the boldest jobs attempted thus far.

You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, a bad cold, are bilious, nervous, upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills, or castor oil?

Regulate the stomach, remove the sour

Cascarets immediately cleanse and undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children

Advance on Berlin Begun Through Eastern Prussia ---Heavy Russian Losses

LONDON, SEPT. 9.—THE LATEST RUSSIAN SUCCESS, THE CAPTURE OF THE FORTRESS OF NI-LAIEFF, AT MIKOLAJOW, ABOUT 25 MILES SOUTHWEST OF LEMBERG, IS ALMOST AS GREAT A AT AS THE TAKING OF LEMBERG ITSELF. THE PLACE IS NOT ONLY STRONGLY FORTIFIED, T IT WAS BELIEVED TO BE VIRTUALLY UNASSAILABLE OWING TO THE FACT THAT IT WAS RROUNDED BY MARSHES EXTENDING FOR 25 MILES.

ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT FEATURES OF THE AUSTRIAN MISFORTUNES IS THE FACT THE GROWING UNEASINESS IN ROUMANIA AND THE OTHER BALKAN STATES.

MONTENEGRO AND SERVIA ALREADY ARE ENGAGED AGAINST AUSTRIA, AND HAVE TAKEN E OFFENSIVE. ROUMANIA ALSO IS HUNGRY FOR TERRITORY, AND IS SAID TO BE READY AT Y MOMENT TO THROW HER 200,000 VETERAN TROOPS AGAINST AUSTRIA. ANOTHER BRILLIANT CCESS ALONG THE BORDER BY THE TROOPS OF EMPEROR NICHOLAS IS ALMOST CERTAIN TO ITE THE SLAV STATES OF SOUTH-EASTERN EUROPE TO HER CAUSE.

RUSSIA EVIDENTLY HAS AGAIN BEGUN HER ADVANCE ON BERLIN ALONG THE EAST PRUS-AN FRONTIER, THE RUSSIAN VANGUARD BEING REPORTED TO-DAY SIXTY MILES BEYOND KO-IGSBERG.

KOENIGSBERG IS 398 MILES FROM BERLIN.

NEWS FROM AUSTRIA INDICATES THAT THE DUAL MONARCHY IS IN GRAVE DANGER OF IN-RNAL TROUBLES, WHILE HER MILITARY SITUATION IS DAILY BECOMING WORSE.

EVEN BERLIN SEEMS TO HAVE LOST SOMETHING OF ITS PREVAILING OPTIMISM. IT CON-SSES TO THE TURNING OF ANXIETIES IN THE DIRECTION OF THE ALLY IN GALICIA. DURING E FIRST FEW WEEKS OF THE WAR GERMANY AND AUSTRIA VIRTUALLY DICTATED THE DIREC-ON OF THE CAMPAIGNS ALONG THE RUSSIAN BORDER, BECAUSE OF THE INADEQUACY OF THE SSIAN RAILROAD AND OTHER TRANSPORT. BUT THIS SITUATION HAS BEEN RADICALLY AL-RED BY THE RUSSIAN SUCCESSES IN GALICIA.

RUSSIA HAS THROWN 2,000,000 MEN ALONG THE BORDER IN EAST PRUSSIA. THIS ACTION REGARDED HERE AS A MENACE AGAINST THE HEART OF GERMANY WHICH CANNOT RE-IN UNANSWERED. HENCE THE STORIES OF THE MOVEMENT OF GERMAN VETERANS FROM THE STERN WAR AREA TO THE EASTERN PRUSSIAN FRONTIER ARE GENERALLY CONSIDERED AS DIBLE.

ssians Win Victory in Galicia me, Sept. 9.—A despatch from grad to the Messagero declares the great battle at Rawaruska, alicia, 32 miles north-west of Lem- is over, and that the Russians won a complete victory.

Austrians are said to be retiring everywhere. Among the prisoners by the Russians are a large ber of Germans.

Austrians have evacuated Rus- Poland.

Great Battle Proceeding

penhagen, via London, Sept. 9.— spatch to the newspaper Politiken Petrograd says :—

cording to a report, issued by War Ministry, the Russian ad- for the purpose of dividing the n Austrians who are advancing in Russian Poland, is on oint of succeeding. A great bat- proceeding."

Over 600,000 Lost at Soldau

London, Sept. 9.—The correspondent of The Times at Petrograd sends the following :—

"The extent of the losses during the first six weeks of the war places all previous casualties far in the background. Not less than 10,000 dead Germans were counted in the trenches after one engagement in Eastern Prussia.

"On the fateful September 1, when two Russian corps came to death grips with four German corps north of Soldau, the losses on both sides totalled between 60,000 and 70,000, the majority being Germans." Soldau is in East Prussia, directly south of Osterode and close to the border of Prussian Poland.

The correspondent of the Central News at Petrograd sends the following :—

"It is proposed to lodge the wounded Austrians and Germans in the empty German and Austrian Embassies.

"Trains filled with large numbers of Russians and Austrians, wounded at Lemberg, and also with prisoners have arrived here.

Disease In Austrian Army

Paris, Sept. —The noon official statement confirmed the reports that disease has broken out in the Austrian army. It is stated that the situation in the east was excellent from the allies' point of view.

Austrian Regiment Surrendered

Washington, Sept. 9.—A Bordeaux despatch to the French Embassy said: "The success of the Russians continues against the Austrians, whose 45th Regiment of Infantry has surrendered in its entirety."

Napanee has formed a branch of the Red Cross.

CZAR FOR BERLIN NO MATTER THE COST

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The Evening News has published a despatch from its Rome correspondent, who says that Emperor Nicholas is reported in Rome to have made the following declaration :

"I am resolved to go to Berlin itself, even if it costs me to lose my last Moujik."

The Japanese Ambassador at Petrograd, the correspondent continues, having expressed to the Emperor a wish to see the soldiers of Japan fighting side by side with those of Russia, the Emperor replied :

"I shall do my best to realise your wishes."

60,000 INDIAN TROOPS AIDING THE ALLIES

Dozen Indian Potentates are Accompanying This Expeditionary Force

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Lord Kitchener's "unknown factor," heretofore held to be a secret, which has so altered the situation at the front, is now known to be the arrival of forces from India. Two divisions of infantry and a brigade of cavalry constitute these forces.

A dozen Indian potentates have been selected to accompany this expeditionary force. These include Sir Partab Singh, Sir Gangi Bahadur, Maharaja of Bikaner, and Sir Bhupindra Singh, Maharaja of Patiala.

If the Indian divisions are organized on the same basis as the British home arym, the Indian contingent will add about 60,000 combatants to the allied armies, together with approximately 190 pieces of artillery, comprising both light and heavy field pieces and howitzers.

House of Commons Cheers India

In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. C. Roberts, one of the under secretaries of the Colonial Department, read a message from the Viceroy of India, which said that the rulers of the Indian native states, nearly 700 in number, had with one accord rallied to the defence of the Empire with personal offers of service as well as the resources of their States.

One Indian Chief, 70 years of age, demanded the right to render military service along with his nephew, a youth of 16 who is now with the expeditionary force. Offers of troops, horses, money, and even jewels, had rolled in, the Viceroy said. The Dalia Llama of Tibet had offered a thousand soldiers to aid the Empire, and thousands of Llamas were praying daily for the success of the British forces and for the repose of the souls of the dead. In addition to men and money, some of the native rulers of India are equipping a hospital ship.

The House was deeply moved by this message, and the reading was greeted with cheer upon cheer.

KAISER WATCHED FROM OUT OF RANGE

London, Sept. 9.—The Geneva correspondent of the Express hears from a German source that Emperor William watched the attack on Nancy from a hill outside the range of the French artillery.

Standing alone with his glasses glued to his eyes, he followed the progress of his battle for several hours while his staff, consisting of several high officers, remained discreetly in the background. He departed alone in a waiting motor car.

AN INSTANTANEOUS WRINKLE REMOVER

The average woman is always surprised to learn, after experimenting with all sorts of patent so-called "wrinkle removers," that the most effective remedy in the world is a simple face wash which she can make herself at home in a jiffy.

She has only to get an ounce, of pure powdered saxolite from her nearest druggist and dissolve it in half a pint of witch hazel. Apply this refreshing solution to the face every day for awhile. The result is charming—marvelous. Even after the very first treatment the wrinkles show less plainly and the face has a nice, firm, comfortable feeling that is thoroughly delightful and lends self-confidence in one's appearance. This harmless home remedy is used by thousands of women to obliterate the unwelcome traces of time.

British Continue to Drive the German Host Before Them Foe Outnumbered By Allies

PARIS, SEPT. 9.—AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT ISSUED THIS AFTERNOON SAYS :—

"FIRST — ON THE LEFT WING, ALTHOUGH THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN RE-INFORCED, THE SITUATION REMAINS SATISFACTORY. THE ENEMY IS RETREATING BEFORE THE BRITISH ARMY.

"SECOND — AT THE CENTRE OUR ADVANCE IS SLOW BUT GENERAL. ON THE RIGHT WING THERE HAS BEEN NO ACTION OF THE ENEMY AGAINST THEGREAT CIRCLE OF NANCY. IN THE VOSGES AND IN ALSACE THE SITUATION REMWAINS UNCHAN-GED."

THE OFFICIAL STATEMENT OF THE WAR OFFICE, ISSUED AT BORDEAU AT 3.30 THIS AFTERNOON, IS AS FOLLOWS :—

"THE GENERAL BATTLE WHICH BEGAN ON SUNDAY, CONTINUES IN THE TERRITORY THAT STRETCHES FROM THE NORTH-EAST OF PARIS TO THE EASTERN FRONTIER, WITH FRENCH SUCCESSES REPORTED IN THE MAIN.

"THE GERMAN ATTACK ON THE FRENCH WING HAS WEAKENED FOR THE FIRST TIME. THE FRENCH RIGHT IS NOW REPORTED TO BE ADVANCING. THE ARMY OF DEFENCE OF PARIS WHICH IS CO-OPERATING WITH THE FRENCH AND BRITISH FIELD ARMIES, HAS BEEN ENGAGED WITH THE GERMANS NEAR THE RIVER OURCQ AND GAINED A DECISIVE VICTORY, HAVING PRESSED THE GERMANS FAR BACK. THERE HAS BEEN VERY SEVERE FIGHTING IN THE VICINITY OF SEZANNE AND VITRY-LE-FRANCOIS, WHERE THE GERMANS POURED HEAVY RE-INFORCEMENTS IN AN EFFORT TO BREAK THE FRENCH LINES. THE FRENCH ARTILLERY, HOWEVER, PROVED UNUSUALLY EFFECTIVE, AND THE STRENGTH OF THE GERMAN ASSAULT WAS BROKEN SO THAT THE FRENCH TROOPS WERE ABLE TO CHARGE AND DRIVE THE GERMANS BACK TO THEIR OWN RESERVE LINES.

"THE DEFENCE OF MAUBEUGE CONTINUES HEROICALLY AGAINST STRONG GERMAN FORCES AND THE HEAVY GERMAN SIEGE GUNS."

THIS LATTER STATEMENT IS IN DIRECT CONTRADICTION TO THE STATEMENTS ISSUED BY THE GERMAN WAR OFFICE, IN WHICH IT WAS DECLARED THAT MAUBEUGE HAD FALLEN BEFORE THE GERMANS, WITH A LOSS OF 40,000 MEN, FOUR GENERALS, AND 400 GUNS.

Germans Surrender in Groups

British officers and soldiers arriving from the front to-day declare that the four days' battle which continues to the east of Paris is being carried on furiously. They assert that the French captured a considerable number of field and machine guns, while the Germans surrendered in groups.

French Cool and Satisfied

Field Marshal Sir John French, the commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary force now fighting with the French army, looked perfectly satisfied with the situation, according to the British soldiers. They say he went about the lines smoking a cigaret as though he were on the parade grounds.

"Successes Are Continued"

Declaring emphatically that "our successes are continued," General Gallieni, military governor of Paris, today added that in his opinion the Paris defence army can safely be pushed forward to aid the British-French column in crossing the German right wing.

The French officials here very plainly state that the result of the battle is not yet decisive. It will probably last for some time yet. But the initial advantages are all with the allies and they are to-day fighting on the ground that the Germans held on Saturday and Sunday.

Germans Now Outnumbered

For the first time since the war began the Germans are declared to be outnumbered. General Pau Pau, who is now in command of the French centre, has at least 25,000 men more than are facing him. The French left, which has inflicted enormous damage to the army of Gen. Von Kluck, and which is commanded by Field Marshal Sir John French, is also numerically superior to the Germans, having been heavily re-inforced during the last few days from the French reservists in the south.

Hundreds of wounded were being brought from the front to-day. They declare the French left has taken many thousands of prisoners. They also insist that the losses of the French-British on the offensive are far smaller than were the losses of the Germans under similar circumstances. The German rifle fire, they declare, is still too high.

YANKEE CHILDREN CAUGHT IN BERLIN

Berlin, Sept. 9.—Despite the temporary interruption of the American special train service to Holland, owing to the military necessities in Germany, the relief committee under Major James A. Ryan has succeeded in arranging to have special cars with accommodations for 150 Americans attached to military trains leaving twice daily.

The trip is scheduled to take 30 hours instead of 12 hours as in the case of specials, but the cars leaving at noon Wednesday were crowded with Americans anxious to catch the Holland-American line steamer Potsdam at Rotterdam, or early British boats.

The relief committee headquarters resembles a nursery, with a number of children there. A family of seven unaccompanied children, whose parents already are in New York, have arrived from Budapest and are being looked after by the relief commission until direct communication with Holland is restored. Another party of two women and seven children is almost hopeless. They arrived in Vienna and are waiting a resumption of the special service.

HALL — MEYERS

A pretty wedding took place at the bride's parents, Brock street, yesterday morning, when Miss A. O. Meyers daughter of Mr. J. W. Meyers, and Major Gerald R. Hall, son of Mr. E. H. D. Hall, were united in marriage by the Rev. H. G. Pervez, of George Street Methodist Church. The bride was unattended.

After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hull will take up residence in Peterborough.

A wedding of local interest was solemnized on Tuesday at Regina, Sask., when Miss Jean Evelyn, daughter of Mrs. Brethour, of that city, became the bride of Mr. J. Donald Shook, manager of the Oriental Hotel of this city. Mr. Shook's many friends here will wish him and Mrs. Shook every happiness.

OBITUARY

MRS. GUYMEA

Yesterday morning Mrs. Emma Guymea passed away suddenly at the house of Mr. Roberts, Otonabee. The late Mrs. Guymea had been troubled with heart disease for some time, but was feeling better during the past few days than any time since the weakness had made itself known. During the morning she went about her work in the house, but about 11 o'clock, without any warning, she dropped on the floor, dead.

Deceased was a faithful member of the Mark Street Church. Her death will be regretted by a large number of friends near Peterborough and in Toronto, in which city she resided before coming here.

Mrs. Guymea was seventy years of age. She is survived by seven children—Edith, Maud, William, Charles, and Frank in England, and Sidney and Emily, in Toronto. She also leaves a brother, in England, and one sister, Mrs. Roberts, in Otonabee.

A branch of the Patriotic Fund has been formed at Waterloo.

GERMANY HANDLES U. S. WITH GLOVES

Washington, Sept. 9.—Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, called on President Wilson for the first time since his return from Germany. He was received in the Blue room and the European war was not mentioned, the ambassador merely paying his respects, and his call lasted only a few minutes.

It had generally been believed that Count von Bernstorff might follow the example of other European diplomats who, on returning from Europe paid their respects and discussed questions of neutrality at some length.

The ambassador also spent a few minutes at the state department, where he went to introduce a new attache of the embassy, and started for New York. The German diplomat said he had received no recent dispatches and had no comment to make on the general war situation.

He declared that Germany has not protested and would not protest against the carrying of munitions of war by American ships to Germany's enemies.
